Electronics EPR recommendation

EPR Commission recommendation on batteries

The Commission endorses enactment of legislation to establish an extended producer responsibility program for electronics. The Commission recommends the development and implementation of a program that aligns with existing programs in other states to the greatest extent possible.

The Commission acknowledges proposed electronics EPR legislation under consideration before the Massachusetts legislature at the time of this recommendation—H.1015 and S.653—but does not endorse any specific bill.

Specific recommendations on elements to include in electronic EPR legislation are as follows:

Covered products	Computers, laptops, tablets, monitors, televisions, printers, computer peripherals; in 2026 to include fax machines, DVD players, VCRs, portable music players, game consoles, digital converter boxes, cable/satellite receivers, scanners, small-scale servers, routers, modems
Covered entities	Households, schools, government, small business
Performance goal	Convenience standard and target reduction of electronics in the waste stream
Collection/recycling service	Must include municipal electronics collection points
Financial structure	No fee to covered entity. Funding covered by producer based on market share of total cost, including orphaned electronics.
Recycling standards	Entities processing electronics on behalf of producers must have E-stewards, R2 certification or equivalent
Outreach and education	Comprehensive outreach and education plan by producers

Other recommended initiatives to consider

Although most electronic EPR laws do not include issues related to right-to-repair, several states (California, Connecticut, New York, Oregon) have passed right-to-repair legislation or have legislation pending. A right-to-repair law would make extending the life of existing electronics easier by increasing consumer and repair shops' access to necessary parts, tools, and documentation.

Plastics/packaging EPR recommendation

Draft EPR Commission recommendation on packaging EPR

The Commission endorses the concept of EPR for plastics and packaging. Due to the vast amount of technical information and expanded stakeholder engagement needed to advance such an initiative, the Commission recommends that MassDEP be charged with establishing a subcommittee of its Solid Waste Advisory Committee to further discuss EPR for plastics and packaging and be provided the necessary resources to pursue a needs assessment, which will help determine how EPR for plastics and packaging could have a meaningful impact on advancing material recovery in the Commonwealth.
