INTRODUCTION AND INTERESTS OF AMICI STATES

The Amici States have compelling interests in protecting the health, wellbeing, and economic security of their residents. To promote these interests, the States are committed to ensuring a strong and robust regulatory regime that makes contraception as widely available and affordable as possible. Access to contraception advances educational opportunity, workplace equality, and financial empowerment for women; improves the health of women and children; and reduces healthcare related costs for individuals, families, and States.

Without federal support, States cannot safeguard their residents' access to affordable contraception. Although most States have laws requiring health plans to cover contraception, federal law preempts State regulation of self-funded employer-sponsored plans, which cover tens of millions of people. For this and other reasons, the Amici States have an interest in ensuring that, in implementing the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act's contraceptive mandate, Defendants develop rules that further women's health and equality and do not impose unjustifiable costs on the States.

The Amici States also have a strong interest in a fair and transparent federal regulatory process. The Amici States depend on federal agencies to follow proper rulemaking procedures designed to encompass consideration of a broad array of interests—including those of State and local governments—before making important, and often complex, regulatory decisions.

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

The five Plaintiff States here seek to protect themselves, other States, and women across the country from the harms that will result from Defendants' attempt to nullify provisions of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act ("ACA") that guarantee women equal access to preventive medical care—specifically contraceptive care and services. Defendants have issued two Interim Final Rules (the "Rules") that authorize employers with religious or moral objections to contraception to block employees and their dependents from receiving contraceptive coverage.

The Rules have caused—and will continue to cause—significant harm to States. These harms, which are irreparable, give States Article III standing to challenge the Rules. The Rules will deprive hundreds of thousands of people of contraceptive coverage, threatening the health and wellbeing of State residents, and the economic and public health of States generally. As a result, States will be forced to expend millions of dollars to provide replacement contraceptive care and services for their residents. In addition, Defendants' failure to provide notice of,

and an opportunity to comment on, the Rules prior to implementing them inflicted a distinct Article III injury. States have a right to participate in the development of regulations that implicate their interests.

The District Court did not abuse its discretion by issuing a nationwide injunction. When federal regulatory action is unlawful, courts typically invalidate the action in its entirety. The District Court was justified in following that rule in this case, particularly because doing so was necessary to preserve the status quo and redress the Plaintiff States' injuries.

ARGUMENT

I. The Plaintiff States Have Standing to Challenge the Rules.

The Rules have injured or threaten to injure States' quasi-sovereign, proprietary, and procedural interests. These injuries give the Plaintiff States clear standing to challenge the Rules.

A. States Are Entitled to Invoke Federal Jurisdiction to Protect the Health and Wellbeing of Their Residents.

"It is of considerable relevance that the part[ies] seeking review here [are] sovereign State[s] and not...private [litigants]." Massachusetts v. E.P.A., 549 U.S. 497, 518 (2007). When States invoke federal jurisdiction to protect their quasi-sovereign interest in the health and wellbeing of their residents, they must be given "special solicitude" in the standing analysis.

Id. at 518-21. And States' standing to challenge federal regulatory action is at its strongest where, as here, regulations threaten both quasi-sovereign and proprietary interests.

Id.

1. Access to Affordable Contraception is Critical to the Health and Wellbeing of Women and the Economies and Public Health of States.

More than 30 million women of child-bearing age reside in the Amici and Plaintiff States. Access to contraception affects myriad aspects of these women's lives. Contraception reduces the risk of unintended pregnancies, adverse pregnancy outcomes, and other negative health consequences.² And by enhancing women's control over their bodies, contraception gives them the power to choose if and how they pursue educational, employment, and familial opportunities.³

² See Institute of Medicine, Clinical Preventive Services for Women: Closing the Gaps, at 103, 105-07 (2011).

³ A. Sonfield et al., The Social and Economic Benefits of Women's Ability to Determine Whether and When to Have Children, Guttmacher Institute, at 7, 11-12 (Mar. 2013), https://www.guttmacher.org/sites/default/files/report_pdf/social-economic-benefits.pdf; U.S. Congress, Joint Economic Committee, The Economic Benefits of Access to Family Planning (Oct. 2015),

Overwhelming empirical evidence shows that, in turn, improving access to affordable contraception significantly benefits States' economies and public health—benefits maximized by providing no-cost access to a range of contraceptive options.⁴ When cost and access are not barriers, and a range of options is available, women choose, and consistently use, more effective and reliable forms of contraception.⁵

2. States Cannot Guarantee Access to Contraception Without Federal Support.

States have a heightened claim to special solicitude in this litigation. Federal law precludes States from using their "sovereign lawmaking powers" to provide all their residents the comprehensive contraceptive coverage guaranteed by the ACA and threatened by the Rules. Massachusetts, 549 U.S. at 519 (citing Alfred L. Snapp & Son, Inc. v. Puerto Rico ex rel. Barez, 458 U.S. 592, 607 (1982)).

