I am pleased to present the second issue of my Office's Procurement Bulletin, which features a lengthy discussion of questions regarding the applicability of M.G.L. c.30B to school services.

Preparation of an updated procurement manual by this Office is well under way. Copies of the manual will be issued to all public officials who have completed and sent in the order form contained in the first issue of this bulletin. In conjunction with the release of the new manual, my Office will be offering Chapter 30B training seminars in various locations across the state. Public officials may register for these seminars by sending in the registration form contained at the back of this issue.

Judging by the overwhelmingly positive response to the first issue of this bulletin, I trust that this newsletter is proving helpful to public officials and others who implement Chapter 30B. I welcome your suggestions on how I and my staff can better serve the needs of the procurement community.

Sincerely,

Robert A. Cerasoli,
Inspector General

In July 1994, the City of Boston employed an advertised bidding process to purchase its bond counsel services for the next three years. By selecting the qualified law firm offering the lowest fees, the City saved an estimated one million dollars.

In addition, the December 12, 1994 issue of Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly reported that the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority also bid its bond counsel contract this year, for the first time ever. The bidding resulted in the MBTA's selection of a new firm, at a savings of $100,000 over its current contract.

Although contracts for legal services are exempt from Chapter 30B, awarding authorities may bid these or any other exempt services. Competition will generally result in lower fees, particularly where a contract for services has been repeatedly awarded to the same firm over a long period of time.

Following Chapter 30B's requirement of setting stringent minimum criteria will help ensure that only highly experienced bidders will be eligible to win a contract. Once the field of bidders has been narrowed to these qualified candidates, an awarding authority may then evaluate the bidders based on price.

The Inspector General's Office has determined that there is a need to focus our resources in a more efficient manner. This Office wants to be able to answer your questions as quickly as possible. The most effective way to achieve this goal is to have scheduled phone in times. Therefore, beginning April 1, 1995, the Inspector General's Office will accept questions and requests for technical assistance over the telephone three days per week. You may telephone the Inspector General's Office with a question or request on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 8:00 am to 4:00 pm. You may also submit questions or requests by mailing them to:

We also welcome any concerns or suggestions you may have on how we can assist you.
Questions About Chapter 30B

If a major softdrink company offers to provide our school system with an electronic scoreboard in conjunction with a concession stand contract, will this transaction be subject to Chapter 30B?

Yes. You may estimate the contract value by determining the approximate volume of softdrink sales and the value of the advertising space. It is likely that the value of the contract will be less than $10,000, in which case Chapter 30B requires solicitation of three telephone or written quotations. You may award the contract to the softdrink vendor that offers to provide the school with an electronic scoreboard and will pay the highest price or commission to the school for drinks sold through its concession stands.

How does Chapter 30B apply to purchases of food when the public school food service program is managed by a private food service management company?

There are three possible methods of contracting to buy food:

1. Advertise for a contract for a food service management company which includes the cost of the food as well as the food preparation.

2. Advertise for a contract which includes only the preparation services. School officials may buy the food, using Chapter 30B and provide the food to the food service company.

3. Advertise for a contract which requires the food service management company to purchase the food on behalf of the schools and then prepare it. The cost of the contract includes the services, but does not include the cost of the food. When the food service company purchases food, the cost is reimbursed by the school department. This is the most complicated arrangement for school officials, since they have to ensure that food purchases made by the vendor are done through a competitive process.

Where a contract between a school district and a private food service management company includes food purchases in the scope of services under contract, Chapter 30B would not apply to the private company’s food purchases. However, when procuring the food service management company, the school district must specify that the management company will supply the food and must provide vendors with information to determine the quantity and quality of the food needed.

Recently, my community went out to bid for a school bus transportation contract. The lowest qualified bidder failed to sign the bid price form. However, the non-collusion form was signed. Must I reject this bid?

No. A signature on the bid is necessary to validate its authenticity. However, where other indicia of authenticity are denoted, such as initialled pages or a signed non-collusion form, it is clear that the submission was intended for evaluation and would be contractually binding. In this case, the fact that the bid price form was not signed can be waived as a minor.

informality. The bidder may sign the bid price form as soon as possible.

Massachusetts courts have held that a signature is valid if it is made with initials only, or if a document is signed by the person to be charged, in their own name, or by their initials, or by the person's first name alone, or by a printed, stamped or typewritten signature, if in signing in any of these methods the person intended to authenticate paper as their act.

Alternatively, a signature consisting of a company's typewritten name is sufficient where evidence showed that these words were intended as signature of the company. (See, Irving v. Goodimate Co., 320 Mass. 454 (1946) and Sanborn v. Flagler, 91 Mass. 474 (1864)).

