INTRODUCTION

Massachusetts law protects consumers from the sale of unsafe handguns that are prone to malfunction or accidental discharge during normal use or are not equipped with basic safety features. Together, the requirements for the commercial sale of handguns codified in Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, § 123, and the Attorney General’s handgun sales regulations, 940 Code Mass. Regs. §§ 16.01 et seq. (together, the “handgun safety regulations”), ensure that handguns sold in the Commonwealth are not defective and protect handgun users and their families against accidental injury or death. In this case, the plaintiffs claim that Massachusetts’s handgun safety regulations infringe their Second Amendment rights because, even though there are hundreds of handgun models that plaintiffs can lawfully buy, keep, and carry in Massachusetts, the handgun safety regulations prevent them from buying 18 specific handgun models that are not compliant with the regulations. In effect, plaintiffs claim that they have “a right to keep and carry any weapon whatsoever,” in contravention of District of Columbia v. Heller, 554 U.S. 570, 626 (2008), and New York State Rifle & Pistol Ass’n v. Bruen, 142 S. Ct. 2111, 2128 (2022).

The District Court properly dismissed plaintiffs’ complaint because it fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. This Court may affirm for any or all of three independent reasons. First, the handgun safety regulations do not run afoul of the text of the Second Amendment, because they do not meaningfully infringe plaintiffs' right to keep and bear arms for lawful self-defense. Plaintiffs retain the ability to purchase, possess, and carry hundreds of handgun models that are approved for sale in Massachusetts; their claimed deprivation is the inability to purchase 18 models of handguns that are not approved for sale in Massachusetts because they have not satisfied the minimum safety requirements imposed by the state. Second, the challenged regulations are valid because they are conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms that are presumptively lawful under Heller and Bruen. Third, the challenged regulations are consistent with the Nation's historical tradition of firearms regulation, and thus do not violate the Second Amendment.

QUESTION PRESENTED

Do the handgun safety regulations—which prohibit the commercial sale of handgun models that have not met minimum safety requirements imposed by Massachusetts to protect against accidents like explosion or unintended discharge, but which do not interfere with plaintiffs' ability to purchase, keep, and carry hundreds of other handgun models—violate the Second Amendment?

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

This is an appeal from a judgment of the U.S. District Court for the District of Massachusetts (Zobel, J.) dismissing plaintiffs’ complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.

Statutory and Regulatory Background

To protect Massachusetts consumers and their families, two sets of safety requirements establish minimum standards for handguns sold by licensed retailers in the Commonwealth: (1) regulations promulgated pursuant to the Attorney General’s authority under Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 93A, § 2(c), and codified at 940 Code Mass. Regs. §§ 16.01 et seq.; and (2) statutory requirements at Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, § 123, that form the basis for the Approved Firearms Roster.

1. The Attorney General’s Regulations

Under Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 93A, § 2(c), the Attorney General has the authority to “prevent the deceptive or unfair sale or transfer of defective products which do not perform as warranted.” American Shooting Sports Council, Inc. v. Attorney Gen., 429 Mass. 871, 875, 711 N.E.2d 899, 902 (1999). Pursuant to this authority, in October 1997, the Attorney General of Massachusetts promulgated a set of regulations deeming it an unfair or deceptive trade practice for a “handgunpurveyor”¹ to “transfer”² a handgun within the Commonwealth that does not meet certain minimum safety and performance standards. 940 Code Mass. Regs.

§§ 16.01 et seq. (the “Attorney General’s regulations”); see also Enforcement Notice: Attorney General’s Handgun Safety Regulations.³ The Attorney General’s regulations “are intended to protect responsible gun owners and their families from firearms⁴ that are unsafe by design or manufacture.” July 16, 2004 Consumer Advisory on Glock Handguns (“Consumer Advisory”).⁵

² “Transfer” is defined as “sell, rent, or lease” and excludes sales to firearm wholesalers who do not intend to sell the handguns to Massachusetts retailers or consumers. Id.

⁴ Massachusetts law defines the term “firearm” such that it encompasses all handguns. See Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, § 121. A firearm is distinct from a “rifle” or “shotgun,” which are separately defined. See id.

⁵ See <https://www.mass.gov/doc/attorney-generals-handgun-regulation-enforcement-notices/download>, at 8.

The Attorney General’s regulations came in the wake of national research on preventing fatalities from accidental firearm discharges. In 1991, the United States General Accounting Office (“GAO”) conducted a study at the request of Congress that found that two basic safety features—child proofing and a load indicator—could prevent one third of all accidental gun deaths in the United States. See U.S. General Accounting Office, Report to the Chairman, Subcommittee on Antitrust, Monopolies, and Business Rights, Committee on the Judiciary, U.S. Senate, Accidental Shootings: Many Deaths and Injuries Caused by Firearms Could be Prevented 3 (1991) (“GAO Report”).⁶ At the time, firearms were the fourth leading cause of accidental deaths among children aged 5 to 14 and third among 15- to 24-year-olds. Id. at 2. The report noted that the two studied features would not prevent deaths caused by a gun that “discharge[d] when it [was] accidentally dropped or [fell] from its storage location”; thus, the prevention of such deaths fell outside the scope of the study. Id. at 4. The GAO Report recommended that “all possible efforts be made to reduce the number of accidental shootings” in light of the devastating “human, economic, and public health costs of these shootings to the victims, their families, and society[.]” Id. at 5.

The Attorney General’s regulations make it an unfair and deceptive practice, and therefore a violation of state law, for a purveyor to transfer a handgun that is defective or lacks certain safety features. First, handguns sold by retailers cannot be “made from inferior materials.” 940 Code Mass. Regs. § 16.04. To satisfy this requirement, a handgun must be made of materials that meet a specified minimum melting point, tensile strength, and density, or the gun must pass a performance test to show it can be fired repeatedly with only a limited number of malfunctions and without breaking. Id. §§ 16.01; 16.04(1), (3). Next, the handgun must not be “prone” to either repeated firing upon a single trigger pull or explosion upon firing. Id. § 16.04(2). The handgun must also pass a “drop test” to show it is not “prone to accidental discharge.” Id. §§ 16.01; 16.04(2). Further, the handgun must have a “safety device,” as defined by statute, that prevents the firing of the gun by an unauthorized user. Id. § 16.05(1) (citing Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, § 131K (providing examples of safety devices)).⁷ The handgun must also have a form of childproofing, defined as any mechanism that “effectively precludes an average five year old child from operating the handgun when it is ready to fire.” Id. § 16.05(2). Examples of adequate child-proofing mechanisms include a ten-pound trigger pull or a firing mechanism that cannot be operated by the smaller hands of ⁷ Such safety devices include, but are not limited to, “mechanical locks or devices designed to recognize and authorize, or otherwise allow the firearm to be discharged only by its owner or authorized user, by solenoid use-limitation devices, key activated or combination trigger or handle locks, radio frequency tags, automated fingerprint identification systems or voice recognition.” Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, § 131K.

an average five-year-old. Id. A “hammer deactivation device” also meets the child-proofing requirement. Id. § 16.05(4).⁸ For semi-automatic handguns, the regulations further require either a load indicator or a magazine safety disconnect. Id. §§ 16.05(3); 16.05(4).⁹ Finally, handguns must have a tamper resistant serial number. Id. § 16.03.¹⁰

The Attorney General’s regulations do not apply to all handgun sales in Massachusetts. As noted above, the regulations apply only to transfers by “handgun-purveyors,”¹¹ defined to exclude (among others) sellers who transfer fewer than five handguns per year. Id. § 16.01. These private sales are therefore not subject to the Attorney General’s regulations. Furthermore, most of the

regulations do not apply to handguns that were manufactured on or before October 21, 1998. Id. § 16.07; Enforcement Notice #2: Attorney General’s Handgun Safety Regulations.¹²

2. Codification of Section 123 and the Approved Firearms Roster

In 1998, soon after the promulgation of the Attorney General’s regulations, the Legislature codified several overlapping provisions at Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, § 123, cl. 18-21 (“Section 123”), which impose conditions on a license to sell, rent, or lease firearms, rifles, or shotguns granted under Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, § 122. Specifically, the Attorney General’s regulations and Section 123 share minimum safety standards relating to: the material composition of the handgun, Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, § 123, cl. 18; whether the handgun is prone to accidental discharge, id. § 123, cl. 19; and whether the handgun is prone to repeated firing or explosion, id. § 123, cl. 20. It is unlawful for a retailer to sell a handgun that does not comply with Section 123’s safety requirements. Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, § 128.

In conjunction with Section 123, the Legislature directed the Secretary of the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security (“Secretary”) to “compile and publish a roster” of handguns that meet Section 123’s requirements. Mass. Gen.

As of its June 2021 update,¹⁴ the Approved Firearms Roster listed over 1,000 handgun models that have been shown by independent testing¹⁵ to meet Section 123’s requirements. See Approved Firearms Roster: 06/2021 (“June 2021 Roster”).¹⁶ The June 2021 Roster includes handguns from 29 manufacturers, often ¹⁴ At the time of briefing below, the most recent update to the Approved Firearms Roster was in June 2021. Since that time, the Approved Firearms Roster has been further updated, in February 2022 and October 2022. Those updates have placed over two dozen additional handgun models on the roster. See <https://www.mass.gov/doc/approved-firearms-roster-9/download>; <https://www.mass.gov/doc/approved-firearms-roster-10/download>.

¹⁵ A handgun may be placed on the Approved Firearms Roster “only after the Secretary has received a final test report from an approved independent testing laboratory” certifying that the handgun make and model meets the requirements of Section 123. 501 Code Mass. Regs. § 7.03(1). To have a particular handgun placed on the roster, a manufacturer or other entity can submit the handgun for testing at an approved laboratory and then send the final test report to the Secretary and the Gun Control Advisory Board. Id. § 7.04(1). Thus, the fact that a particular handgun is not included on the roster could mean that it has failed the requisite testing, or it could mean that the requisite testing has never been performed and/or submitted to the Secretary.

with multiple models for each manufacturer. See id. For example, 66 Sig Arms models appear on the June 2021 Roster, representing numerous styles across six different calibers. See id. at 10-12.

Like the Attorney General’s regulations, Section 123 does not regulate private sales; those sales are governed separately by Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, §§ 128A and 128B, which authorize a private seller to transfer up to four guns per year. Only “firearms dealer[s] licensed in Massachusetts” are prohibited from selling handguns that do not appear on the Approved Firearms Roster. 501 Code Mass. Regs. § 7.02. In addition, licensed retailers may sell handguns that do not appear on the Approved Firearms Roster if the gun was lawfully owned or possessed in Massachusetts prior to October 21, 1998. Id. § 7.05.¹⁷

The Attorney General’s regulations related to childproofing, load indicators, and tamper-resistant serial numbers have not been codified at Section 123 and so are not tested for inclusion on the Approved Firearms Roster. To be sold by a retailer in Massachusetts, a handgun that appears on the roster also must comply with the Attorney General’s regulations. Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, § 128; 940 Code Mass. Regs. § 16.04.

¹⁷ A separate roster lists handguns that may be sold for formal target shooting and that are subject to a separate set of requirements. 501 Code Mass. Regs. §§ 7.12-7.15.

Statement of Facts

The plaintiffs, four individuals, one gun retailer, and one organization, filed the underlying complaint in this matter on June 8, 2021. Plaintiffs bring a single claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 and the United States Constitution, alleging that Massachusetts’s handgun safety regulations deprive them of their right to keep and bear arms under the Second Amendment. Compl. ¶¶ 56-73, Appendix (“App.”) 19-22.

1. Individual Plaintiffs

All four individual plaintiffs allege that they have a valid license to carry (“LTC”). Compl. ¶¶ 47-50, App. 16-18. Among other things, an LTC authorizes the licensee to purchase handguns, keep them in their homes, and carry them in public. Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 269, § 10(a); id. ch. 140, §§ 131, 131E(b), 131F. These four plaintiffs together identify 18 models of handguns they would purchase “new from a licensed retailer” but for Massachusetts’s handgun safety regulations. Compl. ¶¶ 47-50, App. 16-18.¹⁸ The complaint does not indicate what handguns, if any, the plaintiffs already purchased and own with their LTCs.