⁵ L. Sobel et al., The Future of Contraceptive Coverage, Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation (Jan. 2017), https://www.kff.org/womens-health-policy/issue-brief/the-future-of-contraceptive-coverage/.

Twenty-eight States and the District of Columbia have adopted laws that effectively require health plans to provide contraceptive coverage; eleven States have ACA-style regulations that mandate no-cost coverage.⁶ However, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act ("ERISA") preempts application of these laws to the most common employer-sponsored health plans covered by the ACA: self-funded plans.⁷ See 29 U.S.C. § 1144(a). States thus have a powerful, sovereign interest in ensuring proper enforcement and implementation of the ACA.⁸ See Massachusetts, 549 U.S. at 518-21.

B. The Rules Will Inflict Irreparable Fiscal Injuries on the States.

The Rules will result in hundreds of thousands of employees and their dependents losing the comprehensive, contraceptive coverage guaranteed by the ACA. That, in turn, will impose direct and irremediable financial harm on the ⁶ See generally Guttmacher Institute, Insurance Coverage of Contraceptives (May 2018), https://www.guttmacher.org/state-policy/explore/insurance-coverage-contraceptives.

⁷ Approximately 61% of covered workers are enrolled in a self-funded health plan. See 2016 Employer Benefits Survey, Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation, § 10 (Sept. 2016) ("Employer Benefits Survey"), https://www.kff.org/report-section/ehbs-2016-section-ten-plan-funding/.

⁸ Federal preemption of State laws may constitute an additional injury sufficient to afford standing. See Texas v. United States, 809 F.3d 134, 153 (5th Cir. 2015); Wyoming ex rel. Crank v. United States, 539 F.3d 1236, 1241-42 (10th Cir. 2008).

States. This is not speculation: it is the conclusion set out in Defendants' own Regulatory Impact Analysis ("RIA"). See 82 Fed. Reg. 47792, 47815-24 (Oct. 13, 2017); 82 Fed. Reg. 47838, 47856-57 (Oct. 13, 2017). First, many women who lose contraceptive coverage as a result of the Rules will obtain replacement care and services through state-funded programs. This fact does not erase the threat posed by the Rules—it compounds the injury. See Texas v. United States, 809 F.3d 134, 156-57 (5th Cir. 2015) (changes in federal regulations that force States to choose between incurring costs and altering established laws or programs impose a cognizable harm). Second, while States will be able to mitigate some of the Rules' negative effects, many women will not be able to obtain replacement coverage. As Defendants have repeatedly acknowledged, there is no effective substitute for the ACA's seamless, no-cost coverage. See, e.g., 78 Fed. Reg. 39870, 39888 (July 2, 2013). As a result, States will also be forced to bear additional costs from unintended pregnancies and other negative health outcomes caused by reduced access to contraception.

⁹ The RIA is Defendants' official, legally mandated explanation of each Rules' anticipated costs, benefits, and broader effects. See 82 Fed. Reg. at 47815. Hereinafter, "RIA" refers to the Religious Exemption Rule's RIA.

1. The Rules Will Cause Hundreds of Thousands of People to Lose Coverage.

Defendants' RIA concludes that between approximately 356,350 and 1,348,315 employees and their dependents¹⁰ will lose their employer-sponsored contraceptive coverage due to the Rules. See 82 Fed. Reg. at 47815-24; 82 Fed. Reg. 47856-58. Defendants calculate that this means between 31,715 ("lower bound") and 120,000 ("upper bound") women who are currently using "affected contraceptives" will lose their employer-sponsored coverage. Id. at 47821, 47823, 47858. These figures offer a snapshot of the Rules' direct and immediate effect. Cumulatively, a much larger number of women will be affected over time if the Rules go into effect.

The lower and upper bounds are based on two different calculation methods. See 82 Fed. Reg. at 47821. The lower bound is calculated using information about employers who have objected to providing contraceptive coverage under the ACA, either through litigation ("litigating employers") or by using the ACA's existing accommodation ("accommodated employers"). Id. at 47815-21. This approach is limited by several factors; Defendants do not even know how many employers are using the accommodation, and lack information concerning many, if not most, of the employers they have identified. Id. For the upper bound, Defendants use the number of employers that excluded contraceptive coverage from their health plans before the ACA went into effect as a proxy to calculate the number of employees who will be affected by the Rules. See 82 Fed. Reg. at 47821-24. Defendants conclude that the number of women who will lose coverage as a result of the Rules will be only a small fraction of the number of women who were denied contraceptive coverage prior to the ACA. Id.

