

The claimant filed a claim for benefits after she lost hours at her second job due to the COVID-19 shutdown, but she was still working full-time for the instant employer's public school system during the weeks encompassed by the 2019-20 and 2020-21 academic years. Because the claimant's gross weekly earnings from her part-time work for the employer's summer school and her work with her second employer during the summer of 2020 exceeded her weekly benefit amount plus earnings disregard, she was not in unemployment under G.L. c. 151A, § 1(r)(1), and she was not eligible for benefits.

Introduction and Procedural History of this Appeal

The claimant appeals a decision by a review examiner of the Department of Unemployment Assistance (DUA) to deny unemployment benefits. We review, pursuant to our authority under G.L. c. 151A, § 41, and affirm.

The claimant filed a claim for unemployment benefits with the DUA, effective April 5, 2020, which was denied in a determination issued on January 23, 2021. The claimant appealed the determination to the DUA hearings department. Following a hearing on the merits attended only by the claimant, the review examiner affirmed the agency's initial determination and denied benefits in a decision rendered on October 16, 2021. We accepted the claimant's application for review.

Benefits were denied after the review examiner determined that the claimant was not in total or partial unemployment and, thus, was disqualified under G.L. c. 151A, §§ 29 and 1(r). After considering the recorded testimony and evidence from the hearing, the review examiner's decision, and the claimant's appeal, we remanded the case to the review examiner to obtain additional evidence about the claimant's earnings during her benefit year. Only the claimant attended the remand hearing. Thereafter, the review examiner issued her consolidated findings of fact. Our decision is based upon our review of the entire record.

The issue before the Board is whether the review examiner's decision, which concluded that the claimant was not in unemployment beginning April 5, 2020, because she was working full-time for the instant employer, is supported by substantial and credible evidence and is free from error of law.

Ruling of the Board

In accordance with our statutory obligation, we review the record and the decision made by the review examiner to determine: (1) whether the consolidated findings are supported by substantial and credible evidence; and (2) whether the review examiner's conclusion is free from error of law. Upon such review, the Board adopts the review examiner's consolidated findings of fact and deems them to be supported by substantial and credible evidence. We further believe that the review examiner's credibility assessment is reasonable in relation to the evidence presented. As discussed more fully below, while we agree with the review examiner's legal conclusion that the claimant was not entitled to benefits, we reach this conclusion on separate grounds.

G.L. c. 151A, § 29, authorizes benefits be paid only to those in "total unemployment" or "partial unemployment." These terms are, in turn, defined by G.L. c. 151A, § 1(r), which provides, in relevant part, as follows:

(1) "Partial unemployment", an individual shall be deemed to be in partial unemployment if in any week of less than full-time weekly schedule of work he has earned or has received aggregate remuneration in an amount which is less than the weekly benefit rate to which he would be entitled if totally unemployed during said week

(2) "Total unemployment", an individual shall be deemed to be in total unemployment in any week in which he performs no wage-earning services whatever, and for which he receives no remuneration, and in which, though capable and available for work, he is unable to obtain any suitable work.

An analysis of a claimant's unemployment status under G.L. c. 151A, §§ 29 and 1(r), is not employer specific. In other words, when a claimant works for multiple employers during her benefit year, her unemployment status in any given week is based on an assessment of her work and earnings from all of her employers during that week.

The claimant filed her 2020-01 claim for benefits after her second employer temporarily ceased operations due to the onset of the COVID-19 public health emergency. Consolidated Finding # 14. However, the claimant continued to work her full-time position for the instant employer through the end of the 2019-20 academic year on June 13, 2020. Consolidated Finding # 6. As the claimant was working full-time weekly schedule between April 5, 2020, the effective date of her claim, and June 13, 2020, she was not in total or partial unemployment within the meaning of G.L. c. 151A, § 1(r), during that period, regardless of whether she was performing wage-earning services for her second employer.

Following the end of the 2019–20 academic year on June 13, 2020, the instant employer no longer had full-time work available for the claimant. Consolidated Findings ## 6, and 9–12. As the claimant returned to work for her second employer on or around June 11, 2020, and was no longer working full time for the instant employer beginning June 14, 2020, she was in partial unemployment under G.L. c. 151A, § 1(r)(1), beginning the week of June 14, 2020, during any week in which she worked less than a full-time schedule and earned less than her weekly benefit amount. See Consolidated Findings ## 6 and 26.