¹⁸ The makes and models of these 18 handguns are: Beretta 92X Performance; CZ-USA DW Kodiak 10mm; CZ-USA 75 Compact 9mm; CZ P-09; CZ P-10F; CZ-USA P-10 9mm; CZ Tactical Sport; CZ Tactical Sport Orange; fifth generation Glock 19 or 17; Kimber Ultra carry II .45; Kimber KHX custom .45; Kimber Desert Warrior .45; Magnum Research Desert Eagle XIX.50AE; Nighthawk Custom Heinie Signature Recon; Sig Arms Model 1911 “We the People” edition;

Of the 18 models the individual plaintiffs seek to purchase, two of the models—both manufactured by Glock—appear on the Approved Firearms Roster. See Compl. ¶¶ 47-48, App. 16-17; June 2021 Roster, supra. Those models nonetheless cannot be sold by retailers in Massachusetts because they fail to comply with the Attorney General’s regulation that requires either a load indicator or magazine safety disconnect on semi-automatic handguns. See Consumer Advisory, supra; 940 Code Mass. Regs. §§ 16.05(3), (4). In an earlier constitutional challenge, this Court upheld that regulation, as applied to Glock handguns, against a due process challenge based on vagueness. See Draper v. Healey, 827 F.3d 1, 5 (1st Cir. 2016).¹⁹

The remaining 16 models the individual plaintiffs desire to purchase do not appear on the Approved Firearms Roster. See Compl. ¶¶ 47-50, App. 16-18; June 2021 Roster, supra. Plaintiffs make no factual allegations as to why these models are not on the roster. The complaint does not explain, for example, whether these models have failed one or more of the required safety and performance tests, or whether manufacturers have simply failed to make the models available for independent testing and submit the results to the Secretary. See generally Compl.; see also note 15, above. Further, the individual plaintiffs make no allegations about what features, if any, are unique to any of the 18 models that cannot be found in one or more of the hundreds of models of handguns that are available for purchase in Massachusetts. See generally Compl.

Sig Arms Model 1911 “TacOps” edition; and the Sig P365XL. Compl. ¶¶ 47-50, App. 16-18.

¹⁹ Although the Draper plaintiffs had also raised a challenge under the Second Amendment in the District Court, they stipulated before this Court that dismissal of the vagueness due process challenge “require[d] dismissal of their Second Amendment claim as well” and so the Court did not reach the merits of the Second Amendment claim. Draper, 827 F.3d at 4-5.

2. Retailer and Organizational Plaintiffs

The retailer plaintiff, The Gunrunner, LLC (“Gunrunner”), alleges that, but for Massachusetts’s handgun sales regulations, it would “make available for sale to all of its law-abiding customers all commercially available handguns” that it is now barred from selling by the handgun safety regulations. Compl. ¶ 51, App. 18. Beyond this general allegation, Gunrunner makes no allegation of concrete harm to its business due to Massachusetts’s handgun safety regulations. Neither does Gunrunner allege it is unable to sell operational handguns to properly licensed Massachusetts consumers. See id.

The organizational plaintiff, the Firearms Policy Coalition, Inc. (“FPC”), alleges harm to itself and on behalf of its members, which include the four individual plaintiffs. Compl. ¶¶ 52-55, App. 18-19. FPC does not allege that any of its members who are properly licensed in Massachusetts are unable to purchase or possess an operational handgun for self-defense or other lawful purposes. See id.

The District Court's Decision

Following briefing and argument on the defendants' motion to dismiss, the District Court issued a Memorandum & Order ("Order") on May 19, 2022, allowing defendants' motion and dismissing the complaint.²⁰

At the time of the opinion, the prevailing framework for reviewing Second Amendment challenges within the First Circuit (and all other circuits) was a two-step approach. See Order 7. At step one, courts looked at whether the "challenged law burdens conduct that falls within the scope of the Second Amendment's guarantee" and, if it did, courts proceeded to step two, which applied an appropriate level of means-ends scrutiny based on the severity of the challenged law's burden on the plaintiff's Second Amendment right. See, e.g., Gould v. Morgan, 907 F.3d 659, 668-69 (1st Cir. 2018).

Although the defendants briefed below the arguments that the challenged regulations were consistent with the text and historical tradition of firearms regulation, and constituted presumptively lawful conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms, see App. 38-43, the District Court—consistent with many decisions issued under the prior framework—assumed without deciding that the handgun safety provisions burden conduct within the historical scope of the Second Amendment. Order 8. The court nonetheless found that burden to be “modest” “at most” because “[e]ligible individuals within Massachusetts can freely choose from over a thousand handguns” approved for commercial sale within the state under the challenged provisions. Id. at 10-11. The District Court noted that the regulations do not restrict handgun possession in any manner and, further, do not even apply to all handgun sales, given the carve-out for private sales. Id. As a result, the regulations do not constitute the “total prohibition against keeping a handgun for self-defense within the home” that was at issue in Heller. Id. at 10.

The District Court squarely rejected the plaintiffs’ argument that the regulations are a “total ban on the sale and thus possession of [the] specific makes and models” that the plaintiffs seek to acquire and so are unconstitutional under Heller. Id. at 11. Instead, the court explained, the plaintiffs’ argument “stretches Heller beyond the plain meaning of its text without any authority for doing so.” Id. The District Court continued, “[p]rohibiting the sale of specific makes and models of handguns for safety reasons is not the same as a total prohibition of the sale of handguns.” Id. In particular, the “fact that [the plaintiffs] cannot purchase every single handgun that may be in common use and available for purchase in other states, does not transform the regulations into a total ban on a category of class of firearms (i.e., handguns in this case).” Id. at 11. “To conclude otherwise,” the court explained, “would eviscerate Heller’s holding that some regulation of firearm possession is permissible.” Id. Moreover, the court emphasized that the plaintiffs had not alleged “the handguns available for purchase in Massachusetts are inadequate to exercise their core Second Amendment right,” and so they had failed to show that striking down the regulations would in any way “enable or enhance an individual’s exercise of their right to possess a handgun” for the purpose of self-defense. Id. at 12.

Having concluded that the regulations “do not impose a substantial burden” on the core of plaintiffs’ Second Amendment rights, id. at 12, the District Court applied intermediate scrutiny and held that the handgun safety provisions were “well supported and reasonable” and “pass intermediate scrutiny.” Id. at 16. The District Court accordingly dismissed the complaint. Id. This appeal followed.

SUMMARY OF THE ARGUMENT

The judgment should be affirmed, and the handgun safety regulations should be upheld, because the regulations do not violate the Second Amendment. Although the District Court resolved the case using intermediate scrutiny as directed by this Court’s pre-Bruen precedents, this Court may affirm the judgment below under the new framework established by Bruen for analyzing Second Amendment claims.

There are three reasons, all raised below and all central considerations under Bruen, why the handgun safety regulations are constitutional. First, plaintiffs have failed to meet their burden of demonstrating that the handgun safety regulations—which allow them to purchase, keep, and carry over 1,000 handgun models for lawful self-defense, in the home and in public—violate the text of the Second Amendment. Plaintiffs have not, in any meaningful way, had their right to “keep and bear arms” infringed, where they retain the right to engage in lawful, armed self-defense, in the home and in public, which is the “central component” of the Second Amendment right. Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2133. Second, the handgun safety regulations are undeniably “conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms” that the Court in Heller said were “presumptively lawful,” 554 U.S. at 626-27 & n.26—an exclusion the Court did not disturb in Bruen—and nothing in plaintiffs’ complaint has, or could, rebut that presumption, where, again, they retain the ability to purchase hundreds of handgun models in Massachusetts for use in armed self-defense. Third, the handgun safety regulations are fully consistent with the Nation’s historical tradition of firearms regulation, as evidenced by historical laws throughout the states, from the colonial period through the end of the 19th century, that (1) required the inspection or “proving” of firearms and ammunition before they could be sold; (2) required the safe storage of firearms and ammunition to reduce the risk of fire and explosion; (3) banned the sale of firearms to minors; and (4) prohibited the configuration of otherwise lawful weapons as “trap” or “spring” guns, which rendered them unusually dangerous.

ARGUMENT

On de novo review of the District Court’s dismissal of the case under Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6), see Azurity Pharms., Inc. v. Edge Pharma, LLC, 45 F.4th 479, 489 (1st Cir. 2022), this Court may affirm the judgment below on any ground apparent from the record, regardless of whether it was presented to, or considered by, the lower court. E.g., In re Montreal, Maine & Atlantic R’way, Ltd., 888 F.3d 1, 8 n.4 (1st Cir. 2018); accord Dandridge v. Williams, 397 U.S. 471, 475 n.6 (1970). Although the District Court upheld the challenged regulations under intermediate scrutiny using the pre-Bruen framework applicable to such claims, Order 7-9, the arguments briefed here were all presented to the District Court. See App. 38-43.

Further, where the alternative arguments presented by defendants are purely legal issues regarding whether the handgun safety regulations comport with the text and history of the Second Amendment, this Court may proceed to adjudicate the case itself, rather than ordering a remand that would only pointlessly prolong the litigation. See Phelps-Roper v. Troutman, 712 F.3d 412, 417 (8th Cir. 2013) (where appeal “raises purely legal issues,” the court may “reach the merits of th[e] case in the interest of judicial economy” despite an intervening change in the legal standard) (internal citation omitted); Medgraph, Inc. v. Medtronic, Inc., 843 F.3d 942, 948 (Fed. Cir. 2016) (if remand would merely result in “a pointless prolonging of litigation,” the Court may apply intervening legal authority on appeal in the first instance).²¹

Below, after summarizing the new Second Amendment framework established by Bruen, the defendants explain the three independently sufficient grounds upon which the handgun safety regulations should be upheld: (1) plaintiffs’ failure to meet their burden of demonstrating that the handgun safety regulations violate the text of the Second Amendment; (2) the fact that the regulations are “presumptively lawful” “conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms,” and plaintiffs have not rebutted that presumption; and (3) defendants’ demonstration that the regulations are fully consistent with our Nation’s historical tradition of firearms regulation.

I. The Second Amendment Framework.

The Second Amendment provides: “A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.” U.S. Const. amend. II. In Heller v. District of Columbia, 554 U.S. 570 (2008), the Supreme Court held that a “ban on handgun possession in the home violates the Second Amendment, as does [a] prohibition against rendering any lawful firearm in the home operable for the purpose of immediate self-defense.” Id. at 635. Two years later, the Court ruled that the Second Amendment applies to the States, in striking down ordinances that likewise banned handgun possession. McDonald v. City of Chicago, 561 U.S. 742, 750 (2010).

Heller made clear, however, that “[l]ike most rights, the right secured by the Second Amendment is not unlimited” and is “not a right to keep and carry any weapon whatsoever in any manner whatsoever and for whatever purpose.” 554 U.S. at 626. “[N]othing in our opinion,” the Court emphasized, “should be taken to cast doubt on longstanding prohibitions on the possession of firearms by felons and the mentally ill, or laws forbidding the carrying of firearms in sensitive places such as schools and government buildings, or laws imposing conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms.” Id. at 626-27. And these were merely “examples” of “presumptively lawful regulatory measures”; the Court’s list did “not purport to be exhaustive.” Id. at 627 n.26. The Court “repeat[ed] those assurances” in McDonald. 561 U.S. at 786 (plurality opinion).

Shortly after the District Court issued its order dismissing plaintiffs’ complaint in this case, the Supreme Court issued its opinion in New York State Rifle & Pistol Ass’n, Inc. v. Bruen, 142 S. Ct. 2111, 2128 (2022), which sets forth the current framework for analyzing Second Amendment claims. In Bruen, the Supreme Court addressed the constitutionality of the State of New York’s requirement that individuals show “proper cause” as a condition of securing a license to carry a concealed firearm in public. Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2123. The Court struck down the law after concluding that law-abiding citizens have a right to carry a firearm in public for self-defense, and that the law in question, which did not derive from a comparable historical tradition, made it “virtually impossible” for most citizens to exercise this right. Id. at 2156; id. at 2159 (Alito, J., concurring).

In its decision, the Court announced the proper methodology for analyzing Second Amendment claims. The Court declined to adopt the two-step approach that included mean-ends scrutiny and that had prevailed throughout the lower courts since Heller, including in this Court. Id. at 2126-29. Instead, the Court described the test that it derived from Heller as follows: “When the Second Amendment’s plain text covers an individual’s conduct, the Constitution presumptively protects that conduct. The government must then justify its regulation by demonstrating that it is consistent with the Nation’s historical tradition of firearm regulation.” Id. at 2129-30.

The Bruen Court began with the “plain text” analysis by looking at the “‘textual elements’ of the Second Amendment’s operative clause,” i.e., that “the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.” Id. at 2134 (quoting Heller, 554 U.S. at 592; U.S. Const. amend. II). In analyzing the meaning of the term “‘bear’ arms” within the text of the Second Amendment, the Court reiterated that “self-defense is ‘the central component of the Second Amendment right.’” Id. at 2133 (emphasis in original) (quoting McDonald, 561 U.S. at 767, and Heller, 554 U.S. at 599). And where the parties did not dispute that the New York law applied to all handguns, and that the petitioners had a right to carry handguns in public for self-defense, the Court had “little difficulty” concluding that the text of the Second Amendment extended to petitioners’ proposed course of conduct. Id. at 2134-35.