Importantly, the figures provided in the RIA account for many factors that could affect employers' use of the expanded exemptions. For example, Defendants adjust their calculations to account for the fact that some objecting employers will continue to use the accommodation rather than the expanded exemptions, see, e.g., 82 Fed. Reg. at 47815; that some employers are covered by injunctions exempting them from the contraceptive mandate, id. at 47818; and that some employers who choose to use the expanded exemptions will object to covering only a few contraceptive methods, id. at 47823.

In sum, the RIA establishes that tens of thousands of women who are currently using a method of contraception covered by the ACA will immediately lose their employer-sponsored coverage as a direct result of the Rules, should they go into effect. Defendants have provided no credible reason to believe that women residing in the Plaintiff and Amici States will be unaffected—there is none.

2. The Rules Will Have a Nationwide Impact.

The Rules will affect States across the country, including States with contraceptive coverage laws. As Defendants acknowledge, most women who will lose contraceptive coverage as a result of the Rules work for employers with self-funded plans that are exempt from State regulation due to ERISA preemption. See 82 Fed. Reg. at 47820-21, 47823. Nationally, self-funded plans cover 61% of people who have employer-sponsored insurance. This is reflected in the RIA: fewer than one-third of the women included in the lower bound are identified in the RIA as working for employers with health plans that are subject to State laws (fully-insured plans)¹²; and the upper bound already effectively excludes women who work for employers covered by State regulation. See 82 Fed. Reg. at 47820-22.

¹¹ See Employer Benefits Survey, supra, note 7.

¹³ The upper bound is based on data concerning employers who excluded contraceptive coverage from their health plans in 2010. See 82 Fed. Reg. 47822 & n.87. Employers required to provide coverage under State laws—all of which predate 2010 except for Colorado's and the District of Columbia's laws—are necessarily excluded from this estimate.

Consistent with these facts, the administrative record identifies multiple litigating employers that Defendants expect will use the exemptions and that are located in the Plaintiff States—for example, Hobby Lobby Stores Inc., Global Pump Co., Media Research Center, Mersino Dewatering, and Trijicon, Inc. See Exhibit A.¹⁴ These employers are among the wide range of companies identified in the record that have objected to providing contraceptive coverage under the ACA and are not subject to State coverage laws, either because they are located in States without such laws or because they use plans subject to ERISA preemption. See id. While Defendants do not provide (or even have) information about many employers that will use the exemptions, see 82 Fed. Reg. at 47815-21, these companies employ tens of thousands of people across the country, including in the Plaintiff and Amici States. See Exhibit A.¹⁵

¹⁵ For example, the record identifies the following large litigating employers (with over 100 employees) that Defendants expect will utilize the Religious Exemption and are located in the Amici States: Alliance Home of Carlisle, Autocam Medical, Belmont Abbey College, Conestoga Wood Specialties Corp., Crown College, Dordt College, Franciscan Alliance, Geneva College, Hobby Lobby Stores Inc., Tyndale House Publishers Inc., and Westminster Theological Seminary. The record provides comparatively little information about the

3. The Rules Will Result in More Women Receiving Care Through State-Funded Programs.

The RIA estimates the direct cost of providing replacement care and services for women who lose employer-sponsored coverage as a result of the Rules at between $18.5 and $63.8 annually. See 82 Fed. Reg. at 47821, 47823-24. States will bear a significant share of this cost. As Defendants acknowledge—in attempting to downplay the Rules' impact on women and their families—women who lose coverage as a result of the Rules will receive care and services through state-funded programs. See, e.g., 82 Fed. Reg. at 47803. Millions of women across the country who receive coverage through an employer-sponsored plan are also eligible for a range of state-funded programs.

Among Plaintiff and Amici States, eligibility limits for state-sponsored programs extend up to 300% of the Federal Poverty Level ("FPL") (and in limited circumstances beyond), with many such programs falling in the range of 200% to 250% of FPL.¹⁶ With the 2018 FPL set at $20,780 for a family of three, $25,100 accommodated employers that Defendants indicate will be responsible for most of the Rules' impact. See 82 Fed. Reg. at 47820-21.

for a family of four, and higher for larger families, see 83 Fed. Reg. 2642, 2643 (Jan. 18, 2018), this means that many women earning more than $40,000 per year and even some women earning over $70,000 may be eligible under these programs. State programs typically fall into three categories: Medicaid, Medicaid Family Planning Expansion, and Title X/State Family Planning. Coverage through employer-sponsored insurance generally does not render women ineligible, particularly where coverage has been declined by the employer, though not all States serve as secondary payers under their Medicaid programs. As shown in Exhibit B, a significant number of women with employer-sponsored insurance will be income-eligible for coverage under state programs when their employers choose to avail themselves of the exemptions created by the Rules. Overall, for the Plaintiff and Amici States included in the estimate, there are 5,731,912 incomeeligible women, with 3,504,844 in self-funded plans. In Plaintiff States alone, 2,868,063 women are income-eligible, with 1,513,221 in self-funded plans.

