Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget -- Introduction

While taxes are an essential source of revenue for all state economies, the manner in which they are imposed varies widely from state to state. In its simplest form, a tax is an across-the-board levy on a base, such as income, to which a specific rate applies and for which no modifications exist. Taxes are rarely levied in this manner, however. Instead, most state tax codes incorporate a number of exemptions, deductions, credits, and deferrals designed to encourage certain taxpayer activities or to limit the tax burden on certain types of individuals or endeavors. Known as "tax expenditures," these provisions can have a significant impact on state tax revenues.

This document offers a summary of the tax expenditures affecting three taxes from which Massachusetts derives the bulk of its revenues: the personal income tax, the corporate excise, and the sales and use tax. It also provides revenue estimates for each tax expenditure, as mandated by Massachusetts state law. Organized into five separate sections, this study analyzes all aspects of Massachusetts tax expenditures. The first section contains a detailed explanation of how we identify and estimate the costs of tax expenditure provisions in the tax code. In the next sections we have provided detailed information about each of the three major tax types, including an explanation of how each tax is calculated and the ways in which that tax's basic structure is modified to produce the various types of tax expenditures. The tax expenditures for each tax are listed after the description of the tax.

Following the expenditure listings, there are three appendices: one lists recent law changes that affect this year's tax expenditure budget; a second gives three-year tax expenditure estimates which are consistent with our most recent estimation methodology; the third is a glossary that defines terms used throughout the text. In reviewing this document it is important to remember that although a tax expenditure represents a deviation from the generally agreed-upon, or basic, structure of a given tax, determining whether a provision is a tax expenditure is not the same as making a judgment about its desirability. An element of the basic structure of a tax can be inequitable or have undesirable economic effects, just as a tax expenditure can. If so, it can be changed by legislative action just as a tax expenditure can.

The estimates of the costs of tax expenditures included in this volume are revised annually. As improved methodologies and data become available over the course of the year, some estimates may be reexamined and occasionally revised.

What Are Tax Expenditures?

Tax expenditures are provisions in the tax code, such as exclusions, deductions, credits, and deferrals, that are designed to encourage certain kinds of activities or to aid taxpayers in special circumstances. When such provisions are enacted into the tax code, they reduce the amount of tax revenues that may be collected. In this sense, the fiscal effects of a tax expenditure are just like those of a direct government expenditure. Some tax expenditures involve a permanent loss of revenue, and thus are comparable to a payment by the government; others cause a deferral of revenue to the future, and thus are comparable to an interest-free loan to the taxpayer. Since tax expenditures are designed to accomplish certain public goals that otherwise might be met through direct expenditures, it seems reasonable to apply to tax expenditures the same kind of analysis and review that the appropriations budget receives.

It is essential to distinguish between those provisions of the tax code that represent tax expenditures and those that are part of the "basic structure" of a given tax. The basic structure is the set of rules that defines the tax; a tax expenditure is an exception to those rules. In general, most taxes have a series of features that define their basic structure. These features are:

1. A base, on which the tax is levied, such as net income, or a particular class of transactions;
2. A taxable unit, such as a person or a corporation;
3. A rate, to be applied to the base;
4. A definition of the geographic limits of the state's exercise of its tax jurisdiction; and
5. Provisions for the administration of the tax.

Defining the Basic Tax Structure

A tax expenditure is a deviation from the generally agreed-upon, or basic, structure of a given tax. For example, the base of the sales tax includes all retail sales to final consumers. The exemption for sales of energy conservation equipment is an exception, created to encourage purchases of such equipment. The sales tax that is not collected because of the existence of this exemption, then, is a tax expenditure.

While this general definition seems straightforward enough, the task of compiling a comprehensive list of tax expenditures presents many conceptual problems. For example, some of the deductions and exemptions allowed under the tax statutes are not tax expenditures. The broad category of income tax deductions allowed for business expenses is not listed as a tax expenditure. Since the income tax is generally considered to be a tax on income net of the costs of producing that income, deductions for business expenses are taken against gross income and therefore occur prior to calculation of the tax base. In addition, tax provisions reflecting constitutional prohibitions, such as the prohibition on taxation of sales to the federal government, are considered parts of the basic tax structure and therefore are not properly considered tax expenditures. These distinctions are fairly simple, but more complex analytical questions quickly arise.

For example, deductions for the depreciation of property and equipment used in a trade or business are considered part of the basic tax structure because the use of productive assets is a legitimate cost of doing business. However, federal depreciation rules allow larger depreciation deductions in the early years of a property's useful life. These accelerated depreciation rules could be viewed as properly reflecting changing notions of obsolescence and thus as part of the basic tax structure; or the faster rates of depreciation could be considered a special adjustment in the tax base designed to provide an incentive for investment, and therefore a tax expenditure. Indeed, past federal tax expenditure budgets prepared by the Congressional Budget Office and versions prepared by the Treasury Department have disagreed on exactly this issue.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget -- Introduction

We have adopted the point of view that accelerated depreciation is a tax expenditure. Although accelerated depreciation still allows the same total deduction for a piece of property, the rate of depreciation allowed in the early years is faster than would be permitted under traditional accounting principles. Generally, revenue cost estimates in this document for tax expenditures associated with accelerated depreciation rely on assumptions used in congressional federal tax expenditure analysis concerning ordinary depreciation rates.