Having determined that the plain text of the Second Amendment covered the petitioners’ conduct, the Bruen Court moved on to the historical analysis. Id. at 2134-35. There, the burden shifted to the government to show that the challenged law was consistent with “the Nation’s historical tradition of firearm regulation.” Id. at 2135. The Court explained that in some cases, this inquiry would be “fairly straightforward,” such as when a challenged law addresses a “general societal problem that has persisted since the 18th century.” Id. at 2131. In such instances, the lack of a “distinctly similar” historical analogue, or if earlier generations addressed the problem through “materially different means,” or if analogous laws were enacted but then struck down by courts on “constitutional grounds,” that would be evidence that the modern regulation is inconsistent with the historical tradition of firearms regulations. Id.

But in other cases—particularly those where the challenged laws address “unprecedented societal concerns or dramatic technological changes”—this historical analysis requires a “more nuanced approach.” Id. at 2132. Governments can justify regulations of that sort by “reasoning by analogy,” showing that the challenged regulation is “‘relevantly similar’” to a “well-established and representative historical analogue.” Id. at 2133 (citation and emphasis omitted). Because such analogical reasoning under the Second Amendment is not intended to be a “regulatory straightjacket,” the modern-day regulation need not be a “dead ringer” for or a “historical twin” to its historical precursors to pass constitutional muster. Id. (emphasis in original). And even where “the historical record yields relatively few” examples of a particular type of restriction, if there were “no disputes regarding the lawfulness of such prohibitions,” then a court can “assume it settled” that the restriction could be imposed “consistent with the Second Amendment.” Id. at 2133. While the Court did not “provide an exhaustive survey of the features that render regulations relevantly similar under the Second Amendment,” it did identify “two metrics: how and why the regulations burden a law-abiding citizen’s right to armed self-defense.” Id. Ultimately, “whether modern and historical regulations impose a comparable burden on the right of armed self-defense and whether that burden is comparably justified are central considerations when engaging in an analogical inquiry.” Id. (emphasis in original) (internal quotation marks omitted).

Importantly, Bruen did not purport to overturn or call into question any aspect of Heller. To the contrary, the Court described the analytical approach articulated in Bruen as the same “test ... set forth in Heller.” Id. at 2131; see also id. at 2134 (“Having made the constitutional standard endorsed in Heller more explicit, we now apply that standard to New York’s proper-cause requirement.”) The Bruen Court cited approvingly language from Heller that “the right secured by the Second Amendment is not unlimited” and is “not a right to keep and carry any weapon whatsoever in any manner whatsoever and for whatever purpose.” Id. at 2128 (quoting Heller, 554 U.S. at 626). Similarly, Justice Kavanaugh’s concurrence in Bruen, joined by Chief Justice Roberts, reiterated that, “[p]roperly interpreted, the Second Amendment allows a ‘variety’ of gun regulations,” including the non-exhaustive litany of “presumptively lawful regulatory measures” identified in Heller, such as “laws imposing conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms.” Id. at 2162 (quoting Heller, 554 U.S. at 626-27 & n.26). And Justice Alito, in his concurrence in Bruen, likewise emphasized the limits of the Court’s decision, writing, “Our holding decides nothing ... about the kinds of weapons that people may possess. Nor have we disturbed anything that we said in Heller or [McDonald], about restrictions that may be imposed on the possession or carrying of guns.” 142 S. Ct. at 2157 (emphasis added).

II. Plaintiffs Cannot Establish That the Handgun Safety Regulations Burden Conduct Protected by the Plain Text of the Second Amendment.

The handgun safety regulations should be upheld, first, because they do not violate the text of the Second Amendment. The regulations do not remotely prevent the plaintiffs from keeping and carrying a handgun, in their homes and in public, for lawful self-defense. The plaintiffs, who hold licenses to carry, can purchase, keep, and carry over 1,000 handgun models that appear on the Approved Firearms Roster and meet the requirements of the Attorney General’s Regulations. And, even with the respect to the 18 specific models that plaintiffs cannot purchase from a retailer, they can acquire those models through a private sale with a party who sells fewer than five handguns per year. See note 1, above.

As the Supreme Court has thrice confirmed, “the right secured by the Second Amendment is not unlimited,” and it “does not confer ‘a right to keep and carry any weapon whatsoever in any manner whatsoever and for whatever purpose.’” Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2128; McDonald, 561 U.S. at 786 (plurality opinion); Heller, 554 U.S. at 626. Regulations like Massachusetts’s that do not ban an “entire class of ‘arms’” like handguns,²² but instead regulate their use to further interests like “fire-safety” and “prevent[ing] accidents,” “do not remotely burden the right of self-defense.” Id. at 628, 632; see also Pena v. Lindley, 898 F.3d 969, 978 (9th Cir. 2018) (similar handgun safety regulations in California placed “almost no burden on the physical exercise of Second Amendment rights”).

A. Plaintiffs Bear the Initial Burden of Demonstrating That Their Proposed Conduct Falls within the Text of the Second Amendment.

Under Bruen’s text-and-history standard for adjudicating Second Amendment claims, the party challenging a restriction must first demonstrate that the law regulates conduct protected by the “plain text” of the Second Amendment. Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2126; see also id. at 2130, 2135. The Second Amendment “presumptively protects that conduct” only if covered by the plain terms of the amendment. Id. at 2126; see also id. at 2129-30 (same). To establish that the plain text applies, a plaintiff must demonstrate that each of the “textual elements” of the Second Amendment’s operative clause covers the proposed course of conduct. Id. at 2134 (quoting Heller, 554 U.S. at 592); cf. Ocean State Tactical, LLC v. State of Rhode Island, No. 22-CV-246 JJM-PAS, 2022 WL 17721175, at *2 (D.R.I. Dec. 14, 2022) (“[T]he plaintiffs have failed in their burden to demonstrate that [large-capacity magazines] are ‘Arms’ within the meaning of the Second Amendment’s text.”) (emphasis added); Gazzola v. Hochul, No. 122CV1134BKSDJS, 2022 WL 17485810, at *14 (N.D.N.Y. Dec. 7, 2022) (“Plaintiffs fail to demonstrate that the Second Amendment’s plain text covers the conduct regulated by the statutory provisions at issue.”); National Ass’n for Gun Rights, Inc. v. City of San Jose, No. 22-cv-501-BLF, 2022 WL 3083715, at *8 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2022) (“If the conduct at issue is covered by the text of the Second Amendment, the burden then shifts to the government to show why the regulation is consistent with the Nation’s historical tradition of firearm regulation.”) (emphasis added).

That the plaintiff bears the initial burden in the Second Amendment context is consistent with how the Supreme Court “protect[s] other constitutional rights.” Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2130. As explained in Bruen, in free speech cases under the First Amendment, “to which Heller repeatedly compared the right to keep and bear arms,” the government bears the burden of justifying its actions only “[w]hen the Government restricts speech.” Id. at 2130 (quotation marks and citation omitted). Plaintiffs who assert free speech claims are “oblig[ed]” to first “demonstrate that the First Amendment even applies” to the “assertedly expressive conduct” in which they wish to engage. Clark v. Community for Creative Non-Violence, 468 U.S. 288, 293 n.5 (1984). And when scrutinizing Free Exercise claims, the Court first asks whether the plaintiff has shown that the government “has burdened his sincere religious practice pursuant to a policy that is not ‘neutral’ or ‘generally applicable.’” Kennedy v. Bremerton Sch. Dist., 142 S. Ct. 2407, 2421-22 (2021). “Should a plaintiff make a showing like that,” the burden then shifts to the government to justify its action. Id. at 2422. Bruen confirms that this same approach applies in the Second Amendment context.

Under this approach, therefore, plaintiffs have the burden of establishing that the handgun safety regulations burden their right to “keep and bear” arms. U.S. Const. amend. II. Because they cannot meet this burden, their claim should be rejected based on the text of the Second Amendment alone.

B. Plaintiffs Cannot Establish that the Handgun Safety Regulations Burden Their Second Amendment Right to “Keep and Bear” Arms.

Under Bruen, the constitutional inquiry begins with whether the Second Amendment’s plain text protects the plaintiffs’ “proposed course of conduct.” Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2134. Here, the plaintiffs’ proposed course of conduct is to purchase particular handgun models that have not been shown to include certain basic safety features intended to protect handgun operators and bystanders, even while hundreds of other handgun models are authorized for commercial sale by retailers in Massachusetts.²³ Plaintiffs’ proposed conduct is not protected by the ²³ Gunrunner, a business that proposes to sell handgun models that do not comply with Massachusetts law, cannot assert Second Amendment rights. See Teixeira v. County of Alameda, 873 F.3d 670, 683-87 (9th Cir. 2017) (en banc) (conducting exhaustive textual and historical analysis). The Second Amendment guarantees only an “an individual right to keep and bear arms for self-defense.” Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2125 (emphasis added); see also Heller, 554 U.S. at 592 (the Second Amendment guarantees an “individual right to possess and carry weapons in case of confrontation” (emphasis added)). The Second Amendment “does not confer a

As explained in Bruen, the “central component” of the Second Amendment’s guarantee is “self-defense.” Id. at 2135 (quoting Heller, 554 U.S. at 599). To that end, the term “keep and bear” means that the Second Amendment text protects individuals’ rights to “‘keep’ firearms in their home, at the ready for self-defense,” id. at 2135, and to carry arms on one’s person in and outside the home in case of confrontation, id. at 2136. Nothing in the handgun safety regulations prevents the individual plaintiffs from purchasing, keeping, and carrying a functional handgun for the purpose of self-defense, in the home and in public.

Plaintiffs label the handgun safety regulations as a “Handgun Ban,” see Plaintiffs’-Appellants’ Opening Brief (“Br.”) at 5, 25-26, but this is patently wrong. Plaintiffs identify no more than 18 models of handgun that they cannot purchase from dealers in Massachusetts because of the challenged handgun safety regulations. Compl. ¶¶ 47-50, App. 16-18; Br. at 7-8. But there are over 1,000 freestanding right, wholly detached from any customer’s ability to acquire firearms, upon a proprietor of a commercial establishment to sell firearms.” Teixeira, 873 F.3d at 682. To the extent Gunrunner contends it has third-party standing to assert the rights of its customers, see Plaintiffs’-Appellants’ Opening Brief (“Br.”) at 22-23, that argument is beside the point where the plaintiffs include individuals who have asserted their own Second Amendment claims.

models of handguns on the Approved Firearms Roster, spanning 29 different manufacturers. See June 2021 Roster. If these models also satisfy the Attorney General’s additional requirements, they may be sold by any licensed retailer in Massachusetts. Furthermore, because the handgun safety regulations do not apply at all to private sales, the plaintiffs may be able to purchase any of the 18 models of handguns they wish to acquire through a private sale. See Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, §§ 128A and 128B (authorizing individuals to transfer up to four firearms per year without a license). As a result, plaintiffs have their choice of a diverse range of hundreds of handguns from retailers and private sellers and, with their LTCs, they may lawfully possess and carry those handguns, in the home and in public, in Massachusetts. And the plaintiffs make no allegations whatsoever that the handgun models they seek to purchase are better suited for self-defense than the over 1,000 models of handguns that are available for purchase in Massachusetts. See generally Compl., App. 1-23.

Contrary to plaintiffs’ characterization, the handgun safety regulations do not “target” “handguns” as a “category of arms.” Br. at 25. Instead, the handgun safety regulations restrict the commercial sale of only the narrow subset of handguns that do not comply with the Commonwealth’s basic safety regulations. Plaintiffs seek to have it both ways—arguing, on the one hand, that “the function of the arm is what matters” in applying Bruen’s protections for arms in ““common use’ for self-defense,” Br. at 24; while, on the other, arguing that their Second Amendment rights are burdened despite the availability under the handgun safety regulations of hundreds of models of functional handguns.