A claimant's weekly benefit amount is generally calculated based on all wages paid to her during her base period. See G.L. c. 151A, § 24(a). In this case, the DUA initially determined the claimant was entitled to a weekly benefit amount of $349.00 and an earnings disregard of $116.33. Consolidated Finding # 2. Consistent with this determination, the claimant was in partial unemployment beginning June 14, 2020, during any week in which she worked less than a full-time schedule and earned less than $465.33 ($349 plus $116.33), with the exception of the period between July 5, 2020, and September 12, 2020, as explained below.

While the claimant produced extensive documentary evidence of her earnings from both of her employers, she could not provide specific details of her gross earnings from her second employer during the period between June 14, 2020, and July 4, 2020. Consolidated Findings ## 29–31. Absent evidence that her gross earnings from her second employer totaled less than $465.33 during each of those three weeks, we cannot conclude that she was in partial unemployment under G.L. c. 151A, § 1(r)(1), between June 14, 2020, and July 4, 2020. Thereafter, however, the nature of the claimant's work with the instant employer again alters our analysis of her unemployment status.

As the claimant was a full-time employee of an educational employer, the DUA was required to assess whether the instant employer had provided her with reasonable assurance of re-employment for the subsequent academic year. G.L. c. 151A, § 28A. If the DUA determines a claimant was provided with reasonable assurance of re-employment for the subsequent academic year, her base period wages from that educational employer may not be used in calculating her weekly benefit amount. Id.

In a separate determination, the DUA concluded that the claimant had been provided with reasonable assurance of re-employment for the subsequent academic year during the period between July 5, 2020, and September 12, 2020.¹ In other words, the DUA determined that claimant's base period wages from the instant employer may not be used in calculating her weekly benefit amount during the period she was found to have reasonable assurance of re-employment. However, this does not preclude her from receiving benefits entirely. Using only the claimant's base period wages from her second employer, the DUA determined the claimant was entitled to a weekly benefit amount to be $113.00, and an earnings disregard of $37.67. Consolidated Finding # 3. Therefore, for the period between July 5, 2020, and September 12, 2020, the claimant was in partial unemployment during any week in which she worked less than a full-time schedule and earned less than $150.67 ($113 plus $37.67).

Beginning the week of July 5, 2020, and through the week ending July 25, 2020, the claimant worked part-time for the instant employer's summer school in addition to her part-time work with her second employer. Consolidated Findings ## 10 and 26. The claimant's gross earnings from her summer school work totaled $135.00 per week. Consolidated Finding # 11. During the same period, the claimant's gross earnings from her second employer fluctuated between $133.95 and $269.38 per week. Consolidated Findings ## 32–34. Accordingly, the consolidated findings confirm the claimant earned gross weekly wages of at least $268.95 in each week between July 5, 2020, and July 25, 2020. Because her earnings exceeded $150.67, she was not in partial unemployment pursuant to G.L. c. 151A, § 1(r)(1), during that three-week period.

The claimant did not perform any work for the instant employer during the six-week period between July 26, 2020, and September 5, 2020. However, she continued working part time for her second employer, and her gross weekly earnings during this period ranged from $201.95 to $319.80 per week. Consolidated Findings ## 35–40. As the claimant continued to earn in excess of the $150.67 weekly benefit amount plus earnings disregard, she was not in partial unemployment under G.L. c. 151A, § 1(r)(1), between July 26, 2020, and September 5, 2020.

On September 8, 2020, the claimant returned to her full-time position with the instant employer. Consolidated Finding # 13. As she had returned to working a full-time schedule beginning the week of September 6, 2020, she was not in unemployment within the meaning of G.L. c. 151A, § 1(r), as of that date.

We, therefore, conclude as a matter of law that the claimant was not in total or partial unemployment within the meaning of G.L. c. 151A, §§ 29 and 1(r), beginning April 5, 2020, and for subsequent weeks, because she earned more than her weekly benefit amount plus earnings disregard during each week she was not working a full-time schedule.

The review examiner's decision is affirmed. The claimant is denied benefits for the week beginning April 5, 2020, and for subsequent weeks, until such time as she meets the requirements of G.L. c. 151A.