We have chosen to view the rules for personal exemptions and for no tax status in the Commonwealth's personal income tax as provisions which help to define the income tax base, and thus as a part of the basic structure of the tax (much as the progressive rate structure of the federal income tax, which similarly reduces the tax burden on low-income people, is a part of its basic structure). The base of the tax is defined as net income above what is required for subsistence. Since personal exemptions help define the amount of income needed for subsistence, and therefore the base, they should not be classified as tax expenditures. According to this reasoning, exemptions allowed for dependents would also be considered part of the basic tax structure, since subsistence requirements increase with the size of the taxpayer's household. However, we note that this view of the tax structure did not always lead to easy conclusions. First, taxpayers are allowed exemptions for dependents even if those dependents have their own income and take personal exemptions for themselves. We have treated the use of the dependents' exemption as a tax expenditure. Second, the fact that the no tax status amount is greater than the personal exemption suggests that the intent behind the no tax status and personal exemptions goes beyond simple definition of an income base. Although personal exemptions and the no tax status are not listed in this document as tax expenditures, estimates for the revenue loss associated with these provisions are provided in an endnote.

The sales tax presents the most difficult case. The sales tax statute and its legislative history indicate that the established base of the tax is all "retail" sales. At a minimum, the sales tax exemptions for business purchases of component parts and of products to be resold appear to be provisions that help define which sales are considered non-retail sales, and therefore should not be classified as tax expenditures. However, it is difficult if not impossible to decide which other sales tax exemptions might also cover non-retail sales. For example, manufacturing companies are allowed an exemption from the sales tax for purchases of machinery used in the production process. Since this machinery is not a direct component part of any product being manufactured and is not purchased simply to be resold, it could be argued that the machinery purchase is a retail sale and that the machinery exemption is a tax expenditure. Others would argue that because these purchases are not purchases by the final consumers of an end product, and because they represent legitimate business expenses, these sales tax exemptions should not be considered tax expenditures.

The Massachusetts sales tax statute is filled with exemptions that do not follow a discernible pattern. For example, manufacturers are exempt from sales tax on machinery but not on motor vehicles, and construction firms are not fully exempt from sales tax on their equipment purchases. Because it is difficult to define the basic tax structure, the discussion of the sales tax in this document is not a conventional "tax expenditure analysis." Instead, virtually all of the exemptions from the sales tax are listed as tax expenditures.

As stated in the introduction, the most important thing to remember is that making a judgment about whether a provision is a tax expenditure is not the same as making a judgment about its desirability. With this in mind, we have attempted to provide more rather than fewer tax expenditure estimates, so that necessary information is available for those charged with making policy judgments.

Description of the Data

This budget should be considered part of an ongoing effort to list tax expenditures, describe their characteristics, and estimate their revenue costs. Each year, we attempt to improve upon the analysis presented in the prior year's tax expenditure budget. For purposes of comparison, we have provided an appendix containing updated tax expenditure estimates for the past two years as well as for Fiscal Year 2000.

Information collected by the Department of Revenue (DOR) from Massachusetts tax returns was an important source of data in this budget. Estimates made from these data tend to be the most reliable. Unfortunately, many tax expenditures cannot be estimated from DOR records. When a particular category of income is excluded from taxation, amounts often do not appear on tax records. This is especially likely to be the case for those tax expenditures brought about by "coupling" the state tax code to the federal code, since exclusions and some deductions are not reported explicitly, but are simply carried over to state tax calculations as part of the reporting of federal income. In such cases we have had to estimate a Massachusetts figure using national tax data, census information, sales statistics, and other information.

You will note that in several cases, this year's revenue estimate is very different from last year's. Revisions to the estimates occur for four reasons: we have new data sources, federal tax expenditure estimates on which we rely have changed, we have refined our estimation methodologies, or changes in Massachusetts tax law have modified existing estimates. In a few instances, more than one of these factors operate to explain the difference. All estimates are projections forward from a base year (which varies depending on the availability of data) to Fiscal Year 2000.

Data Limitations

There are some additional caveats that the reader should keep in mind when reading this budget. Most revenue loss estimates have been made without taking into account how repeal of a provision might change taxpayer behavior. For example, if the sales tax exemption for a particular item were repealed, the item would become more expensive to consumers, so one would expect sales of that item to decline. The revenue gain from repealing the provision would be, therefore, somewhat less than if the level of sales for the affected items remained the same. On the other hand, some of the income not spent on that item might be spent on other taxable items. To the extent that consumers and businesses pay more taxes and have less income available for other purposes, the repeal of a tax expenditure might have much broader economic and revenue effects. Clearly, the full calculation of these effects is very difficult.

Second, the interaction among different taxes and tax expenditures may be quite complex. Repealing some tax expenditures may increase or decrease the value of others. For example, increasing the no tax status amount would mean that fewer people would pay taxes, and thus fewer people would claim other exemptions. This would reduce the revenues lost through other exemptions.

Third, the revenue cost estimates do not generally reflect compliance factors which may significantly reduce revenues available from a tax expenditure repeal. In particular, where Massachusetts tax provisions are "coupled" with federal tax rules, audits of Massachusetts taxpayers generally compare state and federal returns. If Massachusetts tax provisions were "decoupled," taxpayers would have to make separate calculations for Massachusetts tax purposes, and these provisions would require special audit procedures. Compliance difficulties would certainly result.

