- Consider Placing a Fraud Alert on Credit Report: A fraud alert informs creditors of possible fraudulent activity within your report and requests that the creditor contact you prior to establishing any accounts in your name. The initial alert is free and will stay on your credit file for at least 90 days. Contact any of the three credit reporting agencies identified above to place a fraud alert on your credit report. For more information, visit <http://www.annualcreditreport.com> or contact the FTC or the credit reporting agencies listed above.
- Consider Placing a Security Freeze on Credit File: A security freeze (also known as a credit freeze) makes it harder for someone to open a new account in your name and prevents potential creditors from accessing your credit report without your consent. You must separately place a security freeze on your credit file with each credit reporting agency. To place a security freeze, you may be required to provide the consumer reporting agency with information that identifies you including your full name, Social Security number, date of birth, current and previous addresses, a copy of your state-issued identification card, and a recent utility bill, bank statement, or insurance statement. There is no charge to request a security freeze or to remove a security freeze. For more information, contact the FTC and/or the credit reporting agencies listed above.

- Consider Placing a Fraud Alert on Credit Report: A fraud alert informs creditors of possible fraudulent activity within your report and requests that the creditor contact you prior to establishing any accounts in your name. The initial alert is free and will stay on your credit file for at least 90 days. Contact any of the three credit reporting agencies identified above to place a fraud alert on your credit report. For more information, visit <http://www.annualcreditreport.com> or contact the FTC or the credit reporting agencies listed above.
- Consider Placing a Security Freeze on Credit File: A security freeze (also known as a credit freeze) makes it harder for someone to open a new account in your name and prevents potential creditors from accessing your credit report without your consent. You must separately place a security freeze on your credit file with each credit reporting agency. To place a security freeze, you may be required to provide the consumer reporting agency with information that identifies you including your full name, Social Security number, date of birth, current and previous addresses, a copy of your state-issued identification card, and a recent utility bill, bank statement, or insurance statement. There is no charge to request a security freeze or to remove a security freeze. For more information, contact the FTC and/or the credit reporting agencies listed above.
