Healthier World

Introduction

Healthier World Corporation is currently headquartered in Eastham, MA and is a privately held non-profit Massachusetts corporation. Healthier World wishes to engage in the distribution of cannabis containing products ranging from plants to oils to edibles and apparatus for the treatment of pain management conditions in humans and in some cases animals. Cannabis has a long history and recent legality as a non-steroidal, pain managing therapeutic that has been available for hundreds of years but has only been made available for medical and recreational use in the state of Massachusetts recently and is a preferred and effective treatment for pain associated with cancer, fibromyalgia, sleep disorders, anxiety, Post Traumatic Stress Disorder, Parkinson's Disease, Epilepsy, Dravet's Syndrome and many more disorder without the severe side effects associated with steroid treatments and other conventional treatments.

Securing Healthier World's likelihood of success is the fact that the management team has successfully managed the production and distribution of animal over the counter pharmaceuticals remedies to treat animal skin disorders for over two decades. The most common therapy is steroids which can lead to long term side effects and even death. The safety and efficacy of the Company's flagship product, alpha1-antitrypsin.(AAT) has clearly demonstrated efficacy worldwide and is well accepted and will be continued to be pursued and perhaps evolve into a companion therapy for cannabinoids.

AAT has demonstrated efficacy in many other lucrative therapeutic areas that cannabinoids share. but due to supply constraints have not been pursued. The Company can profit from and enter markets utilizing accessible cannabinoids in each of the listed disease areas with multi-tiered partnering opportunities. The Company has developed a clinical roll-out strategy, prioritizing their applications by those that present the quickest path to market. The targeted applications are those that are subject to the most important regulatory considerations, such as epilepsy, pain management and cancer.

In addition, The Company wishes to successfully introduce and proliferate CBD availability in the state of Massachusetts. CBD hemp oil has a huge range of potential health benefits and uses, including reducing pain, soothing anxiety, fighting cancer, improving mood, eliminating depression, preventing inflammatory arthritis, protecting the immune system, balancing the metabolism, aiding sleep disorders, and healing the skin, among others. CBD oil can also be used in many different ways and has a variety of applications for natural health without the euphoric effects of its sister product THC.

Cannabis as a Treatment for Pain and other Conditions

Cannabis has positive effects on pain for a vast variety of human condition ranging from cancer to anxiety. Cannabinoids have a calming effect on the bodies' response to degranulation of mast cells which release trypsin, tryptase, chymase and histamine release factors. THC (as well as CBD) as pharmacologically effective components and have been proven effective and their impact has only been realized in the last decade.

Healthier World has invested in proprietary cultivation system of creating cannabis containing products that can be used safely and effectively. With more than $1 Million invested over the last year of research and development, The Company has successfully planned for the developed and manufactured of cannabis containing products all within the guidelines established by the state of Massachusetts. It should be noted that Healthier World will only acquire products from properly licensed cultivators and manufacturers in the state of Massachusetts for medical use and adult use should the laws provide for a legal market place.

Healthier World. offers products that can significantly impact on different aspects of the cannabis healthcare business. Most importantly, the novel products provide solutions for unmet medical or industrial needs and do so in a cost-efficient manner. The company seeks to commercialize products that both exceed standard market performance and meet cost-containment pressures. This is true for virtually all commercial applications pursued by the Company pending final approval by the state.

The Science

Leading the entry to safe cannabis production the Company's intends to employ all measures outlined by the state of Massachusetts.

In addition to the above, the Company intends to make cannabis products available for the treatment of the following.

- Cancer
- Fibromyalgia
- Pain Management
- Anxiety
- PTSD
- Dravet's Syndrome

- Sleep Disorders
 - Menstrual pain and discomfort
 - Others

EXTENDED MARKET APPLICATIONS

A Natural Alternative –Cannabis derivatives are an alternative to current pain treatment products like opioids and is a logical and medically supported preferred option. By offering a therapy without many of the severe side-effects associated with opioids the current opioid epidemic may be better controlled or eliminated.

Otitis Media/Externa – Cannabis has been proven a potent inhibitor of pain associated with Otitis Media in humans (Antonelli et al, 2005). The Company believes, therefore, that there is a strong market for rAAT in combination with cannabinoids for the treatment of OM. The Company has begun the FDA process with its FDA #010641 for otitis externa in animals.

Market Opportunities:

In 2017, it estimated that over $12.75 billion will be spent on cannabis containing products worldwide.

Estimated Breakdown:

Plant	$6.01 billion
Vapors and Supplies	$4.98 billion
Other Services	$2.73 billion

Development Plan

As discussed in detail over the following pages The Company's future development plans can be simplified into four steps:

- 1) Obtain approval as a RND in the state of Massachusetts
- 2) Comply with all state and local municipality guidelines

- 3) Provide products that excel in quality and performance
 - 4) Explore potential expansion should the product advance to simple adult use

Research has shown that there is ample precedent for Healthier World's development strategy in the marketplace. In fact, statistics indicate that big pharma will have acquired 41% of all rights to seed bearing cannabis material increasing markets potential to nearly double current estimated revenues.