The challenged handgun safety regulations are a far cry from the laws invalidated by the Supreme Court in Heller, McDonald, and Bruen. In Heller, the Supreme Court struck down a District of Columbia law that “totally ban[ned] handgun possession in the home.” Heller, 554 U.S. at 628. Similarly, the Court in McDonald struck down municipal laws that “effectively bann[ed] handgun possession by almost all private citizens.” McDonald, 561 U.S. at 750. Finally, in Bruen, the Court struck down New York’s proper-cause requirement for obtaining a license to carry a firearm in public on the understanding that it prohibited the plaintiffs in that case (and most other citizens) from carrying any handgun in public for self-defense. Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2134, 2156; see also id. at 2159 (Alito, J., concurring) (New York licensing law made it “virtually impossible” for most law-abiding citizens to carry a handgun in public). Unlike the laws at issue in Heller, McDonald, and Bruen, the handgun safety regulations do not infringe the individual plaintiffs’ ability to “keep and bear” “handguns” as a category of arms.²⁴

In essence, plaintiffs seek to define the “protected category of arms” in this case as only the subset of handguns that are unavailable for commercial sale due to the handgun safety regulations. But this Court has “squarely reject[ed]” the “suggestion that whatever group of weapons a regulation prohibits may be deemed a class,” because “[b]y this logic, ... virtually any regulation could be considered an ‘absolute prohibition’ of a class of weapons.” Worman v. Healey, 922 F.3d 26, 32 n.2 (1st Cir. 2019). The District Court below similarly wrote that the “fact that [the plaintiffs] cannot purchase every single handgun that may be in common use and available for purchase in other states, does not transform the regulations into a total ban on a category of class of firearms (i.e., handguns in this case),” in part because “[t]o conclude otherwise would eviscerate Heller’s holding that some regulation of firearm possession is permissible.” See Order 11; accord Heller, 554 U.S. at 626 (Second Amendment right is “not a right to keep and carry any weapon whatsoever”). Nothing in Bruen calls into question this sound logic. Indeed, like Heller, Bruen made assurances that “the right secured by the Second Amendment is not unlimited.” Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2128 (quoting Heller, 554 U.S. at 626).²⁵

Because plaintiffs cannot establish that the handgun safety regulations interfere with their ability to keep or carry an operational handgun for the purpose of lawful self-defense, they have not met their burden to show that the text of the Second Amendment covers their proposed conduct. See Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2135. The dismissal of their complaint should be affirmed on this basis alone.

C. Likewise, As Presumptively Lawful Qualifications on the Commercial Sale of Firearms, the Handgun Safety Regulations Do Not Burden the Right to “Keep and Bear Arms.”

Plaintiffs’ Second Amendment claim also fails because the handgun safety regulations are presumptively lawful conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of firearms, which do not burden the right to “keep and bear” arms.

Connecticut defended its law by emphasizing the unusual dangers posed by semi-automatic weapons; it failed to present “any argument” to support banning a non-semi-automatic weapon like the Remington 7615. Id. at 257 n.73. The court therefore concluded that the Connecticut statute failed intermediate scrutiny as to that weapon alone, while also stating: “We do not foreclose the possibility that states could in the future present evidence to support such a prohibition.” Id.; see also id. at 262 n.112. Not only was this mode of analysis abrogated by Bruen, but, if anything, Cuomo supports the defendants’ position here. The Second Circuit upheld the remainder of Connecticut’s (and New York’s) ban on “assault weapons,” concluding that it did not ban an “entire class” of arms, but instead “only a limited subset of semiautomatic firearms, which contain one or more enumerated military-style features,” and thus did not impose a “severe” burden on Second Amendment rights. Id. at 260. Here, the burden on Second Amendment rights is even smaller, and indeed negligible, where plaintiffs have identified only 18 handgun models that are not available for commercial sale in Massachusetts, but they retain the ability to purchase over 1,000 other models.

Heller set forth non-exhaustive categories of “presumptively lawful regulatory measures” that are “presumed to be consistent with the historical scope of the Second Amendment.” Pena, 898 F.3d at 975; see also Silvester v. Harris, 843 F.3d 816, 829-30 (9th Cir. 2016) (Thomas, C.J., concurring) (if a law constitutes a condition or qualification on the commercial sale of firearms, it presumptively does not burden conduct protected by the Second Amendment). Heller stressed that it was not “cast[ing] doubt” on “prohibitions on the possession of firearms by felons and the mentally ill, or laws forbidding the carrying of firearms in sensitive places such as schools and government buildings, or laws imposing conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms.” Heller, 554 U.S. at 626-27 & n.26; see also McDonald, 561 U.S. at 786 (plurality opinion) (quoting the same from Heller and “repeat[ing] those assurances here”). Justice Kavanaugh, joined by Chief Justice Roberts, reiterated in his concurrence in Bruen that both Heller and McDonald were careful not to “cast doubt” on “laws imposing conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms,” among other “presumptively lawful regulatory measures.” Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2162 (Kavanaugh, J., concurring). Nothing in Bruen purported to overturn this critical language in Heller, and, indeed, the majority opinion in Bruen described its opinion as “apply[ing]” “[t]he test that we set forth in Heller.” Id. at 2131.

The handgun safety regulations fall squarely within the category of “laws imposing conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms” that, like the other “presumptively lawful” measures that are “similarly rooted in history, were left intact by the Second Amendment and by Heller.” United States v. Rene E., 583 F.3d 8, 12 (1st Cir. 2009) (quoting Heller, 554 U.S. at 626-27 & n.26). Indeed, the handgun safety regulations function solely and exclusively as a regulation of the commercial sale of handguns. Section 123 is a series of conditions placed on a license issued to a retailer to engage in the commercial sale, rental, or leasing of handguns, rifles, and shotguns. See Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, § 123; see also id. § 122 (license to sell, rent, or lease firearms, rifles, and shotguns). It does not impact an individual’s LTC issued under Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, § 131. Similarly, the Attorney General’s regulations are issued under her authority to declare that certain activity—here, the selling of handguns that lack minimum safety features—constitutes an unfair and deceptive act or practice in the conduct of trade or commerce. See Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 93A, § 2(c). The structure and function of these provisions make clear that they are consumer product regulations requiring that firearms commercially sold in Massachusetts (1) are not defective; (2) contain safety mechanisms; (3) have childproofing features; and (4) have tamper-resistant serial numbers. And all of these requirements apply only to dealers offering firearms for sale in commerce, not to individual gun owners. 940 Code Mass. Regs. § 16.01; accord Mass. Gen. Laws ch. 140, § 123.

The regulations do not prohibit the possession or carrying of a firearm in any way.

The handgun safety regulations are therefore “presumptively lawful” as “conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms” under Heller, 554 U.S. at 626-27 & n.26, an exclusion from the scope of the Second Amendment that the Court did not disturb in Bruen. See 142 S. Ct. at 2131, 2134; id. at 2162 (Kavanaugh, J., concurring); id. at 2157 (Alito, J., concurring). Indeed, in an earlier challenge to one aspect of the handgun safety regulations, the District Court held that the requirement that handguns sold by retailers contain load indicators or magazine safety disconnects “fits comfortably among the categories of regulation that Heller suggested would be ‘presumptively lawful’ because it ‘impos[es] conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms.’” Draper v. Healey, 98 F. Supp. 3d 77, 85 (D. Mass. 2015) (alteration in original) (quoting Heller, 554 U.S. at 626-27), aff’d on other grounds, 827 F.3d 1 (1st Cir. 2016). Where the plaintiffs’ complaint fails to make any plausible allegations that could rebut the presumption that the handgun safety regulations impose no burden on the right to keep and bear arms, the District Court’s dismissal should be affirmed. Cf. Teixeira v. Cnty. of Alameda, 873 F.3d 670, 690 (9th Cir. 2017) (en banc) (Owens, J., concurring) (“The ordinance at issue here falls within that category of ‘presumptively lawful regulatory measures,’ Heller, 554 U.S. at 627 n.26, and plaintiffs therefore ‘cannot state a viable Second Amendment claim.’ Nordyke v. King, 681 F.3d 1041, 1044 (9th Cir. 2012) (en banc).”).

III. The Handgun Safety Regulations Are Consistent with the Historical Tradition of Regulating Firearms for Public Safety.

A. State Laws Dating Back to the Colonial Period Regulated Firearms Safety to Prevent Accidental Injury and Death.

Although plaintiffs’ challenge to the handgun safety regulations founders on the text of the Second Amendment, the regulations are also fully consistent with the Nation’s historical tradition of firearms regulation. Massachusetts, like many other states, has long had laws in place to reduce the dangers posed by firearms and ammunition—including but not limited to firearms and ammunition inspection or “proving” laws; laws strictly regulating the safe storage of firearms and gunpowder; laws prohibiting the sale of weapons to minors; and laws banning configurations of otherwise-lawful weapons that rendered them unusually dangerous, such as “trap guns.” See generally Saul Cornell & Nathan DeDino, A Well Regulated Right: The Early American Origins of Gun Control, 73 Fordham L. Rev. 487, 502-16 (2004) (describing early laws from Massachusetts and other states regulating firearms by, for example, requiring militia to muster periodically to inspect and register citizens’ weapons; and regulating gunpowder and firearm storage); Robert J. Spitzer, Gun Law History in the United States and Second Amendment Right, 80 Law & Contemp. Probs. 55, 62-81 (2017) (summarizing, by category, various forms of firearms regulations, from the colonial era to the early 20th century). Regardless of whether the historical inquiry is deemed to be “fairly straightforward” or to require “a more nuanced approach,” Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2131-32; see pages 22-24, above, the result is the same: the handgun safety regulations pass constitutional muster because they are “relevantly similar” to historical analogues. Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2132.

To be sure, the problems of firearms safety and their fitness for their intended purpose have existed for as long as firearms have. So it is noteworthy that historical laws and rules, particular regarding inspection and testing of firearms and ammunition, are “distinctly similar to,” and not “materially different” from, Massachusetts’s current approach—even if these older laws are understandably less detailed than the current approach, given the vast technological developments in firearms over three centuries. Id. at 2131. And defendants have not found any judicial decisions invalidating these historical laws as violating citizens’ right to keep and bear arms. See id. (under “straightforward” approach, “if some jurisdictions actually attempted to enact analogous regulations during this timeframe, but those proposals were rejected on constitutional grounds, that rejection surely would provide some probative evidence of unconstitutionality”). Below, defendants summarize several categories of historical laws that are “relevantly similar” to the handgun safety regulations: firearms and ammunition “proving” or inspection laws; laws strictly regulating the storage of firearms and gunpowder; laws barring the sale of firearms to minors; and laws banning unusually dangerous configurations of otherwise-lawful firearms, like “trap guns.”

1. Laws Requiring the Inspection or “Proving” of Firearms and Ammunition

In 1805, Massachusetts enacted a law requiring the “proof,” or satisfactory inspection, of all firearms before they could be sold in the Commonwealth.

“Whereas no provision hath been made by law for the proof of Fire Arms manufactured in this Commonwealth by which it is apprehended that many may be introduced into use which are unsafe and thereby the lives of the Citizens be exposed, to prevent which” the Legislature enacted a firearms inspection law.

1804 Mass. Acts. 111, ch. 81, Add. 34-36.²⁶ The law authorized the appointment of up to two persons per county to be “provers of firearms,” “whose duty it shall be to prove all Musket Barrels and Pistol barrels which being sufficiently ground bored and breeched shall be offered to him to be proved.” Id. § 1, Add. 34. The law specified in detail the manner in which provers were to test and inspect the weapons, id., and if the weapons passed inspection, the prover was to stamp the weapon with the inspector’s initials and the year, “so deeply impressed on said barrel as that the same cannot be erased or disfigured.” Id., Add. 34-35.

Weapons that failed this inspection, such that they were “unfit for use,” were not to be stamped, but instead returned to the owner, and they could not be sold in the Commonwealth. Id. §§ 1, 3, Add. 35. The manufacture or sale of weapons that did not contain these stamps subjected the owner to a fine. Id. §§ 2-3, Add. 35. The law also made it unlawful to “forge or alter” the stamp of any prover. Id. § 4, Add. 35-36.²⁷ Maine passed a similar law in 1821. 1821 Me. Laws 546, ch. 162, Add. 56.

It is not surprising that proving laws originated in Massachusetts, which was home to significant firearms manufacturing. Massachusetts’s Springfield armory, for example, was a major source of firearms fabrication and became one of the two official armories for the federal government. See, e.g., National Park Serv., Springfield Armory.²⁸ Though not all States passed firearms proving laws like Massachusetts’s and Maine’s, there certainly was concern elsewhere that firearms be inspected and approved before they were used by militia units. Cornell & DeDino, supra, at 509-10. The New Hampshire House of Representatives, for example, passed a resolution in 1775 calling for the creation of a “stock” of firearms for the militia in that colony, which set the specifications for such firearms and required that they be tested in the presence of a state “Receiver-General” before they were added to the stock. Add. 65. And George Washington, in a letter to Congress in 1783 regarding the organization of a postwar militia, recommended that militia members be regularly mustered and trained, and “have their Arms and Accoutrements inspected at certain appointed times, not less than once or twice in the course of every year.” National Archives, Washington’s Sentiments on a Peace Establishment (May 1, 1783).^{29, 30}

Even more prevalent were laws requiring the inspection of gunpowder. See Spitzer, supra, at 74 (gunpowder regulation was “of great concern because early firearms operated with the addition of loose gunpowder to serve as the igniting or explosive force to propel a projectile, so [firearms and gunpowder regulations] were inextricably linked.”). An 1809 Massachusetts law set requirements for the quality and composition of gunpowder; authorized the appointment of provers to inspect gunpowder before it was placed in any public magazine; required provers to place gunpowder that passed inspection in casks marked with the inspector's initials; authorized inspectors to mark as "condemned" gunpowder that failed inspection; and forbade the sale of gunpowder that was marked condemned or that had not yet passed inspection. 1808 Mass. Acts 444, ch. 52, Add. 37-39. A number of other states likewise adopted gunpowder inspection regulations during this era. See 1776 R.I. Pub. Laws 25 (Oct. Sess.), Add. 97; 1776-77 N.J. Laws 6-7, ch. 6, Add. 79-80; 1820 N.H. Laws 274, ch. 25, Add. 62-64; 1794 Pa. Laws 764, ch. 337, Add. 90-95.

