After a hearing on the petitioner's petition to seal record(s) under G. L. c. 276, § 100C, the Court finds, pursuant to Commonwealth v. Pon, 469 Mass. 296 (2014), that good cause has been shown for overriding the presumption of public access to court records because:

- 1. The petitioner has alleged with sufficient particularity and credibility that some disadvantage stemming from the availability of his/her criminal record(s) exists at this time or is likely to exist in the foreseeable future, namely:
 - risk of unemployment, underemployment, homelessness, or denial of housing
 - demonstrated desire to pursue an occupation in which employers have access to nonconviction records
 - impeded ability to participate in community or volunteer activities
 - potential for reduced opportunities for economic or professional advancement
 - reliance on public assistance for support despite efforts to achieve gainful employment
 - other: _____
- The Court takes judicial notice that the existence of a criminal record can present barriers to housing and employment opportunities.
- 2. The petitioner has shown meaningful efforts towards rehabilitation, namely:
 - employment attempts
 - community or civic engagements
 - awards, certificates, letters of support
 - other: _____
 - successful period of sobriety or mental health treatment
 - successful completion of a probationary period
 - lack of further contact with the criminal justice system
- 3. The petitioner has shown that sealing would alleviate an identified disadvantage, namely:
 - nature of underlying crime(s)
 - no additional safety threat to community
 - other: _____
 - stigma or stereotypes attached to the crime(s)
 - positive impact of sealing on sense of privacy
- 4. The petitioner's circumstances at the time of the offense(s) (e.g., age, history of prior criminal activity)
 - support
 - do not support a likelihood of success in not reoffending:_____

- 5. The passage of time since the date of the offense(s) and the date of disposition of the case(s) supports does not support good cause for sealing.
- 6. The nature and reason for the disposition of the case(s) supports does not support good cause for sealing.
- 7. Other factors considered at the hearing, if any, include: _____
