to Whom it May Concern, Please consider removing any incentives for large solar projects on forest land. Forests are an important ally in the fight to curb the negative effects of climate change. Clear cutting and stumping extensive swaths of woodlands for solar production seems like a bad trade-off. Removing incentives could help prevent many unsuitable projects from being proposed. Also perhaps adding increased incentives for rooftop solar installation would encourage more people to invest in solar. Also increasing incentive for installation over existing parking lots might be a good addition.
thank you for your consideration,
