BOARD OF REVIEW DECISION

Introduction and Procedural History of this Appeal

The employer appeals a decision by a review examiner of the Department of Unemployment Assistance (DUA) to deny the employer party status and relief of charges on an unemployment claim filed by a former employee. We review, pursuant to our authority under G.L. c. 151A, § 41, and affirm.

On June 6, 2019, the DUA initially determined that the employer would not be considered a party to further proceedings on the claimant's claim, because the information provided to the agency was inadequate and/or late.<sup>1</sup> The employer appealed and attended the hearing. In a decision rendered on August 9, 2019, the review examiner affirmed the agency determination, concluding that the employer's response was inadequate pursuant to G.L. c. 151A, § 38A, and, thus, the employer was not permitted to be a party to the claim and could not be relieved of charges paid out on the claim. The Board accepts the employer's application for review.

Ruling of the Board

After considering the recorded testimony and evidence from the hearing, the review examiner's decision, and the employer's appeal, we conclude that the review examiner's findings of fact are supported by substantial and credible evidence in the record.

The review examiner concluded that the employer's response was inadequate under G.L. c. 151A, § 38A, and, therefore, that the employer would not be considered a party to further proceedings on the claim for benefits. However, G.L. c. 151A, § 38A, does not provide for such penalty. Under G.L. c. 151A, § 38A, the applicable consequence for an inadequate submission is that the employer cannot be relieved of charges in the event that the claimant is erroneously paid benefits. As the employer received the DUA's questionnaire in a timely fashion and failed to provide information regarding the claimant's employment, we conclude that the employer was at fault for such failure, and, therefore, that it cannot be relieved of charges.

We also note, however, that G.L. c. 151A, § 38(b), was included on the Notice of Hearing. See Exhibit # 6, p. 2. This section of law was not addressed in the review examiner's analysis. Under G.L. c. 151A, § 38(b), a failure by the employer to timely respond to a "notice of claim" or to provide any other "pertinent" information requested by the DUA relative to a claim can result in loss of party status. As noted above, in this case, the employer did not provide specific information about the claimant's separation on the DUA's substantive questionnaire. During the hearing, the employer's operations manager did not know why the person who completed the questionnaire did not provide more information. The testimony from the hearing and the content of the appeal to the Board of Review suggest that there was an error when the questionnaire was completed. On this evidence, it cannot be concluded that the employer had good cause for failing to provide pertinent information about the claimant's separation. Therefore, under G.L. c. 151A, § 38(b), the employer is not to be considered a party to further proceedings on the claim for benefits.

The review examiner's decision is affirmed. The employer is denied party status pursuant to G.L. c. 151A, § 38(b), and it shall not be relieved of charges on account of the payment of benefits under this claim pursuant to G.L. c. 151A, § 38A.
