Notice of Data Breach

Dear <<first_name>> <<last_name>>,

We serve as a billing vendor for your service provider Duo Broadband. We are writing on behalf of Duo Broadband to tell you about a data security incident that may have exposed some of your personal information. We take the protection and proper use of your information very seriously. For this reason, we are contacting you directly to explain the circumstances of the incident.

What happened?

On February 13, 2025, we discovered a data security incident in which a cyber threat actor attempted to disrupt our systems in a possible effort to deploy ransomware, and solicit a ransom payment from us. Upon discovery, we immediately took action to secure our systems, terminated any unauthorized access, and notified law enforcement as required by federal regulations. On March 17, 2025, we detected unauthorized access to certain sensitive personal information of Duo Broadband customers, described below.

What information was involved?

The information subject to the incident may have included sensitive personal information, including your first and last name, address, date of birth, and Social Security Number.

What we are doing.

We have promptly implemented enhanced security measures to strengthen our protocols and prevent future incidents. These actions include reinforcing access controls, conducting a comprehensive security review, and reevaluating our third-party vendor management processes. As of the date of this letter, we have found no evidence that this information has been misused, including for identity theft.

Fraud Alerts. There are two types of fraud alerts you can place on your credit report to put your creditors on notice that you may be a victim of fraud—an initial alert and an extended alert. You may ask that an initial fraud alert be placed on your credit report if you suspect you have been, or are about to be, a victim of identity theft. An initial fraud alert stays on your credit report for at least one year. You may have an extended alert placed on your credit report if you have already been a victim of identity theft and you have the appropriate documentary proof. An extended fraud alert stays on your credit report for seven years. You can place a fraud alert on your credit report by contacting any of the three national credit reporting agencies.

Security Freeze. You have the ability to place a security freeze, also known as a credit freeze, on your credit report free of charge.

A security freeze is intended to prevent credit, loans and services from being approved in your name without your consent. To place a security freeze on your credit report, you may use an online process, an automated telephone line, or submit a written request to any of the three credit reporting agencies listed above. The following information must be included when requesting a security freeze (note that, if you are requesting a credit report for your spouse, this information must be provided for him/her as well): (1) full name, with middle initial and any suffixes; (2) Social Security number; (3) date of birth; (4) current address and any previous addresses for the past 5 years; and (5) any applicable incident report or complaint with a law enforcement agency or the Registry of Motor Vehicles. The request must also include a copy of a government-issued identification card and a copy of a recent utility bill or bank or insurance statement. It is essential that each copy be legible, and display your name, current mailing address, and the date of issue.