Several States will actually be required to fund coverage for women under the States' existing Medicaid programs. State Medicaid programs can and do serve as secondary payers for eligible individuals even if they have other forms of insurance. Using the same criteria as with the analysis above, but shifting the FPL to the basic Medicaid program income threshold (138% FPL)¹⁷, approximately 1,170,421 eligible women across twelve States can be identified.

The Amici States' experience confirms that women who cannot utilize existing health care coverage (particularly when it comes to reproductive health) routinely seek coverage from state-funded programs, including at community health centers. In fact, many women who lose coverage because of the Rules will already be utilizing such programs. In Massachusetts, for example, the State Medicaid program, MassHealth, already covers more than 150,000 residents with inadequate commercial insurance. For these women, there will be no need to "seek out" state-funded care—they will automatically receive replacement coverage.

4. States Will Bear Increased Health Care Costs Associated with Unintended Pregnancies and Negative Health Outcomes.

The reduction in access to contraception caused by the Rules will also lead to an increase in unintended pregnancies and negative health outcomes for women and children. This will impose additional costs on States, which already spend billions of dollars annually on unintended pregnancies. The fact that women who lose contraceptive coverage because of the Rules will retain the balance of coverage provided by their employer-sponsored plans will not insulate States from harm. Increased health care costs will be passed on to the States through Medicaid and other programs that provide wrap-around coverage and reimbursement for deductibles, co-insurance, emergency care and other amounts and services not covered by primary insurance. On

5. States Are Not Required to Identify a "Particular Woman" in Order to Establish Standing.

Defendants' insistence that the Plaintiff States identify a "particular woman" who will receive state-funded care as a result of the Rules in order to have Article III standing, see Defendants' Br. 27-28, 38 (hereinafter "Br."), is both incorrect and misguided. As the Supreme Court has recognized, it is untenable to require States to set out the "precise metes and bounds" of threatened injuries before they occur. Massachusetts, 549 U.S. at 523 n. 21. Whether States can meet Defendants' contrived bar "has nothing to do" with the likelihood that they will be harmed by the Rules. Id.

The RIA itself—with its conclusion that tens of thousands of women will lose coverage, many eligible for state-funded programs, as described above—establishes that the Rules present a concrete threat of harm to State interests. See 82 Fed. Reg. 47,815-24. Nothing more is required to establish standing. See Harris v. Board of Supervisors, Los Angeles Cty., 366 F.3d 754, 762 (9th Cir. 2004) (plaintiff situated "in the path of likely danger" caused by planned state action has standing); Covington v. Jefferson Cty., 358 F.3d 626, 638 (9th Cir. 2004) ("[E]vidence [of] a concrete risk of harm…is sufficient for injury in fact."); Central Delta Water Agency v. United States, 306 F.3d 938, 949-50 (9th Cir. 2002) ("[A] credible threat of harm is sufficient to constitute actual injury for standing purposes.").

Defendants' position, if adopted, would compel States to wait until after they have suffered irreparable harm to challenge the Rules. See Harris, 366 F.3d at 762. In the unlikely event that a State will be able to identify a "particular woman," that could occur only after care has been provided and State funds expended. The Rules do not require employers to provide States advance notice before they drop coverage; in fact, the Rules do not require employers to provide any special notice even to their employees. See, e.g., 82 Fed. Reg. at 47808-09. Nor are women required to provide States advance notice of their intent to seek care from a state-funded program. And more generally, there is nothing in existing laws, regulations, or reporting structures that would ever result in a "particular woman" being identified to her State as utilizing a program because of the Rules. Yet it is absolutely clear—from Defendants' own analyses—that such women will exist if the Rules are allowed to go into effect.

C. Defendants' Violation of the Administrative Procedure Act's Notice and Comment Requirements Constitutes a Separate Legally Cognizable and Irreparable Harm to the States.