³⁰ In any event, even where “the historical record yields relatively few” examples of a particular type of restriction, if there were “no disputes regarding the lawfulness of such prohibitions,” then a court can “assume it settled” that the restriction could be imposed “consistent with the Second Amendment.” Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2133. Defendants found no indication of any challenge to the lawfulness of these firearms proving laws, much less any court ruling deeming them to violate the right to keep and bear arms. This Court may therefore “assume it settled” that regulations of this kind are consistent with the Second Amendment. Id.; cf. Heller, 554 U.S. at 632 (“fire-safety” laws and regulations intended to “prevent accidents” with firearms do not “remotely burden the right of self-defense”).

These inspection laws are "distinctly similar" to, and certainly "relevantly similar" to, the handgun safety regulations in the "central" way that matters under Bruen: "whether modern and historical regulations impose a comparable burden on the right of armed self-defense and whether that burden is comparably justified." 142 S. Ct. at 2133. These historical laws, like the handgun safety regulations, did not limit citizens' ability to keep and carry weapons for self-defense; instead, they merely prohibited the sale or availability of particular firearms and ammunition that did not pass safety inspections, in the interest of eliminating the safety dangers of weapons and gunpowder that were unfit for their intended purpose. Such laws, like the handgun safety regulations, do not "remotely" burden the right of law-abiding citizens to engage in armed self-defense. Heller, 554 U.S. at 632; see also Pena, 898 F.3d at 978 (California’s similar regulations placed “almost no burden on the physical exercise of Second Amendment rights”).

2. Firearms and Gunpowder Safe Storage Laws

A host of laws from the colonial period through the end of the 19th century imposed requirements on the storage of weapons and gunpowder to minimize the risk of fire, accidental discharge, and explosion. Cornell & DeDino, supra, at 510-12 (surveying gunpowder storage and transportation laws, which were intended to “protect communities from fire and explosion.”); Spitzer, supra, at 80-81 (similar). These laws are relevantly similar because they did not ban an “entire class of arms,” as did the complete handgun bans at issue in Heller and McDonald, nor did they prohibit most law-abiding citizens from carrying a firearm in public, as did the law at issue in Bruen. Instead, these laws merely limited the storage or configuration of certain weapons to minimize the risk of fire, accidental discharge, and explosion. As noted, the Court in Heller stated that “fire-safety” gun storage laws, and regulations intended to “prevent accidents,” do not “remotely burden the right of self-defense,” and thus are valid. 554 U.S. at 632. The same is true of the challenged regulations.

For example, a 1783 Massachusetts law imposed a fine on “any Person” who “shall take into any Dwelling-House, Stable, Barn, Out-house, Ware-house, Store, Shop, or other Building, within the Town of Boston, any ... Fire-Arm, loaded with, or having Gun-Powder.” 1782 Mass. Acts 119, ch. 46, Add. 32-34. This law was discussed in Heller, with Justice Breyer observing in dissent that the law “would, as a practical matter, have prohibited the carrying of loaded firearms anywhere in the city, unless the carrier had no plans to enter any building or was willing to unload or discard his weapons before going inside,” 554 U.S. at 684. The majority nonetheless characterized it as a “fire-safety law” that did not “remotely burden the right of self-defense as much as an absolute ban on handguns.” Id. at 632. The Court added that “laws regulating the storage of firearms to prevent accidents” were permissible. Id.

The challenged handgun safety regulations are much closer to the 1783 firearms storage law than to the absolute ban on all handguns in the home that was at issue in Heller. Indeed, this historical law is relevantly similar to the challenged regulations in the two “metrics” that the Supreme Court deemed important in Bruen: “whether modern and historical regulations impose a comparable burden on the right of armed self-defense and whether that burden is comparably justified.” 142 S. Ct. at 2133. Both laws restricted certain types of weapons (loaded firearms carried inside a building in the historical law vs. handgun models that lack certain safety features or have not passed required safety testing in the challenged regulations), but did not ban an “entire class of ‘arms’” like the complete handgun ban at issue in Heller. 554 U.S. at 628. And both were intended to reduce what might be called the collateral dangers of firearms—i.e., those separate and apart from the intended function of the weapons, such as fire, explosion, and accidental discharge. It is thus significant that the Court in Heller deemed this historical analogue to not “remotely burden the right of self-defense.” Id. at 632. Neither do the challenged regulations here.

Other similar laws abound, particularly with regard to gunpowder, and the defendants are not aware of any court decisions invalidating them. E.g., 1882 Mass. Acts 212, ch. 269, Add. 43-44 (requiring registration of any gunpowder in excess of one pound stored in any building); 1771-72 Mass. Province Laws 167, ch. 9, Add. 29-31 (requiring all gunpowder imported into Massachusetts to be stored in two public magazines, in Boston and Watertown); see also 1832 Conn. Acts 391, ch. 25, Add. 48-49; 1825 N.H. Laws 73, ch. 61, Add. 71-72; 1821 Me. Laws 98, ch. 25, Add. 53-55; 1772 N.Y. Laws 682, ch. 1549, Add. 83-86. The only judicial decision from Massachusetts that comes close to addressing this issue concerned the firing of weapons on or near highways.³¹ In Cole v. Fisher, 11

³¹ Massachusetts, like some other states, had laws prohibiting the discharge of weapons in major cities (like Boston), and on or near public highways. A 1746 Massachusetts law, for example, prohibited “discharg[ing] any Gun or Pistol charged with Shot or Ball in the Town of Boston.” Heller, 554 U.S. at 633 (quoting Act of May 28, 1746, ch. X, Acts and Laws of Mass. Bay, p. 208); see also 1713-14 Mass. Province Laws 720, ch. 6, Add. 28 (prohibiting firing weapons

Mass. 137 (1814), the Supreme Judicial Court held that a defendant could be held liable in tort for wanton or negligent discharge of a firearm near a highway that caused damage to plaintiff's property. Id. at 139. In so holding, the court noted that "discharges of guns in or near the highways ... are to be corrected and punished," not only through tort claims but also, where appropriate, through indictment "as an offender against the public peace and security." Id. The court made no mention of the right to keep and bear arms, see id., despite Massachusetts's constitutional provision that Heller recognized as a close analogue and predecessor to the Second Amendment. 554 U.S. at 601-02; see Mass. Const. Pt. I, Art. XVII (1780). This suggests that the regulation, and punishment, of the collateral effects of wanton or careless use or discharge of a firearm was perfectly consistent with the right to keep and bear arms for self-defense. See Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2131, 2133 (courts may look to whether historical analogues were invalidated by courts on constitutional grounds, and to whether there was "no dispute" regarding the lawfulness of such provisions).

3. Law Banning Sales of Firearms to Minors

Also significant were laws banning the sales of firearms to minors. Part of the impetus for the challenged Massachusetts scheme is a desire to reduce harm to children from the accidental discharge of weapons. See pages 5-7, above. Most of the historical sources cited in plaintiffs’ brief consist of colonial-era newspaper articles reporting that children had been injured or killed by the accidental firing of weapons. Br. at 30-31. Plaintiffs seem to cite these sources to suggest that our ancestors were aware of the problem of harm to children from the accidental discharge of firearms, but chose not to address it through laws.

While the former is undoubtedly true, the latter is indisputably false. As this Court has explained, there exists “a longstanding tradition of prohibiting juveniles from both receiving and possessing handguns.” Rene E., 583 F.3d at 12; see id. at 12-16 (canvassing Founding-era, 19th-century, and 20th-century laws and judicial decisions). In addition to the laws cited above and below, which were intended to make firearms safer by reducing the risk of fire, accidental discharge, and explosion, many states outright banned the sale of firearms to minors. E.g., 1884 Mass. Acts. 57, ch. 76, Add. 45 (banning the sale or furnishing of firearms to children under 15 years old, except by instructors furnishing military weapons to train for militia service); 1882 N.J. Acts 52, ch. 44, Add. 82; see also State v. Callicut, 69 Tenn. 714, 716-17 (1878) (state law making it a misdemeanor to sell, give, or loan a pistol to a minor was “not only constitutional as tending to prevent crime but wise and salutary in all its provisions”); Coleman v. State, 32 Ala. 581, 582-53 (1858) (upholding indictment under 1856 state law making it a crime to sell, give, or lend a pistol to a minor); Spitzer, supra, at 76 (“Numerous laws restricting gun access by minors—minimum ownership ages ranged from twelve to twenty-one ... arose in the late 1800s.”). These laws are relevantly similar in their recognition that children should not be allowed to possess, or fire, guns, and that restrictions should be placed on their ability to do so in order to limit the risk of harm posed by firearms to children. And yet these laws do not restrict the ability of law-abiding adults to keep and carry a firearm for lawful self-defense. See Rene E., 583 F.3d at 15-16 (describing the “evidence that the founding generation would have shared the view that public-safety-based limitations of juvenile possession of firearms were consistent with the right to keep and bear arms”).

4. Dangerous and Unusual Weapons Bans—Trap Guns

From the colonial period through the end of the 19th century (and beyond), states enacted restrictions on “trap guns” (also known as “spring guns” and “infernal machines”), which were firearms that were configured in a way to fire remotely (without the user operating the firearm), typically by rigging the firearm to be fired by a string or wire when tripped. Trap guns were used to hunt wildlife and to protect personal or commercial property against intruders. In 1771, New Jersey passed a law banning trap guns, noting that they represented “a most dangerous Method of setting Guns [that] has too much prevailed in this Province.”

1763-1775 N.J. Laws 346, ch. 540, § 10, Add. 76.³² Other states followed. 1884 Vt. Acts & Resolves 74, No. 76, § 1, Add. 99-100; 1875 Mich. Pub. Acts 136, No. 97, § 1, Add. 58; 1869 Minn. Laws 50, ch. 39, Add. 60-61; see Spitzer, supra, at 67 (surveying these laws).

These laws are relevantly similar because they did not ban a class of weapons per se; instead they banned the configuration of otherwise-common weapons in a certain way that rendered them unusually dangerous. Citizens remained free to keep and carry a rifle or musket, but they were barred from setting those weapons so that they could be fired remotely with a string or wire on their property, because of the unacceptable risk of harm to others. Similarly under the handgun safety regulations, Massachusetts residents with LTCs remain free to keep and carry handguns, they are simply barred from purchasing through a commercial retailer particular models that pose an undue risk of collateral harm. Both in terms of the “how” and “why” of these laws’ impact on Second Amendment rights, they are relevantly similar to the challenged regulations.

Plaintiffs argue that, because the Supreme Court in Heller observed that handguns are “the most popular weapon chosen by Americans for self-defense,”

554 U.S. at 629, then by definition they cannot be “dangerous and unusual”³³ and thus particular models of handguns “cannot be banned, period.” Br. at 25-29. This argument proves far too much, as it would prohibit states from imposing any regulations on handguns, including those that are patently unsafe.³⁴ While the complete ban on handguns at issue in Heller and McDonald were struck down, the Court emphasized that the Second Amendment does not guarantee a “right to keep and carry any weapon whatsoever in any manner whatsoever.” 554 U.S. at 626. Just as states could permissibly outlaw the configuration of otherwise common muskets and rifles as trap guns based on the unusual danger that they posed, so too can states like Massachusetts limit the sale of a small subset of handguns that pose an unusual danger based on the absence of basic safety features, while otherwise leaving hundreds of models of handguns available for purchase and possession by law-abiding, responsible citizens.

The historical record amply demonstrates that the handgun safety regulations are consistent with the Nation’s historical tradition of firearms regulation. This is true whether the question is viewed as a “straightforward” one involving the consideration of the “distinctly similar” firearms and ammunition inspection laws, or one requiring a “more nuanced approach” due to “dramatic technological changes” that entails analysis of additional “relevantly similar” analogues. Bruen, 142 S. Ct. at 2131-32. Either way, the result is the same: the handgun safety regulations are fully consistent with the historical understanding, no less than the text, of the Second Amendment.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, the judgment of the District Court should be affirmed.

