NOTICE OF INTENT

Thousands to protest Netanyahu visit

Israel’s leader in DC to address Congress

John Bacon, Jorge L. Ortiz, Christopher Cann, Riley Beggin and Rachel Barber
USA TODAY

WASHINGTON – Thousands of demonstrators were expected to gather Wednesday on Capitol Hill to protest the visit of Israel Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and to discourage Congress from further funding Israel’s war in Gaza.

The Israeli leader was to address a joint session of Congress on Wednesday afternoon at the request of House Speaker Mike Johnson, R-La.; House Minority Leader Hakeem Jeffries, D-N.Y.; Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer, D-N.Y.; and Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky.

“To highlight America’s solidarity with Israel, we invite you to share the Israeli government’s vision for defending democracy, combating terror, and establishing a just and lasting peace in the region,” the congressional leaders said.

But Netanyahu wouldn’t be speaking to a packed chamber. Dozens of Democratic lawmakers did not plan to attend the Israeli leader’s speech in protest of Israel’s ongoing war against Hamas in Gaza, which has led to mass civilian casualties and a humanitarian crisis.

A “diverse coalition” of more than 100 congressional interns anonymously signed a letter denouncing the address, and many pledged to call in sick in protest.

“As interns, we are united in our moral and ethical concerns regarding Prime Minister Netanyahu’s actions and policies in Gaza,” says the letter, which accused Netanyahu of “obstructing ceasefire negotiations, hindering humanitarian aid, and targeting civilian infrastructure.”

Netanyahu, who arrived in the U.S. on Monday, plans to meet with President Joe Biden on Thursday and former President Donald Trump on Friday. While Vice President Kamala Harris said she would be traveling Wednesday, an aide to Harris said the Democratic presidential frontrunner has plans to meet with Netanyahu separately.

The Israeli leader’s U.S. visit comes two months after the International Criminal Court announced arrest warrants for Netanyahu, Hamas leader Yahya Sinwar and others on charges of war crimes and crimes against humanity for both the Israeli-led war in Gaza and the Oct. 7 Hamas attack in Israel that sparked it. paign in the Gaza Strip has killed more than 39,000 people, according to the Gaza Health Ministry. In the Oct. 7 attack on Israel, more than 1,200 were killed and 253 hostages were taken, according to Israeli authorities.

In April, Congress approved a $95 billion foreign aid bill, including $17 billion for Israel and $9 billion in humanitarian aid for Gaza and elsewhere.

Labor unions petition White House, demanding peace

With multiple demonstrations expected Wednesday, more than 200 New York City police officers were sent to Washington to help provide security. NYPD Chief of Patrol John Chell said the department was providing some of its most highly trained officers at the request of Capitol police.

A group called T’ruah: The Rabbinic Call for Human Rights, was holding a prayer service and protest Wednesday morning near Union Station in downtown Washington. “It will be a spiritual, soulful, and song-full prayer space,” the group said on its website. “It will also be a protest that calls for an end to the war, a release of all hostages, and an end to the occupation.”

UnXeptable, an organization of Israeli expatriates, planned a protest at noon. “Netanyahu represents a danger to the state, to its democracy, to the hostages and to peace in the entire region,” the group said on its website.

In addition, several aid groups and other organizations had partnered to launch a mobile billboard that will drive around Washington on Wednesday with the message: “No more bombs for Netanyahu.”

A coalition of seven labor unions was rallying near the Capitol. The group, totaling millions of union members, sent a letter Tuesday to the White House demanding a truce in Gaza and for the U.S. to stop supplying weapons to Israel. Signatories included the Association of Flight Attendants, American Postal Workers Union, International Union of Painters, National Education Association, Service Employees International Union, United Electrical Workers and United Auto Workers.

Dozens of lawmakers boycott address

Dozens of Democratic lawmakers did not plan to attend the Israeli leader’s speech, including the second-ranking Senate Democrat, Sen. Dick Durbin, D-Ill., who said in a statement that Israel’s execution of the war in Gaza “is a brutal strategy beyond any acceptable level of self-defense.”

“I will stand by Israel, but I will not stand and cheer its current Prime Minister at tomorrow’s Joint Session,” Durbin said Tuesday.

Like Durbin, most of those who planned to skip the speech stressed their support for the state of Israel but condemned Netanyahu’s government and his approach to the war.

Sen. Chris Van Hollen, D-Md., who spoke for 45 minutes on the Senate floor Tuesday, distinguished between Israeli people and their leadership, who he condemned for refusing to accept a two-state solution for the region.

Netanyahu “remains the leader of the most extreme right-wing government coalition in the history of Israel,” Van Hollen said.

Others expressed disgust that Netanyahu was invited to speak in the first place: Rep. Rashida Tlaib, D-Mich., the only Palestinian member of Congress, accused Netanyahu of being “a war criminal committing genocide” in Gaza.

Some lawmakers in Washington simply said they had a conflict with the logistics of the speech – despite it being scheduled in the middle of what is typically an in-person work day in the nation’s capital.

Others said they were going to attend the joint session but weren’t pleased.

Rep. Jerry Nadler, D-N.Y., the most senior Jewish member of the House, wrote on X that Netanyahu “is the worst leader in Jewish history since the Maccabean king who invited the Romans into Jerusalem over 2100 years ago,” but said he planned to attend the speech out of respect for the state of Israel.

