NOTICE OF SECURITY INCIDENT

Dear <First Name> <Last Name>,

We are writing to inform you of a security incident at Lohmann Corporation and its subsidiaries (“Lohmann”) that may involve some of your personal information. We are notifying you at this time to make you aware of this security incident so you can understand what happened, what we are doing to address it, and the steps you can take to remain vigilant and enhance the protection of your personal information, including activating complimentary identity monitoring.

What Happened

On January 27, 2026, an IT security incident was identified at our parent company’s facility in Neuwied, Germany that temporarily affected parts of the global Lohmann IT systems, including certain systems for Lohmann located in the United States. Immediately thereafter, we activated our emergency and security protocols, and the potentially affected systems were isolated and shut down. In addition, a comprehensive investigation and forensic analysis of the global Lohmann systems was initiated with both internal and external forensic experts. That detailed forensic analysis and review is ongoing.

The global Lohmann IT systems – including the entire Lohmann US IT system - have been under continuous monitoring since the security incident was identified, and there is no indication of any ongoing unauthorized access or activity.

What Information Was Involved

Although the analysis and review is ongoing, our investigation to date indicates that certain data has been accessed or acquired by an unauthorized third party, and may include your name, address, date of birth, Social Security number, driver’s license number, passport number or other government issued identification number, benefit plan information, insurance plan information, and financial account number. The information that may have been accessed or acquired varies by individual and may not be applicable to all Lohmann employees.

What We are Doing

As noted above, there is no indication of any continued unauthorized access or activity in the global Lohmann systems or any affiliated systems. As part of our ongoing efforts to help prevent something like this from happening in the future, Lohmann is working to implement several changes to protect data from any subsequent incidents. In addition, we are working to identify potential vulnerabilities in our systems and implement appropriate remedial action.

What You Can Do, and For More Information

Lohmann is offering all employees complimentary credit monitoring and identity protection services for 24 months so those affected can have peace of mind. We encourage you to enroll in these complimentary services.

In addition, as an ongoing best practice, we recommend you remain vigilant, including carefully reviewing account statements and credit reports. Out of an abundance of caution, you may wish to change your username, password, and/or security questions relevant to your financial accounts and other personal accounts. Please also review the enclosed "Additional Resources" section included with this letter. This section describes additional steps you can take to help protect yourself, including recommendations by the Federal Trade Commission regarding identity theft protection, details on how to place a fraud alert or a security freeze on your credit file, and other identity theft prevention and mitigation tools and services.

We also recommend you verify any unusual or urgent payment or bank account changes, as well as any requests for login credentials or multi-factor authentication codes, through independent channels (e.g., by calling known phone numbers). In the event there is any suspicious activity in any of your accounts or you suspect you are the victim of identity theft, you should promptly notify the financial institution where the account is maintained and report the activity to the proper law enforcement authorities.

For additional guidance, we have compiled FAQs and current information on a dedicated web page:

Fraud Alerts. There are two types of fraud alerts you can place on your credit report to put your creditors on notice that you may be a victim of fraud—an initial alert and an extended alert. You may ask that an initial fraud alert be placed on your credit report if you suspect you have been, or are about to be, a victim of identity theft. An initial fraud alert stays on your credit report for at least one year. You may have an extended alert placed on your credit report if you have already been a victim of identity theft and you have the appropriate documentary proof. An extended fraud alert stays on your credit report for seven years. You can place a fraud alert on your credit report by contacting any of the three national credit reporting agencies.

Security Freeze. You have the ability to place a security freeze, also known as a credit freeze, on your credit report free of charge. A security freeze is intended to prevent credit, loans and services from being approved in your name without your consent. To place a security freeze on your credit report, you may use an online process, an automated telephone line, or submit a written request to any of the three credit reporting agencies listed above. The following information must be included when requesting a security freeze (note that, if you are requesting a credit report for your spouse, this information must be provided for him/her as well): (1) full name, with middle initial and any suffixes; (2) Social Security number; (3) date of birth; (4) current address and any previous addresses for the past 5 years; and (5) any applicable incident report or complaint with a law enforcement agency or the Registry of Motor Vehicles. The request must also include a copy of a government-issued identification card and a copy of a recent utility bill or bank or insurance statement. It is essential that each copy be legible, and display your name, current mailing address, and the date of issue.