And fourth, particular caution is appropriate with respect to the tax expenditure budget's totals for expenditures for particular taxes. Not only do these totals reflect the imprecision of the specific estimates, but they also omit those items for which no estimates were available. In consequence, particular totals may be substantially understated. At the same time, included in the totals, particularly with regard to the sales tax, are a number of substantial items that many analysts would regard, not as tax expenditures, but rather as features of the underlying tax itself. The general approach in preparing the tax expenditure budget has been to count questionable items as tax expenditures, so that information concerning them would be available for analysis. The result is that certain of the totals are higher than they would be under a more restrained analytic approach.

Reading the Budget

In this document, tax expenditures and cost estimates are listed according to the taxes to which they pertain: personal income, corporate excise, and sales and use. Each of the three major taxes includes an introductory section with a description of the tax, followed by a listing of the tax expenditures for that tax. Each tax expenditure item includes a brief description, the cost estimate, a statutory citation, and an indication of the tax expenditure's type. Taxes on financial institutions, utilities and insurance companies are not treated separately, and the various special excises on motor fuels, cigarettes, and alcoholic beverages are not covered in this budget.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget -- Personal Income Tax

Although income from professions, trades or employment was taxed throughout the nineteenth century under the local property tax, it was not until 1916, under the authority of Article 44 of the Amendments to the Massachusetts Constitution, that the Massachusetts personal income tax was enacted as a separate tax. Unlike most states with income taxes, Massachusetts applies flat rather than graduated rates, because Article 44 requires that all income of the same class be taxed at the same rate.

Generally, the Massachusetts personal income tax ties into the federal Internal Revenue Code as it was on January 1, 1998. To the extent that the Massachusetts tax takes federal law as its starting point, it adopts many federal tax expenditures.

The personal income tax is the state's largest revenue source, accounting for 57.3% of taxes collected in Fiscal Year.

Personal Income Tax: Basic Structure

Tax Base: The personal income tax base is gross income minus the costs of producing the gross income (trade or business expenses). Massachusetts gross income is defined as federal gross income with certain modifications. Effective January 1, 1996 it was divided into three classes: interest, dividends, and short-term capital gains ("Part A" income); long-term term capital gains ("Part C" income); and all other income ("Part B" income). Massachusetts taxpayers are entitled to a basic personal exemption which varies according to taxpayer status. The exempted amounts are considered to be outside the generally accepted tax base. They reflect the notion that income needed for bare subsistence should be free from tax. Thus, for the purposes of this document, these exemptions are not listed as tax expenditures. In addition, taxpayers whose income is below a specified level are entitled to "no tax status." For the same reason, this status is not listed as a tax expenditure. On the other hand, because policy makers are often interested in the effects of adjusting the dollar amounts for the personal exemptions and the no tax status, estimates are provided for them in endnote 3 to item 1.405 in the list of personal income tax expenditures.

Taxable Unit: Individuals are taxed separately, with the exception of married couples, who may file a joint return. The income of children is not aggregated with that of their parents. The income of trusts, estates and corporate trusts, including partnerships and associations with transferable shares, is also subject to the personal income tax.

Rate Structure: The rate of tax on Part B "earned" taxable income is 5.95%. Effective Jan. 1, 1999 the rate on Part A "unearned" income is also 5.95%. The differential between "earned" and "unearned" income has its roots in the historical origin of the personal income tax. When the personal income tax was adopted, the property and economic activities whose income was subjected to the new statewide tax were simultaneously exempted from the local property tax in order to avoid double taxation. The rates originally established for these classes of income were apparently intended to approximate the previous statewide average burdens of local property taxes on the related properties and activities. Therefore, in this document, this differential rate feature will be treated as part of the basic structure of the tax.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget -- Personal Income Tax

Effective January 1, 1996, Part C income, long-term capital gains, is subject to the following tax rates based on how long the assets are held:

Holding Period	Tax Rate
up to one year	12%
more than one, but less than two years	5%
more than two, but less than three years	4%
more than three, but less than four years	3%
more than four, but less than five years	2%
more than five, but less than six years	1%
more than six years	0%

Assets acquired prior to January 1, 1996 are deemed to have been acquired on the later of January 1, 1995 or the actual date of acquisition.

Taxable Period: The taxable period is one year (or less), usually the calendar year. Income may be reported according to the cash or accrual method. Where property is sold on a deferred payment basis, gains may be reported in the years the payments are received. There is no Massachusetts provision for income averaging. Net capital losses may be carried forward to future years.

Interstate and International Aspects: Residents are taxed upon their entire income, whether derived from Massachusetts sources or elsewhere, without allocation or apportionment. Nonresidents are taxed only on income from sources within Massachusetts. A resident may take a limited credit against the Massachusetts income tax for income taxes due to other states, the District of Columbia, any territory or possession of the United States, or Canada or its provinces on any item of Massachusetts gross income.

Types of Tax Expenditures under the Personal Income Tax

The basic structure of the personal income tax can be modified in a number of different ways to produce tax expenditures. Brief explanations of the various types of tax expenditures follow:

Exclusions from Gross Income: Gross income is the starting point in the calculation of income tax liability and, in the absence of tax expenditures, would include all income received from all sources. Items of income that are excluded from gross income typically are not reported by the taxpayer on his or her tax return, and they escape taxation permanently.

