Description	The resident requested advocacy to assist with greater community integration. He is a younger adult who uses a motorized wheelchair for mobility, and he has vocalized anger and frustration regarding the limitations of living in a nursing facility, including lack of meaningful activities and the facility's refusal to "allow" him to leave the building independently. The resident was experiencing ongoing conflict with facility staff as he expressed his frustration, and this further contributed to a sense of isolation and helplessness.	The resident requested advocacy after he was served an eviction notice because staff believed he was misrepresenting himself by not being as independent and interactive in the community as he was capable of and should be. The resident was also told he could not have a shower when a family member was visiting, that the family member needs to call the residence before any visits, and that he could not keep snacks in his apartment.

Disposition narrative	The Ombudsman provided education and support to the resident concerning his rights, and met with facility staff to discuss the importance of providing activities that would meet his needs. The Ombudsman successfully advocated for facility staff to assist the resident with wheelchair-accessible transportation to the local commuter rail station. This led to independent shopping trips to past neighborhoods and beyond, allowed for meet ups with friends and to purchase supplies, snacks and food items that he can use to cook an occasional meal for himself at the facility. When the resident expressed concern that his wheelchair could malfunction while he is away from the facility, the Ombudsman successfully advocated for a maintenance check of the chair to ensure its safe and reliable operation. The Ombudsman discussed additional community opportunities with the resident and the staff, resulting in the local senior center assisting with transportation arrangements so he could attend events of interest at the center, including cooking demonstrations, which were very popular. The resident became a valued participant at the Senior Center, further enhancing his sense of self and purpose. As the resident developed a new person-centered routine and experienced greater independence to pursue his interests, his conflicts with the staff decreased significantly and they have formed relationships based on their new understanding of and appreciation for the resident's lifestyle and experience. Consequently, the resident feels more respected and appreciated and he is also participating more in facility life. The resident shared with the Ombudsman that his mental health has improved and he now feels that his life has purpose and meaning.	The Ombudsman suggested and participated in a service plan meeting with the resident, his family member, the Executive Director, and the Resident Care Director. The Ombudsman provided education to staff about how to involve the resident to create a person-centered service plan, focusing on the resident's goals and strengths, rather than staff desires and goals for the resident. The Ombudsman facilitated discussion during the meeting so that the resident could participate in reframing the service plan and clearly stating his desires. The Ombudsman reminded staff that the resident may have visitors as he chooses, and the residence cannot require advance notice. The Ombudsman advocated for the resident's right to have snacks in his apartment and suggested a plan to keep them in a sealed container and consume them while sitting up or out of bed as a way to address staff concerns about housekeeping issues. This was agreeable to the resident and staff. The residence rescinded the eviction notice, promising to re-write the service plan and work towards better communication with the resident and his family member. As a result of Ombudsman education and advocacy, facility staff have moved towards becoming more resident-centered, not just for the complainant, but for others living in the community.

System Issues

	System Issue 1	System Issue 2
System issue topic	F - Care	O - Other
Problem description	Nursing facilities have been challenged in accepting and providing care and services to individuals suffering from Substance Use Disorder (SUD) and behavioral health issues. There is poor coordination amongst acute care, long-term care, and community support services such as methadone clinics and counseling and other supports. While some facilities are incentivized by the Medicaid “add-on” reimbursement program, they do not always provide the training and services required by this specialized population. Other facilities do not admit residents with SUD or behavioral health issues, stating they are not qualified to provide the care, but not taking advantage of the educational and community resources that exist to support this type of care.	We have identified a lack of public awareness of the Long-Term Care Ombudsman Program, as evidenced by phone calls and community contacts from individuals who are not sure who we are or what we do. This also affects our ability to recruit volunteers.
Barriers description	Lack of education re SUD/BH and needs of residents Societal biases about people with SUD Hospitals lack understanding about capabilities of NF’s to care for residents with SUD Compartmentalization among care settings Resistance to educational opportunities due to fear and lack of understanding	Local programs do not have sufficient bandwidth to engage in community awareness activities and this is a circular issue, as their ability to recruit volunteers is limited because they don’t have enough volunteers to cover the facilities adequately to allow for anything other than very basic outreach.
Issue status	Ongoing issue from last fiscal year	Newly identified in this reporting year and not fully resolved.
Affected setting	Nursing Facility	Not specific to a setting
Resolution strategies	Provided information to public or private agency Provided leadership or participated on a task force Provided educational forums; facilitated public comment on laws, regulations, policies or actions Developed and disseminated information Recommended changes to laws, regulations, policies or actions through written or oral testimony.	Provided information to public or private agency Provided Information to legislator or legislative staff Provided information to the media Provided educational forums; facilitated public comment on laws, regulations, policies or actions Developed and disseminated information

