Notice of Data Breach

Dear <<first_name>> <<middle_name>> <<last_name>> <<suffix>>,

We are writing to tell you about a data security incident that may have exposed some of your personal information. We take the protection and proper use of your information very seriously. For this reason, we are contacting you directly to explain the circumstances of the incident.

What happened?

On October 1, 2021, an unauthorized third party gained access to the American Retirement & Investment Strategies, LLC Microsoft O365 environment. Once inside the environment, the Threat Actor sent out malicious wire instructions in an attempt to redirect the transfer of funds. Upon learning of the unauthorized access, American Retirement & Reinvestment took immediate actions to stop further access to its O365 environment, including implementing multi-factor authentication, conducted a password change on the user accounts in question, and launched an internal investigation into this incident. American Retirement & Investment Strategies also retained independent IT security and forensics experts, electronic and digital data discovery consultants to assist in our investigation of the incident.

What information was involved?

The data that was subject to unauthorized access may have contained names, Social Security numbers and financial account numbers in combination with any required security code, access code, or password that is necessary to permit access to the accounts.

Fraud Alerts. There are two types of fraud alerts you can place on your credit report to put your creditors on notice that you may be a victim of fraud—an initial alert and an extended alert. You may ask that an initial fraud alert be placed on your credit report if you suspect you have been, or are about to be, a victim of identity theft. An initial fraud alert stays on your credit report for at least one year. You may have an extended alert placed on your credit report if you have already been a victim of identity theft and you have the appropriate documentary proof. An extended fraud alert stays on your credit report for seven years. You can place a fraud alert on your credit report by contacting any of the three national credit reporting agencies.

Security Freeze. You have the ability to place a security freeze, also known as a credit freeze, on your credit report free of charge.

A security freeze is intended to prevent credit, loans and services from being approved in your name without your consent. To place a security freeze on your credit report, you may use an online process, an automated telephone line, or submit a written request to any of the three credit reporting agencies listed above. The following information must be included when requesting a security freeze (note that, if you are requesting a credit report for your spouse, this information must be provided for him/her as well): (1) full name, with middle initial and any suffixes; (2) Social Security number; (3) date of birth; (4) current address and any previous addresses for the past 5 years; and (5) any applicable incident report or complaint with a law enforcement agency or the Registry of Motor Vehicles. The request must also include a copy of a government-issued identification card and a copy of a recent utility bill or bank or insurance statement. It is essential that each copy be legible, and display your name, current mailing address, and the date of issue.