Deferrals of Gross Income: Where an item of income is not included in gross income in the year when it is actually received, but is instead included in a later year, the result is a tax expenditure in the form of an interest-free loan from the state to the taxpayer in the amount of the tax payment that is postponed.

Deductions from Gross Income: Certain amounts are subtracted from gross income to arrive at adjusted gross income (AGI). Many of these deducted amounts reflect the costs of producing income (business expenses), and are not properly part of the income tax base. Such deductions are not tax expenditures. Other deductions which do not reflect business expenses constitute tax expenditures, which permit corresponding amounts of income to escape taxation permanently.

Accelerated Deductions from Gross Income: In a number of cases, taxpayers are allowed to deduct business expenses from gross income at a time earlier than such expenses would ordinarily be recognized under Generally Accepted Accounting Principles. The total amount of the permissible deduction is not increased, but it can be utilized more quickly to reduce taxable income. The result is to defer taxes, thus in effect occasioning an interest-free loan from the state to the taxpayer.

Deductions from Adjusted Gross Income (AGI): Taxable income results from the subtraction of certain deductions and exemptions from AGI. Certain of these subtracted items represent amounts of income necessary for subsistence; their exclusion is part of the basic structure of the income tax. Other subtracted items represent tax expenditures, which permit corresponding amounts of income to escape taxation permanently.

Preferential Rates of Taxation: Generally, all income from the same source is taxed at the same rate. When an item of income is taxed at a rate below the rate ordinarily applied to that class of income, a tax expenditure results. The result is equivalent to excluding a portion of the income from taxation.

Credits Against Tax: After a taxpayer's basic tax liability has been calculated by applying the tax rates to taxable income, the taxpayer may subtract certain credit amounts from this initial liability in determining the actual amount of taxes that must be paid. It is important to note that, whereas a one dollar exclusion or deduction results in a tax savings of only a few cents (one dollar times the applicable tax rate), a one dollar credit results in a one dollar tax savings.

In effect, both 1.105 and 1.021 were replaced with a modified IRC 121. The new IRC 121, which is the basis for Massachusetts tax expenditure 1.021, removed the age requirement and the "one-time-only" limitation. Now taxpayers may exclude up to $250,000 of capital gain (or $500,000 if filing jointly) on the sale of a principle residence. This exclusion from gross income may be taken any number of times, provided the home was the filer's primary residence for an aggregate of at least two of the previous five years.

1.100 DEFERRALS OF GROSS INCOME

- 1.101 Net Exemption of Employer Contributions and Earnings of Private Pension Plans²
Employer contributions to private, qualified employee pension plans are deductible by the employer up to certain amounts and are not included in the income of the employees. Income earned by the invested funds is not currently taxable to the employees. Benefits in excess of any employee contributions previously taxed by Massachusetts are taxable when paid out. The value of the tax deferral on contributions and on the investment income is a tax expenditure.

Origin: IRC §§ 401-415 in effect January 1, 1985 and M.G.L. c. 62 §§ 2(a)(2)(F) and 5(b)

Estimate: $601.0

- 1.102 Treatment of Incentive Stock Options
Massachusetts has adopted the federal rules for employee stock options. Generally, employers may offer employees options to purchase at a later date company stock at a price equal to the fair market value of the stock when the option was granted. At the time employees exercise the option, they do not include in income the difference between the fair market value and the price they pay. If they later sell the stock, they are taxed on the amount by which the price they receive for the stock exceeds the price they paid. Thus, income is deferred and is taxed as a capital gain instead of as compensation. However, the employer gets no business deduction from granting the option, and the effective tax rates on capital gains and "earned" income differ only slightly in Massachusetts. Therefore, the revenue effect cannot be determined.

- 1.103 Exemption of Earnings on Stock Bonus Plans or Profit Sharing Trusts
Investment income earned by stock bonus plans or profit sharing trusts is not taxed currently to employees.

Estimate: N.A.

- 1.104 Exemption of Earnings on IRA and Keogh Plans²
Massachusetts taxes contributions made by individuals to private pension plans. However, income earned on the contributed funds is not taxed currently. Upon retirement, payments in excess of contributions are taxed. The deferral of tax on the investment income is a tax expenditure.

- 1.105 Deferral of Capital Gains on Home Sales
This expenditure and 1.021(exclusion of Capital Gains on Home Sales) were changed by the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997. 1.105 (based on IRC 1034, the roll-over of capital gains on the sale of a home), was repealed. In effect, both 1.105 and 1.021 were replaced with a modified IRC 121. The new IRC 121, which is the basis for Massachusetts tax expenditure 1.021, removed the age requirement and the "one-time-only" limitation. Now taxpayers may exclude up to $250,000 of capital gain (or $500,000 if filing jointly) on the sale of a principle residence. This exclusion from gross income may be taken any number of times, provided the home was the filer's primary residence for an aggregate of at least two of the previous five years.

- 1.106 Nontaxation of Capital Gains at the Time of Gift Ordinarily, capital gains are taxed at the time appreciated property is transferred. However, no tax is imposed on a capital gain when appreciated property is transferred by gift. The taxation of appreciation is deferred until the recipient transfers the property.

1.200 DEDUCTIONS FROM GROSS INCOME

1.201 Capital Gains Deduction

1.202 Deduction of Capital Losses Against Interest and Dividend Income

Taxpayers may deduct up to $1,000 of net capital loss against interest and dividend income, which is taxed as "unearned" income. Any excess net capital loss may be carried forward to succeeding years and applied to such income, up to $1,000 per year, to the extent there is no net capital gain for the year. Net capital losses are carried over to succeeding years, where they can be used to offset any capital gains. The carryover provisions create a tax expenditure.