Effective: November 4, 2010

Currentness

The chief of police or the board or officer having control of the police in a city or town, or persons authorized by them, may, after an investigation into the criminal history of the applicant to determine eligibility for a license under this section, grant a license to any person except an alien, a minor, a person who has been adjudicated a youthful offender, as defined in section fifty-two of chapter one hundred and nineteen, including those who have not received an adult sentence or a person who has been convicted of a felony or of the unlawful use, possession or sale of narcotic or harmful drugs, to sell, rent or lease firearms, rifles, shotguns or machine guns, or to be in business as a gunsmith. Every license shall specify the street and number of the building where the business is to be carried on, and the license shall not protect a licensee who carries on his business in any other place. The licensing authority to whom such application is made shall cause one copy of said applicant's fingerprints to be forwarded to the department of the state police, who shall within a reasonable time thereafter advise such authority in writing of any criminal record of the applicant. The taking of fingerprints shall not be required in issuing a renewal of a license, if the fingerprints of said applicant are on file with the department of the state police. The licensing authority to whom such application is made shall cause one copy of such application to be forwarded to the commissioner of the department of criminal justice information services. Any person refused a license under this section may within ten days thereafter apply to the colonel of state police for such license, who may direct that said licensing authorities grant said license, if, after a hearing, he is satisfied there were no reasonable grounds for the refusal to grant such license and that the applicant was not barred by the provisions of law from holding such a license. The fee for an application for a license issued under this section shall be $100, which shall be payable to the licensing authority and shall not be prorated or refunded in case of revocation or denial. The licensing authority shall retain $25 of the fee; $50 of the fee shall be deposited into the general fund of the commonwealth; and $25 of the fee shall be deposited in the Firearms Fingerprint Identity Verification Trust Fund. A person licensed to sell, rent or lease firearms, rifles, shotguns or machine guns shall not be assessed any additional fee for a gunsmith's license. Whoever knowingly issues a license in violation of this section shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than two years in a jail or house of correction.

Said book shall be open at all times to the inspection of the police. Third, That the license or a copy thereof, certified by the official issuing the same, shall be displayed on the premises in a position where it can easily be read. Fourth, That no firearm, rifle or shotgun, or machine gun shall be displayed in any outer window of said premises or in any other place where it can readily be seen from the outside. Fifth, That the licensee shall submit a record of all sales, rentals and leases forthwith at the time of such sale, rental or lease via electronic communication link to the commissioner of the department of criminal justice information services. Sixth, That every firearm, rifle or shotgun shall be unloaded when delivered. Seventh, That no delivery of a firearm shall be made to any person not having a license to carry firearms issued under the provisions of section one hundred and thirty-one nor shall any delivery of a rifle or shotgun or ammunition be made to any minor nor to any person not having a license to carry firearms issued under the provisions of section one hundred and thirty-one or a firearm identification card issued under the provisions of section one hundred and twenty-nine B nor shall any large capacity firearm or large capacity feeding device therefor be delivered to any person not having a license to carry firearms issued under section 131 nor shall any large capacity rifle or shotgun or large capacity feeding device therefor be delivered to any person not having a license to carry firearms issued under said section 131; provided, however, that delivery of a firearm by a licensee to a person possessing a valid permit to purchase said firearm issued under the provisions of section one hundred and thirty-one A and a valid firearm identification card issued under section one hundred and twenty-nine B may be made by the licensee to the purchaser's residence or place of business, subject to the restrictions imposed upon such permits as provided under section 131A. Eighth, That no firearm shall be sold, rented or leased to a minor or a person who has not a permit then in force to purchase, rent or lease the same issued under section one hundred and thirty-one A, and a firearm identification card issued under the provisions of section one hundred and twenty-nine B, or unless such person has a license to carry firearms issued under the provisions of section one hundred and thirty-one; nor shall any rifle or shotgun be sold, rented or leased to a person who has not a valid firearm identification card as provided for in section one hundred and twenty-nine B, or has a license to carry firearms as provided in section one hundred and thirty-one; that no large capacity firearm nor large capacity feeding device therefor shall be sold, rented, leased or transferred to any person not having (i) a license to carry firearms issued under section 131 or (ii) a proper permit issued under section 131A and a firearm identification card issued under section 129B; that no large capacity rifle or shotgun nor large capacity feeding device therefor shall be sold to any person not having a license to carry firearms issued under said section 131; and that no machine gun shall be sold, rented or leased to any person who has not a license to possess the same issued under section one hundred and thirty-one. Ninth, That upon the sale, rental or lease of a firearm, subject to a permit to purchase issued under the provisions of section one hundred and thirty-one A, the licensee under section one hundred and twenty-two shall take up such permit to purchase and shall endorse upon it the date and place of said sale, rental or lease, and shall transmit the same to the executive director of the criminal history systems board; and that upon the sale, rental or lease of a machine gun shall endorse upon the license to possess the same the date and place of said sale, rental or lease, and shall within seven days transmit a notice thereof to said executive director. In case of a sale under the provisions of section one hundred and thirty-one E the licensee under section one hundred and twenty-two shall write in the sales record book the number of the license to carry firearms issued the purchaser under the provisions of section one hundred and thirty-one, or the number of the firearm identification card issued the purchaser under the provisions of section one hundred and twenty-nine B, whichever is applicable under the provisions of condition Eighth of this section. Tenth, That this license shall be subject to forfeiture as provided in section one hundred and twenty-five for breach of any of its conditions, and that, if the licensee hereunder is convicted of a violation of any such conditions, this license shall thereupon become void. Eleventh, That the second, fifth, eighth and ninth conditions shall not apply to a gunsmith with regard to repair or remodeling or servicing of firearms, rifles or shotguns unless said gunsmith has manufactured a firearm, rifle or shotgun for the purchaser, but said gunsmith shall keep records of the work done by him together with the names and addresses of his customers. Such records shall be kept open for inspection by the police at all times. Twelfth, That any licensee shall keep records of each sale, rental or lease of a rifle or shotgun, specifying the description of said rifle or shotgun, together with the name and address of the purchaser, renter or lessee, and the date of such transaction. Thirteenth, That the current validity of any firearm identification card, license to carry firearms or permit to purchase, rent or lease firearms presented, and that the person presenting said card, license or permit is the lawful holder thereof, shall be verified by the licensee prior to any sale, rental or lease of a rifle, shotgun, firearm or large capacity feeding device; and, upon being presented with such card or license that is expired, suspended or revoked, the licensee shall notify the licensing authority of the presentment of such expired, suspended or revoked card, license or permit; and further, the licensee may take possession of such card or license provided that, in such case, such licensee shall: (i) issue a receipt, in a form provided by the commissioner of the department of criminal justice information services, to the holder thereof which shall state that the holder's card or license is expired, suspended or revoked, was taken by such licensee and forwarded to the licensing authority by whom it was issued and such receipt shall be valid for the date of issuance for the purpose of providing immunity from prosecution under section 10 of chapter 269 for unlawfully possessing a firearm, rifle or shotgun or large capacity weapon; (ii) notify the cardholder or licensee of his requirement to renew said card or license; and (iii) forward such expired card or license to the licensing authority forthwith; provided, however, that such licensee shall be immune from civil and criminal liability for good faith compliance with the provisions herein. Fourteenth, That the licensee shall conspicuously post at each purchase counter the following warning in bold type not less than one inch in height: "IT IS UNLAWFUL TO STORE OR KEEP A FIREARM, RIFLE, SHOTGUN OR MACHINE GUN IN ANY PLACE UNLESS THAT WEAPON IS EQUIPPED WITH A TAMPER-RESISTANT SAFETY DEVICE OR IS STORED OR KEPT IN A SECURELY LOCKED CONTAINER.", and that such licensee shall provide said warning, in writing, to the purchaser or transferee of any firearm, rifle, shotgun or machine gun in bold type not less than one-quarter inch in height, and further that the licensee shall conspicuously post and distribute at each purchase counter a notice providing information on suicide prevention developed and provided by the division on violence and injury prevention within the department of public health. The department of public health shall develop and make available on its website for download a sign providing the information on suicide prevention. Fifteenth, That all licensees shall maintain a permanent place of business that is not a residence or dwelling wherein all transactions described in this section shall be conducted and wherein all records required to be kept under this section shall be so kept. Sixteenth, That no licensee shall sell, lease, rent, transfer or deliver or offer for sale, lease, rent, transfer or delivery to any person any assault weapon or large capacity feeding device that was not otherwise lawfully possessed on September 13, 1994. Seventeenth, That any licensee from whom a rifle, shotgun, firearm or machine gun is lost or stolen shall report such loss or theft to the licensing authority and the executive director of the criminal history systems board forthwith. Such report shall include a complete description of the weapon, including the make, model, serial number and caliber and whether such weapon is a large capacity weapon. Eighteenth, That no licensee shall sell, rent, lease, transfer or deliver or offer for sale, lease, transfer or delivery any firearm, to any purchaser in the commonwealth unless such sale is to a business entity that is primarily a firearm wholesaler and the sale, by its terms, prohibits the purchaser from reselling such firearm to a firearm retailer or consumer in the commonwealth if such firearm has a frame, barrel, cylinder, slide or breechblock that is composed of: (i) any metal having a melting point of less than 900 degrees Fahrenheit; (ii) any metal having an ultimate tensile strength of less than 55,000 pounds per square inch; or (iii) any powdered metal having a density of less than 7.5 grams per cubic centimeter. This clause shall not apply to any make and model of firearm for which a sample of three firearms in new condition all pass the following test: Each of the three samples shall fire 600 rounds, stopping every 100 rounds to tighten any loose screws and to clean the gun if required by the cleaning schedule in the user manual, and as needed to refill the empty magazine or cylinder to capacity before continuing. For any firearm that is loaded in a manner other than via a detachable magazine, the tester shall also pause every 50 rounds for ten minutes. The ammunition used shall be the type recommended by the firearm manufacturer in its user manual or, if none is recommended, any standard ammunition of the correct caliber in new condition. A firearm shall pass this test if it fires the first 20 rounds without a malfunction, fires the full 600 rounds with not more than six malfunctions and completes the test without any crack or breakage of an operating part of the firearm. The term "crack" or "breakage" shall not include a crack or breakage that does not increase the danger of injury to the user. For purposes of evaluating the results of this test, malfunction shall mean any failure to feed, chamber, fire, extract or eject a round or any failure to accept or eject a magazine or any other failure which prevents the firearm, without manual intervention beyond that needed for routine firing and periodic reloading, from firing the chambered round or moving a new round into position so that the firearm is capable of firing the new round properly. "Malfunction" shall not include a misfire caused by a faulty cartridge the primer of which fails to detonate when properly struck by the firearm's firing mechanism. Nineteenth, That no licensee shall sell, rent, lease, transfer or deliver or offer for sale, lease, transfer or delivery any firearm to any purchaser in the commonwealth unless such sale is to a business entity that is primarily a firearms wholesaler, and the sale, by its terms, prohibits such purchaser from reselling such firearm to a firearm retailer or consumer in the commonwealth if such firearm is prone to accidental discharge which, for purposes of this clause, shall mean any make and model of firearm for which a sample of five firearms in new condition all undergo, and none discharge during, the following test: Each of the five sample firearms shall be: (a) test loaded; (b) set so that the firearm is in a condition such that pulling the trigger and taking any action that must simultaneously accompany the pulling of the trigger as part of the firing procedure would fire the handgun; and (c) dropped onto a solid slab of concrete from a height of one meter from each of the following positions: (i) normal firing position; (ii) upside down; (iii) on grip; (iv) on the muzzle; (v) on either side; and (vi) on the exposed hammer or striker or, if there is no exposed hammer or striker, the rearmost part of the firearm. If the firearm is designed so that its hammer or striker may be set in other positions, each sample firearm shall be tested as above with the hammer or striker in each such position but otherwise in such condition that pulling the trigger, and taking any action that must simultaneously accompany the pulling of the trigger as part of the firing procedure, would fire the firearm. Alternatively, the tester may use additional sample firearms of the same make and model, in a similar condition, for the test of each of these hammer striker settings. Twentieth, That no licensee shall sell, rent, lease, transfer or deliver or offer for sale, lease, transfer or delivery, any firearm to any purchaser in the commonwealth unless such sale is to a business entity that is primarily a firearm wholesaler, and the sale, by its terms, prohibits the purchaser from reselling such firearm to a firearm retailer or consumer in the commonwealth if such firearm is prone to: (i) firing more than once per pull of the trigger; or (ii) explosion during firing. Twenty-first, That no licensee shall sell, rent, lease, transfer or deliver or offer for sale, lease, transfer or delivery any firearm to any purchaser in the commonwealth unless such sale is to a business entity that is primarily a firearm wholesaler and the sale, by its terms, prohibits the purchaser from reselling such firearm to a firearm retailer or consumer in the commonwealth if such firearm has a barrel less than three inches in length, unless the licensee discloses in writing, prior to the transaction, to the prospective buyer, lessee, deliverer or transferee the limitations of the accuracy of the particular make and model of the subject firearm, by disclosing the make and model's average group diameter test result at seven yards, average group diameter test result at 14 yards and average group diameter test result at 21 yards. For purposes of this clause, "average group diameter test result" shall mean the arithmetic mean of three separate trials, each performed as follows on a different sample firearm in new condition of the make and model at issue. Each firearm shall fire five rounds at a target from a set distance and the largest spread in inches between the centers of any of the holes made in a test target shall be measured and recorded. This procedure shall be repeated two more times on the firearm. The arithmetic mean of each of the three recorded results shall be deemed the result of the trial for that particular sample firearm. The ammunition used shall be the type recommended by the firearm manufacturer in its user manual or, if none is recommended, any standard ammunition of the correct caliber in new condition. No licensee shall sell any rifle or shotgun, contrary to the provisions of section one hundred and thirty or section 131E.

