Disaster Finance

NEMTEC's First Created Course Now Available, More in Production

Several half-day virtual courses are being developed, Disaster Finance is now complete. This course highlights the financial considerations and best practices during disaster preparation, response, and recovery. The target audience includes New England local government: emergency management directors, finance directors, accountants, auditors, procurement officers, and other members of the finance team. The next course to be finalized is COOP For Local Governments, expected to be available in April.

Basic Academy Courses Available Virtually

The Basic Academy courses are now available with a virtual instructor-led option. NEMTEC is offering the Basic Academy in 4-hour blocks of instruction. Attendance to all classes in a series is required to receive course credit. In-Person options are still available.

The National Basic Academy is a series of five classes, comprising the gold standard of introductory training for emergency management directors.

NEMTEC Instructors Heading to Maine to Teach PIO Course

Expanding the reach of emergency management training to all corners of New England will only be possible with a robust virtual training program. That being said, virtual offerings cannot replace all in-person training. NEMTEC has worked closely with the Maine Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) and Penobscot County Emergency Management to provide an in-person L-105: Public Information Basics course in Bangor this February. For registration information visit the MEMA website. For those who don't want to brave the winter weather, check out our virtual classroom options.