1.203 Excess Natural Resource Depletion Allowance

Individuals or investors in extractive industries (mining or drilling natural resources) may deduct a percentage of gross mining income as a depletion allowance. The allowance may exceed the actual cost of the resource property. For a more detailed description of this tax expenditure, see corporate excise item 2.204.

1.204 Abandoned Building Renovation Deduction

Businesses renovating eligible buildings in Economic Opportunity Areas may deduct 10% of the cost of renovation from gross income. This deduction may be in addition to any other deduction for which the cost of renovation may qualify. To be eligible for this deduction, renovation costs must relate to buildings designated as abandoned by the Economic Assistance Coordinating

1.300 ACCELERATED DEDUCTIONS FROM GROSS INCOME

1.301 Accelerated Depreciation on Rental Housing

Landlords and investors in rental housing may use accelerated methods of depreciation for new and used rental housing. Rental housing placed in service after 1988 is depreciated on a straight-line basis over a 27.5-year period. Rental housing placed in service before 1988 was depreciable over shorter periods (generally 19 or 20 years), and, instead of straight-line depreciation, the 175% declining balance method was permitted. Straight-line depreciation over the property's expected useful life is the generally accepted method for recovering the cost of building structures. The excess of allowable depreciation over such generally accepted depreciation is a tax expenditure, resulting in a deferral of tax or an interest-free loan.

Origin: IRC § 168(b)

Estimate: $10.5

1.302 Accelerated Depreciation for Rehabilitation of Low-Income Housing

Landlords and other investors in low-income housing may amortize rehabilitation expenditures initiated before 1987 over a five-year period. For a more detailed description of this tax expenditure, see corporate excise item 2.302.

Origin: IRC § 167(k)

Estimate: N.A.

1.303 Accelerated Depreciation on Buildings (Other Than Rental Housing)

Individuals or investors in a trade or business may use accelerated methods of depreciation for buildings. Construction may be depreciated under methods which produce faster depreciation than economic depreciation. The precise rates have been changed repeatedly in recent years as the result of revisions in the federal tax code. Structures (other than rental housing) placed in service after 1987 are depreciated on a straight-line basis over a 31.5-year life. The excess of accelerated depreciation over economic depreciation is a tax expenditure.

Origin: IRC §§ 167(j) and 168(b)

Estimate: $6.4

1.304 Accelerated Cost Recovery System (ACRS) for Equipment

For depreciable tangible personal property placed in service after 1980, capital costs must be recovered using the Accelerated Cost Recovery System

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget -- Personal Income Tax

(ACRS) which applies accelerated methods of depreciation over set recovery periods. For property placed in service after 1987, Massachusetts has adopted the Modified Accelerated Cost Recovery System (MACRS), which generally uses double declining balance depreciation over specified periods that are substantially shorter than actual useful lives (200% declining balance for 3-, 5-, 7- and 10-year recovery property and 150% declining balance for 15- and 20-year property). The excess of accelerated depreciation over what is considered to be normal depreciation for tangible personal property (double declining balance) is a tax expenditure.

- 1.305 Deduction for Excess First-Year Depreciation
Individuals or investors in a trade or business may elect to expense certain business assets purchased during the taxable year up to a maximum amount of $10,000. Any remaining cost must be depreciated according to MACRS, as described in the preceding item. The immediate deduction results in a deferral of tax or an interest-free loan.

ENDNOTES:

¹This item and others citing this endnote cover employee fringe benefits. We accept as standard the following treatment of these benefits: the expense incurred by the employer in providing the benefit is properly deductible as a business expense and the benefit is taxed as compensation to the employee as if the employee had received taxable compensation and then used it to purchase the benefit. Of course, there are problems with this analysis. In some cases, the "benefit" is more a condition of employment than a true benefit. For example, a teacher required to have lunch in the school cafeteria may prefer to eat elsewhere even if the school lunch is free. On the other hand, in many cases the provision of tax-free employee benefits is clearly a substitution for taxable compensation.

²This item and others citing this endnote cover contributory pension plans. The standard tax treatment of these plans is as follows:

Component	Standard Treatment
Contributions:	Made out of income which is currently taxed to the employee.
Investment Income:	Taxed to the employee as "earned" income.
Distributions from Pension Funds:	Tax-free to the extent they are made out of dollars previously taxed to the employee as contributions or investment income.

The non-standard treatment of contributions, investment income, or distributions as described in items 1.006, 1.101, 1.104, and 1.402, results in either nontaxation or deferrals of tax.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget -- Corporate Excise Tax

In 1780, the Massachusetts Constitution gave to the General Court the power to levy "reasonable duties and excises upon any produce, wares, merchandise and commodities brought into, produced, manufactured, or being within the Commonwealth."

The corporate excise was enacted in 1919, replacing a corporate franchise tax which was levied on the value of capital stock. Initially, the corporate excise was imposed on corporate excess (similar to net worth) and on net income.

In 1962, the corporate excess measure was repealed. The tax is now levied on tangible property or net worth (depending on the mix of property held by the corporation) and on net income.

Revenues from the corporate excise represented 7.6% of total tax revenues for Fiscal Year 1998. The tax ranked third in Fiscal Year 1998, after the individual income tax and sales and use tax, in amounts collected.

