The Commonwealth of Hassachusetts

AUDITOR'S DEPARTMENT, Jan. 10, 1923.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives.

I have the honor to present the seventy-fourth annual report of this Department, it being for the fiscal year ending Nov. 30, 1922. This will be the last report of the Auditor to contain the financial transactions of the Commonwealth, as under the provisions of chapter 545 of the Acts of 1922 my report will, in the future, relate only to audits.

By General Laws, chapter 11, section 15, the Auditor is required to state in his report whether or not the ordinary expenses of the year have exceeded the income, and show the amount of the balance. In compliance with this provision of law I have to say that —

The ordinary revenue receipts for 1922	24		¥	×	. $32,821,256 18

The revenue receipts as shown above were $2,014,566.18 in excess of the revised estimate which appears in the document issued by this Department, "Estimates upon which State Tax was levied, and Comparative Statements showing the Appropriations made by the Legislatures of 1921 and 1922."

Following is the detail of said estimate of ordinary revenue compared with the actual ordinary revenue for 1922: —

FUNDED DEBT.

The debt of the Commonwealth is divided into two parts, — the direct debt, which is incurred for State purposes, and is payable by the Commonwealth at large; and the contingent debt, which is a loan of the credit of the Commonwealth to certain metropolitan districts for water, sewerage and parks; and the requirements for interest, sinking funds and serial bonds are annually assessed upon the cities and towns of said districts. The contingent debt also includes the loans on account of Hingham highway and Cambridge subway, and the city of Boston's proportion (two-thirds) of the loan on account of the Suffolk County Court House and its proportion (one-tenth) of the defence of the Commonwealth loan.

IN CONCLUSION.

During the past year an effort has been made to audit the accounts of all institutions and departments at least once, but I have been unable to complete the round, owing to the limited auditing force at my command. In order to make the careful audit required by law, it will be necessary to considerably increase the number of examiners, and in my estimate for the appropriation for 1923 I have endeavored to provide for the necessary increase.

Special studies have been made in several institutions in connection with the handling of the stores' accounts, which has led to a more accurate and careful recording of these transactions. Attention has been directed to the problem of the collection of charges by the various State hospitals, with the result that substantial sums of revenue have been covered into the State treasury. Constructive work has not been neglected and among other things a study of the farm accounts and their relation to the institution is being made, and the accounts are being further developed in order that the farm transactions will be recorded in a more systematic manner and information supplied from which an intelligent view of the operations of the various institution farms may be obtained.

During the year the accounts of the Division of the Blind have been reorganized, its departments co-ordinated and methods of financing brought under more direct control, thereby placing this department upon a firm operating basis.

The accounts of the Massachusetts Normal Art School have also been rearranged and brought into conformity with general institution accounts.

A new school for feeble-minded has been established at Belchertown during the past year, and a financial and accounting organization has been installed.

All of the institutions have been subject to regular examination or supervision, and such assistance has been rendered as was necessary for the efficient handling of the accounts. The books and accounts of the State Treasurer have been examined and the cash and securities found to be correct, as shown by the books of the department.

Your attention is called to the financial transactions of the State, which are shown in the statements appearing beyond. The order of the statements has been rearranged, and I believe that they run in a more logical sequence than formerly.

The law providing for a tax upon the incomes received from certain forms of intangible property and from trades and professions was passed in 1916, being chapter 269. By this act, the Auditor was precluded from making the audit provided by chapter 139 of the Acts of 1907. To remedy this defect, the Auditor in his annual report for the year 1918 recommended that said chapter 269 be amended so that the Auditor could make a proper audit. The bill which was filed with the Auditor's recommendation was amended by the Committee on Taxation in such a way that although the Auditor was given the authority to examine the books of accounts and records, he was still shut off from having access to the returns. As I am of the opinion that a proper audit cannot be made without reference to the returns, I am making the following recommendation.

RECOMMENDATION.

Chapter 62 of the General Laws, which treats of the taxation of incomes, provides in section 32 that "the books, accounts and other records in the hands of the commissioner, except returns, shall be open to the inspection of the state auditor, his deputies, assistants and clerks when acting under his authority for the purpose of auditing the accounts of the commission."

Chapter 545 of the Acts of 1922 provides in section 27 that the State Auditor shall annually make a careful audit of the accounts of all departments and activities, including the Income Tax Division of the Department of Corporations and Taxation. I submit that a careful audit of the Income Tax Division cannot be made without reference to the returns upon which the assessment is made, and I respectfully recommend that legislation be enacted authorizing the State Auditor to have access to the income tax returns for the purpose of making an audit.

Respectfully submitted,

recorded in a more systematic manner and information supplied from which an intelligent view of the operations of the various institution farms may be obtained.

During the year the accounts of the Division of the Blind have been reorganized, its departments co-ordinated and methods of financing brought under more direct control, thereby placing this department upon a firm operating basis.

The accounts of the Massachusetts Normal Art School have also been rearranged and brought into conformity with general institution accounts.

A new school for feeble-minded has been established at Belchertown during the past year, and a financial and accounting organization has been installed.

All of the institutions have been subject to regular examination or supervision, and such assistance has been rendered as was necessary for the efficient handling of the accounts. The books and accounts of the State Treasurer have been examined and the cash and securities found to be correct, as shown by the books of the department.

Your attention is called to the financial transactions of the State, which are shown in the statements appearing beyond. The order of the statements has been rearranged, and I believe that they run in a more logical sequence than formerly.

The law providing for a tax upon the incomes received from certain forms of intangible property and from trades and professions was passed in 1916, being chapter 269. By this act, the Auditor was precluded from making the audit provided by chapter 139 of the Acts of 1907. To remedy this defect, the Auditor in his annual report for the year 1918 recommended that said chapter 269 be amended so that the Auditor could make a proper audit. The bill which was filed with the Auditor's recommendation was amended by the Committee on Taxation in such a way that although the Auditor was given the authority to examine the books of accounts and records, he was still shut off from having access to the returns. As I am of the opinion that a proper audit cannot be made without reference to the returns, I am making the following recommendation.

RECOMMENDATION.

Chapter 62 of the General Laws, which treats of the taxation of incomes, provides in section 32 that "the books, accounts and other records in the hands of the commissioner, except returns, shall be open to the inspection of the state auditor, his deputies, assistants and clerks when acting under his authority for the purpose of auditing the accounts of the commission."

Chapter 545 of the Acts of 1922 provides in section 27 that the State Auditor shall annually make a careful audit of the accounts of all departments and activities, including the Income Tax Division of the Department of Corporations and Taxation. I submit that a careful audit of the Income Tax Division cannot be made without reference to the returns upon which the assessment is made, and I respectfully recommend that legislation be enacted authorizing the State Auditor to have access to the income tax returns for the purpose of making an audit.

Respectfully submitted,

ALONZO B. COOK, Auditor.
