Crisis Intervention Strategies for Frontline Workers During COVID

Date: June 14, 2021

Time: 11:00 a.m.-12:00 p.m.

Location: Zoom

Course Number: X01

Subject matter experts from the International Critical Incident Stress Foundation (ICISF) will conduct two, 1-hour virtual workshops on assisting first responders, healthcare workers, and other front line workers with the trauma and stress experienced in their occupations during the on-going COVID-19 pandemic.

The world changed in a drastic and sudden manner when the coronavirus emerged as a global threat in early 2020. As businesses shut down and most workers stayed home, first responders, healthcare workers, and other frontline personnel were among the few who continued to go into work. These brave individuals risked their lives, working in a hazardous and uncertain environment to provide critical services to the rest of the population. Having now worked in these conditions for over a year, they have experienced both extended and acute stressors that are unique to this period in history, and require specialized interventions to help them overcome these experiences.

Crisis Intervention Strategies for Healthcare Workers During COVID will cover:

1. Crisis intervention strategies for addressing the impact of the pandemic on healthcare workers.
2. Pandemic specific stressors impacting healthcare workers.

Crisis Intervention Strategies for Frontline Workers During COVID will cover:

1. Crisis intervention strategies for addressing the impact of the pandemic on front line workers.
2. Pandemic specific stressors impacting front line workers.
3. Lessons learned to date in providing support to front line workers during the pandemic

These presentations are open to all first responders, government officials, and members of established Critical Incident Stress Management (CISM) Teams. Registration will be closed 48 hours prior to each webinar.