Health World's management advantages include:

- ✓ Over 20 years of pharmaceutical experience
- ✓ Quality Control
- ✓ Consultants and staff with knowledge in the disease indications to be treated
- ✓ Rich background of data to meet Massachusetts standards for future use

Efficacy Data

Pain Management through cannabis has been the subject of increased study over the last two decades with over 400 human and animal studies demonstrating safety and efficacy. Below is a small summary of where cannabinoids may be applied.

- Wachter and Lezdey (1992) found beneficial effects of topical AAT in the treatment of atopic dermatitis (see Exhibit 4) and psoriasis in humans with pain management benefits.
- Chalker (1993) reported a successful human clinical trial utilizing pain management techniques to treat eczema and presented this information to the World Dermatologic Conference (Toronto, Canada, 1993).
- Berger et al. (1996) demonstrated beneficial effects in the treatment of cystic fibrosis and recommends cannabinoids over more evasive pain treatment methods.
- Forteza et al. (1996) reported positive results with cannabinoids in the treatment of asthma in both sheep models and humans

- Avidano et al. (1998) quantified the pain effects human patients suffering from otitis media (ear aches)
 - Johnson & Johnson (1998) conducted successful clinical studies highlighting therapeutic benefits in pain associated with wound healing

Abstract

BACKGROUND:

Chronic pain is one of the most common reasons for therapeutic cannabis use.

OBJECTIVES:

To describe therapeutic cannabis, use among patients with chronic pain.

METHODS:

Patients with chronic pain who voluntarily indicated that they used cannabis therapeutically completed a questionnaire about the type of cannabis used, the mode of administration, the amount used and the frequency of use, and their perception of the effectiveness of cannabis on a set of pain-associated symptoms and side effects. The study was approved by the McGill University Health Centre Research Ethics Board.

RESULTS:

Fifteen patients (10 male) were interviewed (median age 49.5 years, range 24 to 68 years). All patients smoked herbal cannabis for therapeutic reasons (median duration of use six years, range two weeks to 37 years). Seven patients only smoked at night-time (median dose eight puffs, range two to eight puffs), and eight patients used cannabis mainly during the day (median dose three puffs, range two to eight puffs); the median frequency of use was four times per day (range one to 16 times per day). Twelve patients reported improvement in pain and mood, while 11 reported improvement in sleep. Eight patients reported a 'high'; six denied a 'high'. Tolerance to cannabis was not reported.

CONCLUSIONS:

The results of this self-selected case series must be interpreted with caution. Small doses of smoked cannabis may improve pain, mood and sleep in some patients with chronic pain. Clinical trials are warranted to test these effects. Further prospective studies should examine the patterns and prevalence of cannabis use among chronic pain populations.

Appendix I - The Company Management Team & Expert Advisory Board

Jarett Lezdey, President - Co-Founder of The Company - Mr. Lezdey has had a 25-year career in drug discovery and development. His focus was on both specific clinical programs for major therapeutic indications and the supporting technologies required for innovation. Prior to forming The Company, Mr. Lezdey was Chief Executive Officer and President of the Company Sciences which focused on the licensing and development of recombinant alpha1 antitrypsin. Through his various relationships over the years, he has put together a team of doctors and scientist dedicated to AAT development. In 1997, Mr. Lezdey co-founded Arriva a company that was recently offered $300M for its technology in 2010. As President of the Company, Mr. Lezdey was instrumental in the successful completion of two rounds of financing raising in excess of $12M needed to carry out the Company's molecular biology for its recombinant AAT. Lezdey is also a co-inventor of several anti-microbial products who have seen success overseas and through QVC and the infomercial markets.

Darren Lezdey, Vice President of Clinical Development - Co-Founder of The Company - Mr. Lezdey has over 15 years' experience in the clinical area of The Company inhibitors. In 1998, Mr. Lezdey was invited to speak before the FDA Blood Products Advisory Board on behalf of recombinant AAT projects. This marked the first time in FDA history that a biotechnology company was invited to present. In 1997, Mr. Lezdey co-founded Arriva Pharmaceuticals and assumed the position of Vice-President of Clinical Development and assisted Arriva in its first $11M fund raise. To date, Mr. Lezdey has worked in the clinical area for The Company by assembling a team of scientist that created the world's first "human-like" AAT derived from yeast cells.

VTU Sciences - Consulting – Belgium based VTU's team of researchers led technology transfer, scale-up and manufacturing projects for large pharmaceutical companies such as Merck, Glaxo and others. Applying a similar formula for success to The Company intends to explore the manufacture of cannabinoids through recombinant yeast production and the manufacture of the highest quality of products..