Defendants' procedural violation of the Administrative Procedure Act ("APA") also confers Article III standing on the States. "To satisfy the injury in fact requirement, a plaintiff asserting a procedural injury must show that the procedures in question are designed to protect some threatened concrete interest of his that is the ultimate basis of his standing." Citizens for Better Forestry v. U.S. Dep't of Agric., 341 F.3d 961, 969 (9th Cir. 2003) (quoting Public Citizen v. Dep't of Transp., 316 F.3d 1002, 1015 (9th Cir. 2003)). As the District Court concluded, Defendants unlawfully promulgated the Rules without following the APA's noticeand-comment requirements, 5 U.S.C. § 553. See 281 F. Supp. 3d 806, 824-29 (N.D. Cal. 2017). And, as discussed, the Rules affect concrete State interests: they will have a severe impact on the health, finances, and wellbeing of thousands of residents, their families and communities, and will impose substantial costs on the States. See supra, at 6-15. The States had a right to raise these issues with Defendants through the notice-and-comment process before the Rules went into effect—at an "early stage" of the rulemaking process when Defendants were likely to give "real consideration to alternative ideas." State of N.J., Dept of Envt'l Prot. Agency v. E.P.A., 626 F.2d 1038, 1049 (D.C. Cir. 1980). By unlawfully issuing the Rules as interim final rules, Defendants deprived the States of their right to "participate in and influence" the regulatory process, undermining their ability to protect their interests and those of their residents. Id. at 1050.

This harm is, moreover, irreparable, justifying the District Court's issuance of a preliminary injunction. The purposes of the notice-and-comment requirements are "(1) to ensure that agency regulations are tested via exposure to diverse public comment, (2) to ensure fairness to affected parties, and (3) to give affected parties an opportunity to develop evidence in the record to support their objections to the rule and thereby enhance the quality of judicial review." Int'l Union, United Mine Workers of Am. v. Mine Safety & Health Admin., 407 F.3d 1250, 1259 (D.C. Cir. 2005). By bypassing required rulemaking procedures, Defendants deprived States of the opportunity to object to, remedy, or develop further record evidence regarding the Rules' deficiencies. See 281 F. Supp. 3d at 829-30 ("Plaintiffs are not only likely to suffer irreparable procedural harm in the absence of a preliminary injunction, they already have done so."); N. Mariana Islands v. United States, 686 F. Supp. 2d 7, 17-19 (D.D.C. 2009) (failure to provide notice and accept public comment, as required by APA, constituted irreparable harm); Citizens for Better Forestry v. U.S. Dep't of Agric., 481 F. Supp. 2d 1059, 1100 (N.D. Cal. 2007) ("The irreparable harm in this case stems from the agency's failure to follow the statutes' procedural mandates, which required it.... to open the rule up to public notice and comment.").

There is no adequate remedy for this injury other than injunctive relief. Providing the States a late, post-implementation opportunity to comment on the rules is no substitute for proper notice-and-comment rulemaking. See Paulsen v. Daniels, 413 F.3d. 999, 1004 (9th Cir. 2005) ("It is antithetical to the structure and purpose of the APA for an agency to implement a rule first, and then seek comment later."). Among other issues, there is no reasonable possibility that Defendants will give meaningful consideration to the States' objections to the Rules now. Agencies are particularly unlikely to give consideration to postimplementation comments where, as here, the regulations are "complex and farreaching" and would be burdensome to unwind. N. Mariana Islands, 686 F. Supp. 2d at 17; see also Conservation Law Foundation, Inc. v. Busey, 79 F.3d 1250, 1271 (1st Cir. 1996) (agencies' failure to follow rulemaking procedures constitutes irreparable harm where the agencies' actions cause them to "become entrenched in a decision . . . because they have made commitments or taken action to implement the...decision"). Defendants' actions bear out this concern. The Rules were drafted to respond to issues raised by employers in a number of pending cases. On the first business day after the Rules were published in the Federal Register, Defendants agreed to dismiss those pending cases. See, e.g., Joint Motion by the Parties to Withdraw Case, David Zubik, et al. v. Burwell et al., Nos. 14-1376 & 14-1377 (3d Cir. Oct 16, 2017). Defendants have thus already demonstrated their complete commitment to these "interim" Rules.

II. The District Court Properly Issued a Nationwide Preliminary Injunction.

The proper remedy for Defendants' failure to comply with the APA was a nationwide preliminary injunction barring the Rules from taking effect pending a final determination on the merits. The District Court had the authority under Article III to halt implementation of a uniform, national policy promulgated in violation of the APA's procedural safeguards. And it appropriately exercised its broad discretion to fashion relief that preserved the status quo, provided complete relief to the parties, and forestalled the harms that would otherwise be inflicted on women and States nationwide.