When our elevator maintenance contract expired we invited bids for a new service contract using Chapter 30B procedures. The same company that was last under contract with us was the low bidder. However, we had problems with this company because they did not fulfill their obligations under the contract, including a failure to perform an annual inspection. May we reject this company as nonresponsible and award the contract to the second low bidder?

Yes. You may reject this company as being nonresponsible based on poor performance under the prior contract. You should compile documentation showing that the company did not adequately perform the services specified under contract. Chapter 30B is designed for you to get the best price for supplies and services at the needed quality. You should not hire contractors that have a poor performance record.

Please note that an elevator service contract that cost $25,000 or more will fall under Chapter 149 of the Massachusetts General Laws, not Chapter 30B. Chapter 149 contracts require bidder prequalification by the Massachusetts Division of Capital Planning and Operations (DCPO). DCPO certifies contractors based in part on their contract performance. Serious performance problems with contractors should be reported to DCPO on a “DCPO Contractor Certification Evaluation Questionnaire.” This form is available in Appendix C of the publication entitled Designing and Constructing Municipal Facilities or by calling DCPO.

The principal of the middle school in my jurisdiction would like to raise money so that the eighth graders can go to Washington D.C. A candy company has offered to provide the school with 25 cents for every candy bar a student sells, but there may be other companies that offer us a higher percentage per candy bar sold. Since the parties to the contract will be a school official and a private vendor, wouldn't this transaction be subject to Chapter 30B?

Yes. If the value of the contract is between $1,000 and $10,000, you must seek three quotations. If the value of the contract is $10,000 or more, you must advertise for competitive sealed bids or proposals.
You must state in your specifications how you will determine the highest bidder. Some methods to do this include using a lump sum amount to determine the high bidder or you may use the highest percentage per dollar based on an estimated number of units sold.

If the vendor offers any sort of gift in conjunction with the contract, you should contact the State Ethics Commission to make sure that it does not violate the conflict of interest law. A gift to the school department may be acceptable, but a gift to a public official will not be.

I purchase cafeteria food supplies for our school system. If I do not combine these purchases into one bid package, will I be bid splitting?

Not if you have a reasonable business rationale to make separate purchases. Section 11 of Chapter 30B only prohibits the splitting or division of any procurements if it done “for the purpose of evading a requirement of this chapter.” However, if you have a business rationale to make separate purchases, then you may do so.

For example, if you are purchasing seasonal, perishable commodities, like fresh produce, that are subject to frequent price fluctuations, produce suppliers maybe unwilling to enter into reasonably-priced long term contracts. For this reason, there is a sound business rationale for making smaller, more frequent purchases of fresh produce.

You may want to approach this type of procurement by soliciting weekly price quotations or comparing vendor catalogs or price lists.

MEDICAID AND THIRD PARTY BILLING AND COLLECTION SERVICES MUST COMPLY WITH THE REQUIREMENTS OF M.G.L. c. 30B

An agreement with a private company to bill and collect medicaid payments for special education students does not fall under the exemption to M.G.L. c. 30B for “agreements for the provision of special education.” This service must be procured using Chapter 30B procedures.

Billing and collection services do not constitute the provision of special education within the meaning of the Chapter 30B exemption. Billing and collection services, unlike special education services provided directly to students with special needs, lend themselves readily to price-based competition among qualified businesses. Therefore, you must advertise for sealed bids or proposals to procure these contracts.

DOR files legislation to permit lease-purchase arrangements by cities, towns and districts.

The Department of Revenue has re-filed legislation that would amend M.G.L. c.44, the Municipal Finance Law, to allow cities and towns to enter into lease- purchase agreements and installment agreements for equipment. The bill is House No. 261 and was heard by the Joint Committee on Local Affairs on February 14, 1995.

The Inspector General has written this committee to support this legislation. If you are interested in supporting this bill, you should contact your state legislator.

HIGHLIGHTS

House Bill 167 is the bill number assigned to the Inspector General’s legislation to further streamline M.G.L. c.30B. This bill is currently before the Joint Committee on State Administration. If you would like a copy of this bill, or would like to support this bill you should contact your state legislator.

CHAPTER 30B TRAINING

The response to the Chapter 30B training questionnaire in our December issue of "Procurement Bulletin" was positive. Therefore, this Office has scheduled six training sessions, FREE OF CHARGE across the state. These sessions are designed to accommodate everyone from the novice to the seasoned procurement official.

The topics that will be covered are listed below. The locations are listed on the following pages. If you would like to attend all or part of any session, please fill out the registration form on page seven and return it to this Office by April 7, 1995.

Coffee and tea will be served at each location.

See next page for locations and registration!