Clauses Eighteenth to Twenty-first, inclusive, of the first paragraph shall not apply to: (i) a firearm lawfully owned or possessed under a license issued under this chapter on or before October 21, 1998; (ii) a firearm designated by the secretary of public safety, with the advice of the gun control advisory board, established pursuant to section 131 ½ of chapter 140, as a firearm solely designed and sold for formal target shooting competition; (iii) a stun gun, as defined in section 121; or (iv) a firearm designated by the secretary of public safety, with the advice of the gun control advisory board, established pursuant to section 131 ½ of chapter 140, as a firearm or pistol solely designed and sold for Olympic shooting competition. The secretary of public safety shall compile lists, on a bi-annual basis, of firearms designated as “formal target shooting firearms” and “Olympic competition firearms” in accordance with this paragraph. Such lists shall be made available for distribution by the executive office of public safety and security.

No person licensed under the provisions of section 122 or section 122B shall sell, rent, lease, transfer or deliver any rifle, shotgun or firearm or ammunition or ammunition feeding device contrary to the provisions of section 130 or section 131E; and no such licensee shall sell, rent, lease, transfer or deliver any rifle, shotgun or firearm or ammunition or ammunition feeding device to any person who does not have in his possession the required firearm identification card or proof of exemption therefrom, license to carry firearms or permit to purchase, rent or lease firearms and who does not present such card, proof, license or permit to the licensee in person at the time of purchase, rental or lease. No person licensed under the provisions of section 122 or section 122B shall fill an order for such weapon, ammunition or ammunition feeding device that was received by mail, facsimile, telephone or other telecommunication unless such transaction or transfer includes the in-person presentation of the required card, proof, license or permit as required herein prior to any sale, delivery or any form of transfer of possession of the subject weapon, ammunition or ammunition feeding device. Certified by Attributes means the process used by an independent testing laboratory to determine if a particular model firearm is the functional design equivalent of another model already tested.

Firearm has the same meaning as “firearm” as defined in M.G.L. c. 140, § 121.

Functional Design Equivalent means a firearm whose dimensions and material, as well as linkage and functioning of the magazine well, cylinder, barrel, chamber or any components of the firing mechanism do not differ from a firearm which satisfactorily completed the Testing Requirements. A firearm may be deemed the Functional Design Equivalent of a firearm which differs only in caliber if the larger caliber firearm has satisfactorily completed the Testing Requirements.

GCAB means the Gun Control Advisory Board as provided in M.G.L. c. 140, § 131½, whose members are appointed by the Governor to advise the Secretary on matters relating to the implementation of M.G.L. c. 140, §§ 121 through 131P.

7.03: Development of Approved Firearms Roster

(1) A firearm may be considered for placement on the Approved Firearms Roster only after the Secretary has received a final test report from an approved independent testing laboratory certifying that the specified firearm make and model has successfully completed all testing requirements in compliance with M.G.L. c. 140, § 123 and 501 CMR 7.00, or the Secretary has determined that the firearm is the functional equivalent of a previously approved firearm, or has been tested by another state which has identical testing requirements of the commonwealth, pursuant to 501 CMR 7.04.

(2) The Secretary shall maintain a list of approved independent testing laboratories in accordance with 501 CMR 7.00. The Secretary may add or remove a testing laboratory from this list in accordance with 501 CMR 7.00.

(a) Such approved independent testing laboratory shall not be owned or operated by a firearms manufacturer or by an organization that seeks to promote or restrict firearms ownership.

(b) Any testing laboratory that seeks to be an approved independent testing laboratory shall provide information to the Secretary regarding its capabilities and objectivity.

(3) The GCAB shall review the final test report and shall make a recommendation to the Secretary based on the documentation provided.

(4) The Secretary shall then determine whether the firearm shall be placed on the Approved Firearms Roster. Addition to the Approved Firearms Roster shall serve as notice of compliance with M.G.L. c. 140, § 123.

(5) The Secretary, upon his own initiative, or upon the advice of the GCAB, or through petition from an individual, may determine if a firearm shall be removed from the Approved Firearms Roster. The Secretary shall notify, in writing, the manufacturer of a particular make and model whenever a decision is made to remove such make and model from the Approved Firearms Roster.

This list shall include firearms listed on the most recently published Approved Firearms Roster, and firearm makes and models which have been approved by the Secretary for inclusion on the next published roster. This list of approved firearms shall be maintained by the Executive Office of Public Safety on a publicly available web site, and a printed copy shall be available upon request.

501 CMR: EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF PUBLIC SAFETY

7.04: Criteria for Placement on Approved Firearms Roster

- (1) Testing. The testing of any firearm for placement on the Approved Firearms Roster shall be done by an approved independent testing laboratory. The approved independent testing laboratory shall, at the expense of the entity seeking to have the firearm placed on the Approved Firearms Roster, test the firearm in accordance with the testing requirements and submit a copy of the final test report directly to the Secretary and to the GCAB. Satisfactory completion of the required tests shall mean that a firearm make and model meets or exceeds the testing requirements of M.G.L. c. 140, § 123 and 501 CMR 7.00.
- (2) Functional Equivalent. A firearm model shall be deemed to satisfy the testing requirements if another firearm model made by the same manufacturer is the functional design equivalent of a firearm model that has satisfactorily completed the required tests, provided that the approved independent testing laboratory certifies that the firearm model is the functional design equivalent of another model already tested, and provides a written explanation for its reasoning appended with all supporting documentation used to reach its conclusion to the Secretary and to the GCAB.
- (3) Tests Required by Other States.
 - (a) If another state requires testing which is identical to the testing required by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and such testing is performed by an independent testing laboratory approved by the Secretary, a final test report from the approved independent testing laboratory to the Secretary and the GCAB that the specified firearm make and model satisfactorily completed all testing requirements in compliance with M.G.L. c. 140, § 123 will be sufficient for submission to the GCAB without performing the tests again.
 - (b) If another state requires testing which includes some tests identical to the testing required by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and such testing is performed by an independent testing laboratory approved by the Secretary, a final test report from the approved independent testing laboratory that the specified firearm make and model satisfactorily completed all testing requirements in compliance with M.G.L. c. 140, § 123 will be sufficient for submission to the GCAB without performing again the portions of the testing requirements already performed as part of the other state's requirements; provided, however, that any additional tests required by the commonwealth but not required by the other state are in fact performed by an approved independent testing laboratory.

7.05: Compliance with the Approved Roster by Licensees

Any licensee that sells, rents, leases, delivers or offers for sale, rent, lease, transfer or delivery any firearm not an approved firearm shall be considered in violation of M.G.L. c. 140, § 123, except for:

- (a) The sale, rental, lease, transfer or delivery of an individual firearm as defined in 501 CMR 7.00 which was lawfully owned or possessed under a license as defined in M.G.L. c. 140, §§ 122, 129B, 131 and 131F prior to October 21, 1998;
- (b) The delivery of a firearm to a licensed gunsmith for the purposes of service or repair of a firearm or the return of a firearm to its lawful owner after service or repair by a licensed gunsmith;
- (c) The return of a firearm by a licensee to its lawful owner where that firearm was initially delivered to that licensee for the purpose of consignment; or
- (d) The sale, rental, lease, transfer or delivery of a firearm listed on the Formal Target Shooting Firearms Roster.

7.06: Appeals for Inclusion on or Removal from the Approved Firearms Roster

- (1) A person may petition the Secretary to place a firearm on or remove a firearm from the Approved Firearms Roster within 90 days of the Secretary's original denial or approval for inclusion on the Approved Firearms Roster. The Secretary's original denial or approval shall be considered to take place upon the date of publication of the next edition of the Approved Firearms Roster following the GCAB's recommendation to the Secretary regarding denial or approval of the firearm at issue.
- (2) Said petition shall include a written explanation citing the rationale for the inclusion or removal of a firearm with all documentation used to justify the request appended thereto.

501 CMR: EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF PUBLIC SAFETY

(4) The Secretary shall, within 45 days of receipt of a petition, notify the petitioner by certified mail whether the petition is approved or denied. If the petition is approved, the Secretary shall include the make and model of the firearm on its list of all approved firearms and on the next publication of the Approved Firearms Roster.

(6) Notice of the Regulations of the Office of the Attorney General as follows: “Massachusetts licensed firearms dealers should note that the transfers of handguns are also subject to the Attorney General’s regulations at 940 CMR 16.00: Handgun Sales. Firearms on this Approved Firearms Roster do not necessarily comply with the requirements of 940 CMR 16.00. 16.01: Definitions

For purposes of 940 CMR 16.00, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

Average group diameter test result: shall mean the arithmetic mean of three separate group diameter test results taken from a set distance.

- (c) a rifled bore with a barrel less than 16 inches.

940 CMR: OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

 - 4. on the muzzle,
 - 5. on either side, and
 - 6. on the exposed hammer or striker (or if there is no exposed hammer or striker, then the rearmost part of the firearm).

In addition, if the handgun is designed so that its hammer or striker may be set in other positions, the handgun in question shall be tested with the hammer or striker in each such position (but otherwise ready to fire). Alternatively, the tester may use different handguns of the same make and model, in similar condition, for the test of each of these hammer/striker settings.

Handgun Performance Test: shall mean a test in which the handgun in question shall fire 600 rounds, stopping every 100 rounds to tighten any loose screws and to clean the gun (if required by the cleaning schedule in the user manual), and as needed to refill the empty magazine or cylinder to capacity before continuing. For any handgun that loads other than via a detachable magazine, the tester shall also pause every 50 rounds for ten minutes. The ammunition used shall be the type recommended by the handgun manufacturer in its user manual, or if none is recommended, any standard ammunition of the correct caliber in new condition. A handgun shall pass this test if it:

- (a) fires the first 20 rounds without a malfunction, and
- (b) fires the full 600 rounds with no more than six malfunctions and without any crack or breakage of an operating part of the handgun which increases the danger of injury to the user.

Handgun-purveyor: shall mean any person or entity that transfers handguns to a customer located within the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. However, handgun-purveyor shall not include any of the aforementioned if:

- (a) the person or entity transfers less than five handguns per year,
- (b) the transfer in question is for the purpose of, and does, directly or indirectly, supply law enforcement officials or United States military personnel with handguns for their official duties,
- (c) the transfer in question is for the purpose of, and does, directly or indirectly, supply museums or educational collectors with the handguns in question,
- (d) the transfer in question is undertaken to, and does, result in the surrender of handguns to military or law enforcement personnel,
- (e) the transfer in question is of handguns that qualify as antique firearms as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 921, or
- (f) the transfer in question is of handguns that are solely designed and sold specifically for formal target shooting competition.

Key activated trigger lock: shall mean a device that when locked in place by means of a key, prevents a potential user from pulling the trigger of the handgun without first removing the trigger lock by use of the trigger lock's key.

Load indicator: shall mean a device which plainly indicates that a cartridge is in the firing chamber within the handgun.

Magazine safety disconnect: shall mean a device that prevents the firing of the handgun when the magazine is detached from the handgun.

Make and model: shall mean any group of handguns, all of which are made by a manufacturer by the same method and according to the same design pattern and specifications.

Make and Model Performance Requirements: shall mean a test in which three handguns in new condition of the make and model being tested shall each pass the Handgun Performance Test.

Make and Model's Average Group Diameter Test Result: shall mean the arithmetic mean of the results of three Average Group Diameter Tests, each performed on a different handgun in new condition of the make and model being tested.

Malfunction: shall mean any failure to feed, chamber, fire, extract, or eject a round, or any failure to accept or eject a magazine, or any other failure which prevents the handgun, without manual intervention beyond that needed for routine firing and periodic reloading, from firing the chambered round or moving a new round into position so that the handgun is capable of firing the new round properly. Malfunction shall not include a misfire caused by a faulty cartridge whose primer fails to detonate when properly hit by the handgun's firing mechanism.

Passive use-limitation device: shall mean a device that automatically resets itself so that an unauthorized user cannot fire the handgun. As an example, a key activated trigger lock is not a passive use-limitation device because it needs to be re-locked manually after its key is used to unlock it; thus the next user can fire the handgun without having to unlock the handgun.