Corporate Excise: Basic Structure

Tax Base: Generally, corporations doing business in Massachusetts are subject to a tax based on net income and on either tangible property or net worth. Together, these two measures of tax constitute the corporate excise.

The net income measure of the tax is based on gross income for federal tax purposes with certain additions such as interest earned on state obligations, less certain deductions, most of which are allowable under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. Many of these deductions are considered to be part of the basic structure. For example, in providing for depreciation deductions, the basic structure would allow the cost of property to be written off over its useful life. However, rules which allow accelerated depreciation deductions are listed as tax expenditures.

Corporations whose qualifying tangible assets in Massachusetts equal or exceed 10% of their qualifying total assets in Massachusetts apportioned according to the income apportionment percentage are taxed on the value of their tangible property. Other corporations are taxed on a net worth basis.

Banks, security corporations, utility corporations, and insurance companies are taxed in a different manner, and are generally not included in this budget. Tax expenditures for these separately taxed corporations are included, however, where they enjoy the benefit of federal and state tax expenditures catalogued in this section, because the taxes to which they are subject are based at least in part on net income.

Taxable Unit: A corporation is a taxpayer separate and distinct from its shareholders.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget -- Corporate Excise Tax

Rate Structure: The effective excise rate on corporations is 9.5% of net income apportioned to Massachusetts, and $2.60 per $1,000 of the value of Massachusetts tangible property or net worth allocable to Massachusetts. The minimum tax is $456.

Taxable Period: The taxable period for corporations is either the calendar year or the corporation's fiscal year. Estimated payments are made every three months during the taxable year. Federal accounting periods and methods have been adopted. Net operating loss carry-forwards are allowed. Qualifying losses may be carried forward for no more than five years.

Interstate and International Aspects: All domestic corporations are subject to the corporate excise by reason of corporate existence at any time during the taxable year. Foreign corporations doing business within the state or owning property in the state are also subject to the excise. Corporations doing business both within and without Massachusetts are entitled to apportion net income if they have income from business activity which is taxable in another jurisdiction using a formula based on the proportions of corporate real and tangible personal property, payroll, and sales that are located in Massachusetts. Under certain circumstances, taxpayers may petition for, or the Commissioner may impose, alternate methods of accounting to reflect more fairly a taxpayer's income from business operations in Massachusetts.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget -- Corporate Excise Tax

Types of Tax Expenditures under the Corporate Excise

As with the personal income tax, the basic structure of the corporate excise is subject to several different types of modifications that can produce tax expenditures.

Exclusions from Gross Income: Gross income is the starting point in calculation of the income component of the corporate excise. In the absence of tax expenditures, it would include all income received from all sources. Items of income that are excluded from gross income are not taxed.

Deferrals of Gross Income: Where an item of income is not included in gross income in the year when it is actually received, but is instead included in a later year, the result is a tax expenditure in the form of an interest-free loan from the state to the taxpayer in the amount of the tax payment that is postponed.

Deductions from Gross Income: Certain amounts are subtracted from gross income to arrive at taxable income. Many of these deducted amounts reflect the costs of producing income (business expenses) and are not included in the corporate excise's measure of income; such deductions are not tax expenditures. Other deductions, which do not reflect business expenses, constitute tax expenditures, which permit corresponding amounts of income to escape taxation permanently.

Accelerated Deductions from Gross Income: In a number of cases, corporations are allowed to deduct business expenses from gross income at a time earlier than such expenses would ordinarily be recognized under accepted accounting principles. The total amount of the permissible deduction is not increased but it can be utilized more quickly to reduce taxable income. The result is to defer taxes, thus in effect occasioning an interest-free loan from the state to the taxpayer.

Adjustments to Apportionment Formula: In the case of a business that earns income both inside and outside the Commonwealth, an apportionment formula is used to determine what portion of the total business income to allocate to Massachusetts for calculation of the corporate excise. When the standard formula is adjusted to reduce the apportionment factor for certain businesses, a tax expenditure results. The practical effect is to exclude a portion of those businesses' income from taxation.

Exclusions from Property Component: In addition to the excise based on income, corporations pay a component of the excise based on the value of their property in the state. To the extent that certain classes of property are not included in the excise's property measure, tax expenditures result.

Credits Against Tax: After a corporation's basic tax liability has been computed, it may subtract certain credit amounts in determining the actual amount of taxes due. It is important to note that, whereas a one dollar exclusion or deduction results in a tax savings of only a few cents (one dollar times the applicable tax rate), a one dollar credit results in a one dollar tax savings.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget -- Corporate Excise Tax

Entity Exempt from Taxation: In some cases, a business or other entity may be completely exempt from taxation. To the extent business or investment income goes untaxed, tax expenditures result.

List of Corporate Excise Tax Expenditures

2.000 EXCLUSIONS FROM GROSS INCOME

2.001 Small Business Corporations
Certain corporations with no more than 35 shareholders may elect to be taxed, for both federal and state tax purposes, as "small business corporations" or "S corporations." The earnings of an S corporation with total receipts of less than $6 million are not generally subject to taxation at the corporate level. S corporations with total receipts of $6 million or more are subject to a reduced corporate excise; 3% if receipts are $6 million or more but less than $9 million; and 4.5% if receipts are $9 million or more. In addition, S corporation net earnings (and losses) are attributed directly to the shareholders (whether or not they are distributed as dividends) and are taxed at the individual shareholder level, generally at a 5.95% rate. By contrast, ordinary corporate earnings are taxed twice, once when earned by the corporation at a 9.5% rate, and once when distributed to shareholders, generally at a 5.95% rate.

