Question:

In the example section under personnel, it states "$1730.77 per pay period x 6 pay periods". In previous years, applicants would use the number of hours or FTE. Can we still use that or are we limited to the number of pay periods during the performance period?

Answer:

The reporting of Personnel has not changed from previous years. The example of reporting by the 6 pay periods was just to give another option of how to report the Personnel hours. You may still report by using the number of hours or FTE.