A. Plaintiff States Have Standing to Seek a Nationwide Injunction.

Defendants object to the scope of the injunction by claiming that the Plaintiff States lack Article III standing to obtain relief on behalf of entities other than themselves. See Br. 68. That argument is, as the Seventh Circuit recently put it, "a non-starter." City of Chicago v. Sessions, 888 F.3d 272, 289 (7th Cir. 2018) (upholding a nationwide preliminary injunction). To come within a federal court's Article III jurisdiction, "a plaintiff must demonstrate standing for each claim [it] seeks to press and for each form of relief that is sought," whether the relief be in the form of damages, injunctive relief, or declaratory relief. Town of Chester v. Laroe Estates, Inc., 137 S. Ct. 1645, 1650 (2017) (emphasis added). Thus, "a plaintiff who has standing to seek damages must also demonstrate standing to pursue injunctive relief." Id. But once a plaintiff has established that it has standing for each claim and each form of relief, Article III imposes no further restraint on the scope of an injunction that a District Court may order. To the contrary, "[t]he Supreme Court has repeatedly emphasized the broad equitable powers of the federal courts to shape equitable remedies to the necessities of particular cases." S.E.C. v. Wencke, 622 F.2d 1363, 1371 (9th Cir. 1980).

This case is of a piece with that settled doctrine. Once the District Court correctly determined that the Plaintiff States had Article III standing to pursue their APA claims and seek equitable relief, see 281 F. Supp. 3d at 821-22, it had broad authority, reviewed only for abuse of discretion, to issue a preliminary injunction tailored to the necessities of the case. See United States v. Schiff, 379 F.3d 621, 625 (9th Cir. 2004) ("The scope of a preliminary injunction is...reviewed for abuse of discretion."). Its exercise of that authority is consistent with numerous decisions from the Supreme Court, this Court, and other Courts of Appeals that have upheld nationwide preliminary injunctions without raising, or by affirmatively rejecting, Article III concerns. See, e.g., Trump v. Int'l Refugee Assistance Project, 137 S.

Ct. 2080, 2087-88 (2017); City of Chicago, 888 F.3d at 289-90; Hawaii v. Trump, 859 F.3d 741, 787-88 (9th Cir. 2017) (per curiam), vacated as moot on appeal, 874 F.3d 1112 (9th Cir. 2017); Earth Island Inst. v. Ruthenbeck, 490 F.3d 687, 699 (9th Cir. 2007), aff'd in part & rev'd in part on other grounds by Summers v. Earth Island Inst., 555 U.S. 488 (2009); Paulsen, 413 F.3d at 1008.

B. The District Court Did Not Abuse Its Discretion in Enjoining the Rules Nationwide.

Because Article III creates no barrier to the issuance of a nationwide injunction, the only question for this Court is whether the District Court abused its discretion in crafting the scope of the preliminary injunction. It did not. The District Court correctly applied the rule that legally deficient regulations are invalidated in their entirety, not as applied only to the plaintiffs; it ensured that the Plaintiff States obtained complete relief for their injuries; and it properly preserved the status quo pending final disposition.

"[W]hen a reviewing court determines that agency regulations are unlawful, the ordinary result is that the rules are vacated—not that their application to the individual petitioners is proscribed." Hawaii, 859 F.3d at 788 (quoting Nat'l Mining Ass'n v. U.S. Army Corps of Eng'rs, 145 F.3d 1399, 1409 (D.C. Cir. 1998)). Likewise, "when a regulation is not promulgated in compliance with the APA, the regulation is invalid." Paulsen, 413 F.3d at 1008 (quoting Idaho Farm Bureau Fed'n v. Babbitt, 58 F.3d 1392, 1405 (9th Cir. 1995)). That settled rule follows directly from the APA, which empowers courts to not only "hold unlawful," but also to "set aside," legally infirm "agency action." 5 U.S.C. § 706(2). Contrary to Defendants' argument, see Br. 70-71, the rule does not change because the relief in this case is preliminary rather than final. Indeed, this Court recently upheld a nationwide preliminary injunction forbidding enforcement of Executive Order 13780, which banned entry of foreign nationals from seven majority-Muslim countries into the United States. See Hawaii, 859 F.3d at 788. The Supreme Court, in turn, approved that preliminary relief not only for the named plaintiffs, but also for all entities nationwide that are "similarly situated" to those plaintiffs. See Trump, 137 S. Ct. at 2087-88; see also City of Chicago, 888 F.3d at 288-89. Thus, the preliminarily injunction here not only was authorized by the APA, but also accords with the default rule that unlawful agency actions are invalidated across the board.