Resolution description	After years of working to facilitate better communication between hospitals and facilities regarding care needs of residents on a case-by-case basis, The Ombudsman Program Director came to believe that a broader perspective was necessary. He worked with his supportive host AAA (Area Agency on Aging), to develop and present a full-day forum for all stakeholders, including nursing home staff, hospital case management, community clinics, aging service providers, the New England QIO (Quality Improvement Organization), individuals recovering from SUD, and knowledge experts in the field of SUD. This was a free event, including two meals, and there was opportunity for cross-collaboration at each table, where assigned seating ensured a variety of professionals from different settings. This event took months of planning, meetings, connecting stakeholders across the care continuum, encouraging and facilitating collaboration and working to break down barriers and silos. The goal is ongoing and improved communication and transitions of care, with further action steps to include supporting and facilitating ongoing meetings and discussions amongst stakeholders.	The Ombudsman Program program put together a “Volunteer Assistance Project”, which involved identifying each area’s capacity and opportunity, using metrics to assess how many volunteers/staff per resident. We then offered those local programs who were interested to apply for the assistance. Once metrics identified those local sites who could benefit the most from additional attention to awareness and volunteerism, an in-depth meeting was held between the State Staff and the local program to discuss opportunities, challenges, and local demographics. The State Staff then put together an action plan involving outreach, website recommendations, materials for distribution, and targeted event participation by the State Staff. The work involved the following areas of participation: website recommendations, hand-outs, fact sheets posted in area towns, educational programs/displays offered to local senior centers, service organizations, and libraries, and outreach to unaffiliated ASAPS in the area. The State Staff worked with one program and has plans for engagement with a second program, and will be presenting an outline of best practices to all local sites.

State and Local Level Coordination Activities

Area agency on aging programs, Facility and long-term care provider licensure and certification programs, The State Medicaid fraud control unit

Other Coordination Activities

Describe any state or local level coordination and leadership activities with the entities listed, as applicable.

The ombudsmen hosted by the local AAA provide orientation to new staff of the agency about the ombudsman program. Depending on the size of the agency, this could be monthly or quarterly. One of the ombudsman programs has a monthly reporting function to the Board of the Directors of the AAA, keeping them apprised of current trends and systems issues. The program directors of each hosted ombudsman unit coordinate with the AAA for volunteer recruitment and retention, including informational campaigns on social media. Most of the local programs also have monthly meetings within the AAA to share systemic concerns, trends in their area, and educational material about each of their functions.

The State Ombudsman collaborates with the Department of Public Health and the Assisted Living Certification unit to share general information about observed trends and patterns. When a closure or emergency situation exists, there is communication regarding the status of the facility and any concerns that may arise during the process. The local ombudsman shares general observations about their homes in advance of standard or complaint surveys upon request of the licensure and certification programs.

The State Ombudsman meets bi-monthly with the Medicaid Fraud Unit of the Attorney General's Office, to discuss current trends and systems issues, and brainstorm approaches to address concerns and advocate for residents in nursing and rest homes. The Medicaid Fraud Unit has also participated in educational programs for ombudsman program directors.