Investigation

regulations by failing to uphold the responsibilities of a supervisory member.” The allegation was categorized as “unfounded.”

In total, four state troopers and one Canton police officer have been placed under investigation stemming from the Read case.

Canton police officer Kevin Albert has been on leave since June after his text messages with Michael Proctor, the lead State Police investigator in the case, were scrutinized during her trial.

Kevin Albert is a brother of Canton Select Board member Chris Albert and retired Boston police officer Brian Albert, who then owned the house where O’Keefe was found dead outside in January 2022.

While testifying in the case, Proctor acknowledged that he and Kevin Albert texted about coordinating part of the O’Keefe investigation even though the Canton Police Department recused itself.

The texts also revealed that Proctor and Kevin Albert worked on a cold case together and went out drinking together after. Albert later sent Proctor a text asking if he had left his badge and gun in Proctor’s police cruiser.

Proctor has been suspended without pay following a duty status hearing. During the trial, he was questioned about inappropriate texts he had sent regarding Read during the investigation. He apologized to the jury for his “unprofessional” comments.

The case has drawn widespread national attention. Read’s defense claims that the charges against her are a result of a cover-up by law enforcement and that others involved framed Read for O’Keefe’s death.

Prosecutors say Read and O’Keefe had been drinking at a local bar with friends and acquaintances before they got into an argument. They say she hit him with her SUV outside the former home of Brian Albert, who was hosting an after-party, shortly before 12:30 a.m.

But Read’s lawyers say she dropped O’Keefe off at Brian Albert’s home and that O’Keefe was fatally beaten inside before his body was placed on the front lawn. They say she was then framed for his death.

Restrictions

emergency shelter.

“We have been saying for months now that the rapid growth of our Emergency Assistance shelter system is not sustainable,” Healey said. “Massachusetts is out of shelter space, and we simply cannot afford the current size of this system.”

The five-day limit comes one month after Healey visited the southern border to spread the message that Massachusetts has no more room for refugees, and weeks after her administration announced that migrants could no longer shelter overnight at Logan Airport.

Change to how homeless families will be prioritized for placement

The change will prioritize the following classes of homeless families over others for placement in Emergency Assistance shelters: those rendered homeless by no-fault evictions or sudden calamities such as floods or fires in Massachusetts, and those that have at least one veteran family member.

The Emergency Assistance program already prioritized homeless families with significant medical needs, newborn children or vulnerability to domestic violence and will continue to do so, according to the news release.

Programs aimed to divert homeless families from the overburdened shelter system will remain available to families without prioritization. They include up to two years of rent assistance, known as Home Base, and re-ticketing, by which the state pays for transportation to a friend or family living out of state who can provide housing.

It is unclear if the changes in prioritization aim at placing refugee families from out of country further down the list, thereby dissuading migrants from seeking shelter and services in Massachusetts. Healey’s office did not immediately respond to a request for comment, nor did the Office of Housing and Livable Communities.

Impacts of the state's homelessness crisis on Quincy

During the summer of 2023, the state opened a processing center and temporary shelter for homeless migrant families fleeing violence and extreme poverty on the campus of Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston.

The temporary shelter, which has room for 58 families, houses families for short stays as they wait for placement into the shelter system.

Since its opening, several hundred families have passed through the campus without causing any security issues or even drawing much notice from the surrounding community, according to city officials. The one incident that concerned nearby residents was a demonstration just outside campus by a neo-Nazi group opposing the migrants’ presence.

But with state shelters filled, Logan Airport closed to them and new limits on lengths of stay, the situation in Quincy has intensified, as service providers deposit homeless families, some against their will, at the Wollaston MBTA station, according to city officials and police.

Quincy Police Chief Mark Kennedy told The Patriot Ledger that his department has responded to calls from ENC asking for assistance with people reluctant to leave the shelter.

The standoff between guests and service providers has led to multiple calls and one arrest after someone threw a brick when asked to leave, Kennedy said. No one was injured.

RE: ACO LEAP Re-Certification

Dear Mrs. Eddy:

Congratulations! The Health Policy Commission (HPC) is pleased to inform you that Beth Israel Lahey Health Performance Network meets the requirements for ACO Certification under our Learning, Equity, and Patient-Centeredness (LEAP) standards. This certification is effective from January 1, 2024, through December 31, 2025.

The ACO Certification program, in alignment with other state agencies including MassHealth, is designed to accelerate care delivery transformation in Massachusetts and promote a high quality, efficient health system. ACOs participating in the program have met a set of objective criteria focused on core ACO capabilities demonstrating dedication to patient-centered care, use of evidence-based and data-driven strategies to improve care delivery, and commitment to addressing long-standing health inequities. Beth Israel Lahey Health Performance Network meets those criteria.

The HPC will promote Beth Israel Lahey Health Performance Network as a Certified ACO on our website and in our marketing and public materials. Enclosed you will find an ACO Certification logo for your organization to use in accordance with the attached Terms of Use. We hope you will use the logo on promotional materials when you highlight your ACO Certification to your patients, payers, and others.

The HPC looks forward to your continued engagement in the ACO Certification program over the next two years.

Thank you for your dedication to providing accountable, coordinated health care to your patients, and to continued learning and improvement over time. If you have any questions about this letter or the ACO Certification program, please do not hesitate to contact Mike Stanek, Associate Director, at HPC-Certification@mass.gov or (617) 757-1649.

Best wishes,