The difference between the manner in which income is taxed to a C corporation and its shareholders and an S corporation and its shareholders constitutes a tax expenditure. Massachusetts first adopted this preferential treatment for closely-held corporations in 1986.

Estimate: $12.3

2.202 Additional Deduction for Certain Businesses in a Poverty Area (UJIP)

In determining net income, corporations certified by the Urban Job Incentive Bureau of the Executive Office of Economic Affairs as operating in a poverty area may deduct an additional 25% of a portion of compensation paid to their employees who live in a poverty area. The effect of the provision is to allow businesses to deduct 125% of the wages of these employees.

2.203 Net Operating Loss Carry-Over

Taxpayers may carry-over for no more than five years (but not carry back) net operating losses (NOL) as defined under section 172 of the Internal Revenue Code.

2.204 Excess Natural Resource Depletion Allowance

Taxpayers in extractive industries (mining or drilling for natural resources) may deduct a percentage of gross mining income as a depletion allowance ("percentage depletion") even if the cost basis of the property has been reduced to zero. The deduction may not exceed 50% (in some cases, 65%) of net income from the property. In the case of oil and gas, percentage depletion is available only to domestic oil and gas sold by "independent producers" (nonintegrated companies). The excess of the deduction available using the percentage of gross income method of depletion over a depletion deduction based on cost is a tax expenditure.

2.205 Deduction for Certain Dividends of Cooperatives

Farmers' cooperatives and certain corporations acting as cooperatives may deduct patronage dividends and other amounts out of gross income. Cooperatives meeting certain requirements may deduct dividends on capital

- 2.206 Abandoned Building Renovation Deduction
Businesses renovating eligible buildings in Economic Opportunity Areas may deduct 10% of the cost of renovation from gross income. This deduction may be in addition to any other deduction for which the cost of renovation may qualify. To be eligible for this deduction, renovation costs must relate to buildings designated as abandoned by the Economic Assistance Coordinating Council.

2.300 ACCELERATED DEDUCTIONS FROM GROSS INCOME

- 2.301 Accelerated Depreciation on Rental Housing
Landlords and investors in rental housing may use accelerated methods of depreciation for new and used rental housing. Rental housing placed in service after 1986 is depreciated on a straight-line basis over a 27.5 year period. Rental housing placed in service before 1987 was depreciable over shorter periods (generally 19 or 20 years), and, instead of straight-line depreciation, the 175% declining balance method was permitted. Straight-line depreciation over the property's expected useful life is the generally accepted method for recovering the cost of buildings. The excess of allowable depreciation over such generally accepted depreciation is a tax expenditure, resulting in a deferral of tax or an interest-free loan.

Origin: IRC § 168

Estimate: $1.5

- 2.302 Accelerated Depreciation for Rehabilitation of Low-Income Housing
Expenditures made for the rehabilitation of low-income rental housing may be depreciated over a five-year period, using the straight-line method of depreciation and ignoring salvage value, if the expenditures are made under a binding contract in existence before 1987. Generally, the aggregate expenditures qualifying for the deduction cannot exceed $20,000 per unit, though they must equal at least $3,000 per unit over two consecutive years. Any remaining cost may be depreciated under the accelerated methods described in item 2.301. The accelerated recovery of costs which otherwise would be depreciable over a longer period amounts to a deferral of tax or an interest-free loan.

- 2.303 Expensing for Removal of Barriers to the Handicapped
Taxpayers may elect to deduct up to $35,000 of the costs of removing architectural or transportation barriers to the handicapped in the year these costs are incurred. The immediate deduction of these expenditures which would otherwise have to be capitalized and depreciated over a longer period results in a deferral of tax or an interest-free loan.

Origin: IRC § 190
Estimate: N.A.

- 2.304 Five-Year Amortization of Start-Up Costs
Taxpayers may elect to treat certain capital costs of starting a business as deferred expenses and amortize them over five years. Without the election, only costs for particular assets could be recovered through depreciation deductions. Other costs would be part of the basis in the business and generally could not be recovered until the business was sold or discontinued. The election to amortize these costs allows for a deferral of tax or an interest-free loan.

Origin: IRC § 195
Estimate: $0.4

- 2.305 The Accelerated Cost Recovery System (ACRS) for Equipment
For depreciable tangible personal property placed in service after 1980, capital costs must be recovered using the federal Accelerated Cost Recovery System (ACRS) which applies accelerated methods of depreciation over set periods. For property placed in service after 1986, the Federal Tax Reform Act of 1986 prescribes revised ACRS depreciation schedules, generally using double-declining balance depreciation over specified periods that are substantially shorter than actual useful lives. The excess of accelerated depreciation over what is considered to be normal depreciation for tangible personal property (double-declining balance over expected useful lifetimes) is a tax expenditure.

Origin: IRC § 168
Estimate: $170.7

- 2.306 Deduction for Excess First-Year Depreciation
Taxpayers may elect to expense certain business assets purchased during the taxable year. The total deduction cannot exceed $17,500; for taxpayers whose investment in eligible assets exceeds $200,000 in the year, the $17,500 ceiling is reduced by $1 for each dollar of investment above $200,000. Any remaining cost may be depreciated according to ACRS as described in item 2.305. The immediate deduction results in a deferral of tax or an interest-free loan.

