Electronics EPR recommendation

EPR Commission recommendation on batteries

The Commission endorses enactment of legislation to establish an extended producer responsibility program for electronics. The Commission recommends the development and implementation of a program that aligns with existing programs in other states to the greatest extent possible.

The Commission acknowledges proposed electronics EPR legislation under consideration before the Massachusetts legislature at the time of this recommendation—H.1015 and S.653—but does not endorse any specific bill.

Specific recommendations on elements to include in electronic EPR legislation are as follows:

Covered products	Computers, laptops, tablets, monitors, televisions, printers, computer peripherals; in 2026 to include fax machines, DVD players, VCRs, portable music players, game consoles, digital converter boxes, cable/satellite receivers, scanners, small-scale servers, routers, modems
Covered entities	Households, schools, government, small business
Performance goal	Convenience standard and target reduction of electronics in the waste stream
Collection/recycling service	Must include municipal electronics collection points
Financial structure	No fee to covered entity. Funding covered by producer based on market share of total cost, including orphaned electronics.
Recycling standards	Entities processing electronics on behalf of producers must have E-stewards, R2 certification or equivalent
Outreach and education	Comprehensive outreach and education plan by producers

Other recommended initiatives to consider

Although most electronic EPR laws do not include issues related to right-to-repair, several states (California, Connecticut, New York, Oregon) have passed right-to-repair legislation or have legislation pending. A right-to-repair law would make extending the life of existing electronics easier by increasing consumer and repair shops' access to necessary parts, tools, and documentation.

Electronics recommendation: suggested edits

The Commission endorses enactment of legislation to establish an extended producer responsibility program for electronics. The Commission recommends the development and implementation of a program that aligns with existing programs in other states to the greatest extent possible.

The Commission acknowledges proposed electronics EPR legislation under consideration before the Massachusetts legislature at the time of this recommendation—H.1015 and S.653—but does not endorse any specific bill.

Specific recommendations on elements to consider in electronic EPR legislation are as follows:

Covered products	Year 1: Computers, laptops, tablets, monitors, televisions, printers, computer peripherals, cell phones; Year 2: fax machines, DVD players, VCRs, portable music players, video game consoles, digital converter boxes, cable/satellite receivers, scanners, small-scale servers, routers, modems
Covered entities	Households, public schools, government, small business or restrict number of units to return
Performance goal	Convenience standard and target reduction of electronics in the waste stream
Collection/recycling service	Must allow municipal electronics collection points to opt in
Financial structure	No fee to covered entities. Funding covered by producer based on market share of total cost, including orphaned electronics.
Recycling standards	Entities processing electronics on behalf of producers must have E-stewards, R2 certification or equivalent
Outreach and education	Comprehensive statewide outreach and education plan by producers

Other recommended initiatives to consider

Although most electronic EPR laws do not include issues related to right-to-repair, several states (California, Connecticut, New York, Oregon) have passed right-to-repair legislation or have legislation pending. A right-to-repair law would make extending the life of existing electronics easier by increasing consumer and repair shops' access to necessary parts, tools, and documentation.

Plastics/packaging EPR recommendation

Draft EPR Commission recommendation on packaging EPR

The Commission endorses the concept of EPR for plastics and packaging. Due to the vast amount of technical information and expanded stakeholder engagement needed to advance such an initiative, the Commission recommends that MassDEP be charged with establishing a subcommittee of its Solid Waste Advisory Committee to further discuss EPR for plastics and packaging and be provided the necessary resources to pursue a needs assessment, which will help determine how EPR for plastics and packaging could have a meaningful impact on advancing material recovery in the Commonwealth.

Packaging EPR recommendation: suggested edits

The Commission recommends to explore further the concept of EPR for plastics and other packaging. Due to the vast amount of technical information and expanded stakeholder engagement needed to advance such an initiative, the Commission recommends that MassDEP be charged with establishing a subcommittee of its Solid Waste Advisory Committee to further investigate EPR for plastics and other packaging, and that the legislature appropriate the necessary resources to complete a needs assessment within two years of appropriation, which will provide data to determine how/whether EPR for plastics and other packaging could have a meaningful impact on advancing material recovery and waste reduction in the Commonwealth. Consideration should be given to the scope of covered materials. The subcommittee composition should represent relevant stakeholder interests and subject matter expertise.

The Commission acknowledges proposed plastics and other packaging needs assessment legislation under consideration before the Massachusetts Legislature at this time—S.570—but does not endorse any specific bill.
