Subject: Daily fantasy sport regulations.

My name is John Burr and I'm from Springfield Mass. I have been playing daily fantasy sports for 3 or 4 years and over the years it's become a fun part of my family's social life. Anything from Me and my father will discuss individual players to me and my brother comparing lineups. It's something I and my family enjoy doing and comparing.

So could you please explain to me why you would like to change something that people enjoy doing? This is the land of the free correct? The state recently approved the building of casinos. What your asking of these fantasy sports company's is like asking casino to regulate how many hands of blackjack an individual can play or how many times they can spin the wheels on a slot machine.. How about scratch tickets, why aren't those regulated on how many someone can buy?

Today many people play season long fantasy sports with friends and family. Usually with money on the line. This is no different just with alot more people and it's daily. So today I'm asking to keep a good thing going and not ruin it with your regulations. It seems as if the state (and country) doesnt directly profit from something they are there to regulate it. I don't know if anyone is even going to read this but for once can we not regulate something that brings people together, especially in a time in this world when there is so much tearing them apart.

Thank you for your consideration in this decision.
