Notice of Data Breach

Dear <<FirstName>> <<LastName>>,

We are writing to tell you about a data incident that may have exposed some of the personal information of the individual named above. Here at the Rothman Orthopaedic Institute, we take the protection and proper use of our community's personal information very seriously. For this reason, we are contacting you directly to explain the circumstances of the incident.

What happened?

On February 18, 2022, we discovered that a former employee of Rothman did not promptly return their Rothman laptop, cell phone, and certain work-related paperwork upon ending their employment with the organization. As is Rothman's policy, when an employee leaves the organization, they are required to return Rothman materials prior to conclusion of their notice period. Unfortunately, this employee's last day of employment with Rothman was February 18, 2022, and on this date they had failed to return their Rothman work materials. Of note, only the work-related paperwork contained personal information.

Because the individual was working remotely due to the COVID-19 pandemic, their maintenance of these materials and access to such information was within the scope of their employment. We have received all of these materials back from the former employee and do not have any reason to believe that the personal information contained in the paperwork was used for inappropriate purposes.

What information was involved?

The information that was briefly retained by the former employee may have included the abovementioned individual's personal information, including first and last name, address, date of birth, phone number, date of service, Rothman account/patient number, payment method (for credit card users, this includes the card type and last 4 numbers), bank name, account number, and routing number. We do not have evidence that suggests that Social Security Numbers were involved in this incident.

What we are doing.

We are taking this matter very seriously and have conducted a thorough investigation, which included the engagement of a forensics company. Please be assured that we are taking all reasonable steps to mitigate the circumstances resulting from this incident and to ensure an incident like this does not happen again.

Importantly, there is no evidence to date that personal information has been misused in any way as a result of this incident. Nevertheless, we care about the protection of our community's personal information and understand the concern that this situation may cause.

To help relieve concerns and restore confidence following this incident, we have secured the services of Kroll to provide identity monitoring at no cost to you for one year. Fraud Alerts. There are two types of fraud alerts you can place on your credit report to put your creditors on notice that you may be a victim of fraud—an initial alert and an extended alert. You may ask that an initial fraud alert be placed on your credit report if you suspect you have been, or are about to be, a victim of identity theft. An initial fraud alert stays on your credit report for at least one year. You may have an extended alert placed on your credit report if you have already been a victim of identity theft and you have the appropriate documentary proof. An extended fraud alert stays on your credit report for seven years. You can place a fraud alert on your credit report by contacting any of the three national credit reporting agencies.

Security Freeze. You have the ability to place a security freeze, also known as a credit freeze, on your credit report free of charge.

A security freeze is intended to prevent credit, loans and services from being approved in your name without your consent. To place a security freeze on your credit report, you may use an online process, an automated telephone line, or submit a written request to any of the three credit reporting agencies listed above. The following information must be included when requesting a security freeze (note that, if you are requesting a credit report for your spouse, this information must be provided for him/her as well): (1) full name, with middle initial and any suffixes; (2) Social Security number; (3) date of birth; (4) current address and any previous addresses for the past 5 years; and (5) any applicable incident report or complaint with a law enforcement agency or the Registry of Motor Vehicles. The request must also include a copy of a government-issued identification card and a copy of a recent utility bill or bank or insurance statement. It is essential that each copy be legible, and display your name, current mailing address, and the date of issue.