Prone to accidental discharge: shall mean unable to pass the following test: five handguns in new condition of the make and model in question shall each be subjected to, and none shall discharge during, the Handgun Drop Test.

Ready to fire: shall mean loaded, and in a condition such that pulling the trigger (and taking any action that must simultaneously accompany the pulling of the trigger as part of the firing procedure) will fire the handgun.

Serial number: shall mean the number stamped, inscribed, or placed upon a handgun by a handgun-purveyor pursuant to M.G.L. c. 269, § 11E.

Solenoid use-limitation device: shall mean a device which precludes, by use of a magnetically activated relay, the firing of the handgun unless a magnet of the appropriate strength is placed in proximity to the handle of the handgun. Such magnet may be imbedded in a ring which can be worn on the user's gun hand.

Test loaded: shall mean loading each chamber of the handgun in question with an empty case with a primer installed.

Transfer: shall mean sell, rent, or lease. Transfer shall not include a sale to a business entity that is primarily a firearm wholesaler, so long as the sale, by its terms, prohibits the purchaser from reselling the handgun to a handgun retailer or consumer in the Commonwealth.

16.02: Unfair or Deceptive Practices: General

(1) It shall be an unfair or deceptive practice for any handgun-purveyor, in conjunction with the transfer (or offer to transfer) of a handgun to a consumer in the Commonwealth, to fail to comply with M.G.L. c. 93A, 940 CMR 16.00 et seq., or any other existing local, state, or federal statute, rule or regulation whose implementation serves to protect consumers from unfair and deceptive practices by means including, but not limited to, regulating conditions of sale, precluding the sale of products when such sale will place purchasers in violation of the law, demanding the disclosure of information, and ensuring the satisfactory condition and non-contraband status of goods proffered for sale. Examples of the above include laws, regulations, and rules that:

- (a) forbid the sale of handguns to juveniles, addicts, or mentally incompetent individuals,
- (b) forbid the sale of silencers, armor penetrating bullets, or machine-gun pistols (when possession by purchasers will be unlawful),
- (c) forbid participation in any way in the obliteration of serial numbers from handguns prior to sale,
- (d) forbid the sale of handguns whose serial numbers have been defaced,

- (e) require sellers to keep records of handgun sales,
 - (f) forbid sellers from delivering or transporting handguns loaded, or
 - (g) forbid the delivery of handguns to the custody of a minor.
- (2) It shall be an unfair or deceptive practice for a handgun-purveyor to make material misrepresentations or make false certifications regarding any handgun offered for transfer.

16.03: Tamper-Resistant Serial Numbers

It shall be an unfair or deceptive practice for a handgun-purveyor to transfer or offer to transfer to any customer located within the Commonwealth any handgun on which the serial number has been placed solely in a location on the handgun that results in the number's susceptibility to eradication. A serial number shall be deemed not susceptible to eradication for purposes of 940 CMR 16.00 if:

- (1) it is placed on the interior of the handgun, and the handgun-purveyor provides information regarding the location of the interior serial number to the Office of the Attorney General and other law enforcement officials upon request; or
- (2) it is placed on the exterior of the handgun in a way that is not visible to the unaided eye, but is visible with the aid of an infrared detector or other device, and the handgun-purveyor provides information regarding the location of the nonvisible serial number or any method by which this number can be made viewable to the Office of the Attorney General and other law enforcement officials upon request.

16.04: Sale of Handguns Made From Inferior Materials

It shall be an unfair or deceptive practice for a handgun-purveyor to transfer or offer to transfer to any customer located within the Commonwealth any make and model of handgun that:

- (1) has a frame, barrel, cylinder, slide or breechblock:
 - (a) composed of any metal having a melting point of less than 900°F,
 - (b) composed of any material having an ultimate tensile strength of less than 55,000 pounds per square inch, or
 - (c) composed of any powdered metal having a density of less than 7.5 grams per cubic centimeter; or
- (2) is prone to repeated firing based on a single pull of the trigger, prone to the explosion of the handgun during firing with standard ammunition, or prone to accidental discharge.
- (3) 940 CMR 16.04(1) shall not apply to any make and model of handgun which satisfies the Make and Model Performance Requirements. The Attorney General may require that the handgun-purveyor, or the entity testing the make and model in question on behalf of the handgun-purveyor, provide a sworn certification verifying that the make and model met the performance requirements. At the Attorney General's discretion, he may, upon 60 days notice, require that any such test be performed again by an independent testing entity chosen by the Attorney General, upon three test guns of the make and model purchased at retail. In such a case, the prior certification shall be prospectively invalid at the conclusion of the notice period and the make and model in question may henceforth only meet the Make and Model Performance Requirements by obtaining a certification from the independent tester. A handgun-purveyor may resubmit a make and model to the independent tester for testing an unlimited number of times.

16.05: Sale of Handguns Without Childproofing or Safety Devices

- (1) It shall be an unfair or deceptive practice to sell a handgun without a safety device in violation of M.G.L. c. 140, § 131K.
- (2) It shall be an unfair or deceptive practice for a handgun-purveyor to transfer or offer to transfer to any customer located within the Commonwealth any handgun which does not contain a mechanism which effectively precludes an average five year old child from operating the handgun when it is ready to fire; such mechanisms shall include, but are not limited to: raising trigger resistance to at least a ten pound pull, altering the firing mechanism so that an average five year old child's hands are too small to operate the handgun, or requiring a series of multiple motions in order to fire the handgun.

(3) It shall be an unfair or deceptive practice for a handgun-purveyor to transfer or offer to transfer to any customer located within the Commonwealth any handgun which does not contain a load indicator or magazine safety disconnect.

(4) 940 CMR 16.05(2) shall not apply to handguns which have a hammer deactivation device. 940 CMR 16.05(3) applies only to handguns that have a mechanism to load cartridges via a magazine.

16.06: Safety Warning/Disclosures

(1) It shall be an unfair or deceptive practice for a handgun-purveyor to transfer or offer to transfer to any customer located within the Commonwealth any handgun unless that handgun is accompanied by the following warning, provided on a separate sheet of paper included within the packaging enclosing the gun, which, in at least 12 point type, states the following:

"WARNING FROM THE MASSACHUSETTS ATTORNEY GENERAL: This handgun is not equipped with a device that fully blocks use by unauthorized users. More than 200,000 firearms like this one are stolen from their owners every year in the United States. In addition, there are more than a thousand suicides each year by younger children and teenagers who get access to firearms. Hundreds more die from accidental discharge. It is likely that many more children sustain serious wounds, or inflict such wounds accidentally on others. In order to limit the chance of such misuse, it is imperative that you keep this weapon locked in a secure place and take other steps necessary to limit the possibility of theft or accident. Failure to take reasonable preventive steps may result in innocent lives being lost, and in some circumstances may result in your liability for these deaths."

Failure to include this warning in the packaging enclosing the gun shall not be a violation of 940 CMR 16.00 if the handgun in question complies with 940 CMR 16.05(1) by means of a built-in passive use-limitation device, including but not limited to a nondetachable solenoid use-limitation device.

(2) It shall be an unfair or deceptive practice for a handgun-purveyor to transfer a handgun directly to a retail customer located within the Commonwealth without demonstrating how to load, unload, and safely store the handgun, and how to engage and disengage all safety devices on the handgun. This shall include an explanation of the circumstances for which the safety devices are designed to prevent the firing of the handgun. The handgun-purveyor shall also note for the retail customer the absence, if any, of the following: a load indicator, a magazine safety disconnect or an internal safety.

(3) It shall be an unfair or deceptive practice for a handgun purveyor to transfer to a customer located within the Commonwealth a handgun that has a barrel shorter than three inches, unless the handgun purveyor discloses the limits of the accuracy of the make and model of handgun for sale by providing in writing to the customer (prior to sale) the make and model's average group diameter test result at seven yards, average group diameter test result at 14 yards, and average group diameter test result at 21 yards.

16.07: Transfers of Used Handguns

(1) 940 CMR 16.03 and 16.05(2) and (3) shall not apply to the transfer of (or offer to transfer) any handgun that previously has been sold at retail to a consumer and that was manufactured prior to the enforcement date for those provisions.

(2) 940 CMR 16.06(3) shall not apply to the transfer of (or offer to transfer) any handgun that previously has been sold at retail to a consumer, was manufactured prior to the enforcement date for 940 CMR 16.06(3), and for which the handgun-purveyor discloses the limits of the accuracy of the specific handgun for sale by providing in writing to the customer (prior to sale) the handgun's average group diameter test result at seven yards, average group diameter test result at 14 yards, and average group diameter test result at 21 yards.

(3) 940 CMR 16.04(2), as it pertains to any make and model prone to accidental discharge, shall not apply to the transfer of (or offer to transfer) any handgun that previously has been sold at retail to a consumer, was manufactured prior to the enforcement date for 940 CMR 16.04(2), and for which the handgun-purveyor provides to the buyer a sworn certification that the handgun-purveyor has performed the Handgun Drop Test on the handgun in question in fully cocked position, and on the same handgun (or on other handguns of the same make and model in similar condition) in all other hammer/striker positions, and that there were no discharges during the test.

(4) 940 CMR 16.04(1) shall not apply to the transfer of (or offer to transfer) any handgun that previously has been sold at retail to a consumer, was manufactured prior to the enforcement date for 940 CMR 16.04(1), and for which the handgun-purveyor provides a sworn certification to the buyer that the specific handgun purchased passed the Handgun Performance Test.

16.08: Severability

If any section or subsection of 940 CMR 16.00 shall be held invalid, the validity of the remainder of 940 CMR 16.00 shall not be affected thereby. If the application of any section or subsection of 940 CMR 16.00 to any person or circumstance shall be held invalid, the applicability of such section or subsection to any other person or circumstance shall not be affected thereby.

16.09: Enforcement Dates

940 CMR 16.00 shall apply as follows:

- (1) 940 CMR 16.01, 16.02, and 16.08, and 940 CMR 16.06(1) and (2) shall apply to acts committed or practices in force as of January 15, 1998;
- (2) 940 CMR 16.04 and 940 CMR 16.06(3), 16.07(2), (3) and (4) shall apply to acts committed or practices in force as of June 30, 1998; and
- (3) 940 CMR 16.03 and 16.05, and 940 CMR 16.07(1) shall apply to acts committed or practices in force as of September 30, 1998.

An ACT providing for the Inspection of Gun-powder.

WHEREAS gun-powder imported from abroad, and manufactured within this state, hath frequently been found to vary much in its strength, and sometimes of inferior qualities, and its defects not discovered until brought into actual use : And whereas the modes heretofore used to prove the force thereof have been found uncertain and variable : And whereas Joseph Leacock, of the city of Philadelphia, hath invented an engine, called a pendulum powder proof, with a graduated arch and catch-pall, by which it is conceived that the force of gun-powder may be proved by experiment, and the article reduced to certain and uniform standards of strength, whereby the manufacture may be advanced towards ultimate perfection, and the purchaser and consumer protected against fraud and imposition :

Gun-powder manufactured in this state, how to be packed in casks.

SECTION I. Be it therefore enacted by the SENATE and HOUSE of REPRESENTATIVES of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That, from and after the first day of October next, all gun-powder manufactured within this state, with intent

All gun-powder manufactured, or imported, to be deposited in the magazine.

SECT. II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That David Rittenhouse, Francis Gurney and Thomas Procter be, and they are hereby, appointed Commissioners, to procure at least two pendulum powder proofs, upon the construction invented by the said Joseph Leacock, as nearly uniform in the length of the radius and weight of pendulum, and in length of caliber and weight of the pistol, as they can procure the same, and therewith make experiments of the respective strength or force of the several species of gun-powder imported from abroad, and manufactured within this state, sufficient in number to ascertain the quality and force of three different degrees of strength in explosion, and marking the number of degrees on the graduated arch of the said engine, to which equal quantities by weight of the said three species of gun-powder, rammed with equal force into the pistol, shall elevate the said pendulum; and the powder, which shall be barely capable of raising the said pendulum to the lowest rate of elevation, shall be the standard for the state of Pennsylvania for gun-powder of the first or lowest proof; and the powder, which shall be capable of raising the said pendulum to the highest rate of elevation, shall be the standard of gun-powder for the state of Pennsylvania of the third or highest proof; and the middle or second proof standard of gun-powder shall be ascertained by the number of degrees on the said graduated arch, to which the same quantity by weight in equal moieties of the first and third proof powder shall be capable of raising the said pendulum; and the said standard being so fixed and ascertained, the said Commissioners shall make report thereof in writing, by indentures under their hands and seals, one part thereof, together with one of the said two pendulum powder proofs, and as accurate a draft and description thereof as can be made shall be returned to the Governor, to be filed and remain in the office of the Secretary of the commonwealth; one other part shall be returned to the Master of the Rolls, to be recorded in his office, and filed among the laws of the state; and the other part,