Nor would an injunction limited to California, Delaware, Maryland, New York, and Virginia fully redress the injuries the Rules will inflict on the Plaintiff States. As Defendants recognize, Br. 68, "injunctive relief should...provide complete relief to the plaintiffs." Madsen v. Women's Health Ctr., Inc., 512 U.S. 753, 765 (1994) (quoting Califano v. Yamasaki, 442 U.S. 682, 702 (1979)). Thus, "an injunction is not necessarily made overbroad by extending the benefit or protection to persons other than prevailing parties in the lawsuit—even if it is not a class action—if such breadth is necessary to give the prevailing parties the relief to which they are entitled." Bresgal v. Brock, 843 F.2d 1163, 1170-71 (9th Cir. 1987) (emphasis in original).²² The Rules will inflict concrete fiscal harm on the Plaintiff States, as women who lose contraceptive coverage are forced to obtain contraception at state-funded clinics or through state Medicaid programs. See supra, at 6-15. Some of these women will likely work for out-of-state employers. Significant numbers of Maryland, Virginia, and Delaware residents, in particular, travel each day to jobs in neighboring States—500,000 Maryland residents, or 18% of the workforce; 353,000 Virginia residents, or 10% of the workforce; and 65,000 Delaware residents, or 16% of the workforce.²³ A preliminary injunction limited to the Plaintiff States would not prevent employers in neighboring States from claiming one of the exemptions and dropping contraceptive coverage for their employees, who will in turn seek contraceptive care funded by the Plaintiff States.

²³ U.S. Census Bureau, Out-of-State and Long Commutes: 2011, American Community Survey Reports, at 10 & tbl. 6 (Feb. 2013), https://www.census.gov/prod/2013pubs/acs-20.pdf. Similarly, 3% of New York's workforce, or 234,000 residents, and 0.5% of California's workforce, or 76,000 residents, work for employers in neighboring States. Id.

A broad injunction is therefore necessary to provide complete relief to the Plaintiff States.²⁴

This Court has, moreover, applied this principle to uphold a nationwide injunction when an injunction limited to the plaintiffs "would not cure the statutory violations identified." Hawaii, 859 F.3d at 788. As the District Court rightly concluded, the Rules are unlawful in all of their applications, because Defendants' failure to provide advance notice of and accept written comments on the Rules violated the rights guaranteed by the APA to the Plaintiff States, the Amici States, and every American nationwide. See 281 F. Supp. 3d at 832. That conclusion, reached as a matter of law, is not fact-dependent and would not change if addressed in lawsuits brought by different plaintiffs in different jurisdictions. Unlike a case involving the "reasonableness of searches or the excessiveness of force," this is not a case in which "the context of different factual scenarios will better inform the legal principle." City of Chicago, 888 F.3d at 291. "[N]arrow question[s] of law," like those presented this lawsuit, are therefore "more likely to lend [themselves] to broader injunctive relief." *Id.*²⁵ And issuance of a nationwide injunctive relief was particularly appropriate when, as here, the APA claim was advanced by Plaintiff States and supported by Amici States that, together, represent nearly half the population of the United States. See California v. Health and Human Servs., No. 4:17-cv-05783-HSG, Doc. 74 (N.D. Cal., Dec. 6, 2017) (amici curiae brief of 14 States and the District of Columbia).

Defendants fret that the issuance of a nationwide injunction "threaten[s] to bring all other cases to a halt and depriv[e] other courts of differing perspectives on important questions." Br. 71. But the Supreme Court has rejected the "extreme position" that nationwide relief is impermissible simply because it might "foreclos[e] adjudication by a number of different courts and judges." Califano, 442 U.S. at 702. And the litigation in this very case shows that Defendants' concerns are unfounded. Understanding that the Rules will harm women nationwide, plaintiffs filed suit across the country shortly after the Rules became effective. After a District Court in Pennsylvania issued a nationwide preliminary injunction forbidding enforcement of the Rules in Pennsylvania v. Trump, 281 F. Supp. 3d 553 (E.D. Pa. 2017), two other cases proceeded apace in California and Massachusetts, respectively issuing the separate nationwide injunction in the decision below, and reaching final judgment on the merits following cross-motions for summary judgment. See 281 F. Supp. 3d 806 (N.D. Cal. 2017); Massachusetts v. U.S. Dept. of Health & Human Servs., 2018 WL 1257762 (D. Mass. March 12, 2018). Each of those decisions is now under review in different Courts of Appeals. See Nos. 17-3752, 18-1253 (3d Cir.); Doc. No. 91, 1:17-cv-11930-NMG (D. Mass.) (notice of appeal). The deliberative development of the law is not, as Defendants fear, impaired by a District Court's decision to enjoin unlawful interim final regulations that apply uniformly nationwide.

Ultimately, in crafting the scope of the injunction, the District Court was mindful that its purpose was "to preserve the status quo and the rights of the parties until a final judgment issues in the cause." U.S. Philips Corp. v. KBC Bank N.V., 590 F.3d 1091, 1094 (9th Cir. 2010); see 281 F. Supp. 3d at 832 (the nationwide injunction "maintains the status quo that existed before the implementation of the likely invalid 2017 IFRs"). The Rules represent a represent a stark departure from the status quo, which had both ensured that women retain seamless access to contraceptive coverage and accommodated sincerely held religious beliefs. A nationwide injunction appropriately preserves the rights of the thousands women nationwide expected to lose to contraceptive coverage as a result of the Rules, see 82 Fed. Reg. at 47823, as well as the rights of the States expected to assume the costs of their contraceptive care, see id. at 47803.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court should affirm the judgment of the District Court.

Number of Women with Employer-Sponsored Insurance
Who Are Income-Eligible for State-Funded Contraceptive Coverage¹

State	Insured, Income- Eligible Women Between the Ages of 15 and 45 ²	Percent of Enrollees Covered Under a Self- Funded Plan ³	Insured, Income- Eligible Women Between the Ages of 15 and 45 in Self- Funded Plans ⁴
California	1,415,247	41.6%	588,743
Connecticut	151,198	59.3%	89,660
Delaware	45,491	68.3%	31,070
Hawaii	88,650	37.6%	33,332
Illinois	612,778	63.3%	387,888
Iowa	221,138	57.4%	126,933
Maine	45,678	57.7%	26,356
Maryland	277,509	49.6%	137,644
Massachusetts	365,762	56.6%	207,021
Minnesota	183,765	N/A	183,765
New Mexico	84,771	69.1%	58,577
New York	811,392	53.9%	437,340

Vermont	23,575	60.2%	14,192
Virginia	318,424	N/A	318,424
Washington	317,669	57.4%	182,342
Total	5,731,912		3,504,844

¹ These numbers are derived from the Interactive Public Use Microdata Series (https://usa.ipums.org/usa/) which provides detailed data from the U.S. Census Bureau's American Community Survey (2015), the State Health Access Data Assistance Center, and the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality. Each person is assigned to a household health insurance unit ("HIU"). The incomes of all members of the same HIU are summed and divided by the FPL for the relevant household size to generate the income of the HIU as a percentage of the FPL. For Column 2, the number reflects women who: (a) are between the ages of 15 and 45;

(b) have employer/union provided health insurance; and (c) have HIU income under the relevant percent of the FPL to qualify for that State's program. That initial estimate is further refined (Column 4) based on the percentage of enrollees in self-insured employer plans in each State (Column 3), provided that the State has a contraceptive equity law. We recognize that other data sources and methodologies may achieve different results. Whatever the precise calculations, however, the ultimate conclusion—that millions of women with employer-sponsored insurance are income-eligible for state-funded programs—remains accurate.

² For each State on the list, the following is the highest FPL for a broadly applicable program that is at least partially state funded: California—200% (Family PACT); Connecticut—263% (Medicaid Family Planning Expansion); Delaware—250% (Title X); Hawaii—250% (Title X); Illinois—250% (Title X); Iowa—300% (Family Planning Program); Maine—214% (Medicaid Family Planning Program); Maryland—250% (Title X); Massachusetts—300% (Sexual Reproductive Health Program); Minnesota—200% (Family Planning Program); New Mexico—250% (Family Planning Program); New York—223% (Family Benefit Program); Oregon—250% (Oregon Contraceptive Care); Pennsylvania—220% (Medicaid Family Planning Expansion); Vermont—200% (Department of Health Global Commitment Investment Grant); Virginia—200% (Plan First Program); Washington—260% (Take Charge Program).

⁴ All of the listed States, except Minnesota, Pennsylvania and Virginia have contraceptive equity laws that generally require state-regulated plans to cover all FDA-approved forms of contraception.

Number of Women with Employer-Sponsored Insurance Who Are Income Eligible for Medicaid as Secondary Payer for Contraceptive Services⁵

State	Insured, Income- Eligible Women Between the Ages of 15 and 45 ⁶	Percent of Enrollees Covered Under a Self- Funded Plan	Insured, Income- Eligible Women Between the Ages of 15 and 45 in Self- Funded Plans
Connecticut	85,157	59.3%	50,498
Delaware	25,163	68.3%	17,186
Hawaii	44,278	37.6%	16,649
Illinois	340,905	63.3%	215,793
Maryland	168,016	49.6%	83,336
Massachusetts	195,584	56.6%	110,701
Minnesota	127,349	N/A	127,349

Washington	160,796	57.4%	92,297
Total	1,674,253		1,170,421

⁵ The Medicaid program serves as a secondary payer for contraceptive services in each of the States listed in Table 2.

⁶ For all States listed in this table, the relevant Medicaid FPL used to calculate the figures is 138%.