- 2.307 Accelerated Depreciation on Buildings (other than Rental Housing)
Construction may be depreciated under methods which produce faster depreciation than economic depreciation. The precise rules have been changed repeatedly in recent years by revisions of the federal tax code. For structures (other than housing) placed in service after 1986, federal law requires straight-line depreciation over a 31.5 year life. The excess of accelerated depreciation over economic depreciation is a tax expenditure. For a more detailed description of accelerated depreciation, see item 2.301 above.

- 2.308 Expensing Research and Development Expenditures in One Year
Taxpayers may elect to treat research or experimental expenditures incurred in connection with a trade or business as immediately deductible expenses. Under generally accepted accounting principles, at least some of these costs would otherwise be treated as capital expenditures and depreciated or amortized over a period of years. Their immediate deduction results in a deferral of tax or an interest-free loan.

Origin: IRC § 174
Estimate: $38.3

- 2.309 Expensing Exploration and Development Costs
Certain capital costs incurred in bringing a known mineral deposit into production are deductible in the year incurred. A portion of domestic mining exploration costs can also be expensed, although they will be recaptured if the mine reaches the production stage. Certain intangible drilling and development costs of domestic oil, gas, and geothermal wells are deductible when made, but to a certain extent may be recaptured upon disposition of oil, gas, or geothermal property to which they are properly chargeable. The immediate expensing of these costs, which would otherwise be capitalized and recovered through depreciation or through depletion as the natural resource is removed from the ground, results in a deferral of tax or an interest-free loan.

industries. The five-year amortization of these costs, which would otherwise be capitalized and recovered upon the sale of the business, results in a deferral of tax or an interest-free loan.

- 2.311 Five-Year Amortization of Pollution Control Facilities
Taxpayers may elect to amortize the cost of a certified pollution control facility over a five-year period, allowing for accelerated recovery of these costs. The excess of accelerated recovery over depreciation deductions otherwise allowable results in a deferral of tax or an interest-free loan.

- 2.312 Expensing Certain Expenditures for Alternative Energy Sources
In determining net income, a corporation may elect to take an immediate deduction for expenditures made for certain solar or wind powered systems or units located in Massachusetts and used exclusively in the business, in lieu of all other deductions and credits including the deduction for depreciation. Without this provision, such expenditures would have to be capitalized and depreciated. The immediate deduction results in a deferral of tax or an interest-free loan.

- 2.313 Seven-Year Amortization for Reforestation
Taxpayers may elect to amortize reforestation costs for qualified timber property over a seven-year period. The accelerated cost recovery results in a deferral of tax or an interest-free loan.

2.400 ADJUSTMENTS TO APPORTIONMENT FORMULA

2.401 Unequal Weighting of Sales, Payroll, and Property in the Apportionment Formula

Corporations with a presence in Massachusetts and other states allocate income to the Commonwealth using a three-factor apportionment formula. A corporation's sales, payroll, and property in Massachusetts are compared to those outside Massachusetts.

Exporters benefit from an apportionment formula that weights sales more heavily than the other factors. Effective January 1, 1996, eligible defense corporations are allowed a formula that weights sales 100%. For other manufacturers, a 100% sales weight is phased-in over five years. All other corporations will continue to use a formula that weights sales 50%.

Effective January 1, 1997 mutual fund corporations are allowed to attribute mutual fund sales to Massachusetts based on the domicile of shareholders in the mutual funds. Effective July 1, 1997, mutual fund corporations are allowed to apportion their income to Massachusetts based solely on the percentage of sales attributed to Massachusetts.

Comment: In listing this item, it is assumed that a standard apportionment formula gives equal weight to sales, property and payroll. The estimate is of the impact of departing from this standard formula.

2.500 EXCLUSIONS FROM PROPERTY COMPONENT

2.502 Exemption for Property Subject to Local Taxation

In computing the state corporate excise on tangible property, property subject to tax at the local level is exempt. Generally, the state taxes only the machinery of manufacturing corporations and exempts business real estate and tangible personal property.

Comment: For purposes of estimating revenue loss from this tax expenditure the state's rate on property, $2.60 per $1,000, has been applied. It should be

2.600 CREDITS AGAINST TAX

2.601 Tax Credit for Building in a Poverty Area (UJIP)

A corporation operating an eligible business in a poverty area may take a credit against the corporate excise equal to the excess of the relevant local property tax rate over the average statewide property tax rate, multiplied by the assessed value of the corporation's real estate, and divided by $1,000.

Origin: M.G.L. c. 63, § 38E

Estimate: $0.1

2.602 Investment Tax Credit

Manufacturing corporations, research and development corporations and corporations engaged primarily in agriculture or commercial fishing are entitled to a credit against tax for investments in qualified tangible property. The amount of the credit is 3% of the cost or other basis of the property for federal income tax purposes. Total credits taken by a given corporation in a taxable year cannot exceed 50% of tax liability. Unused credits may be carried over to subsequent years. If property qualifying for the investment credit is disposed of or no longer in use, a corporation must repay in the year of disposition the portion of the credit allocable to the remaining useful life of the property.

Comment: Past estimates of this tax expenditure have been "dynamic." That is, they have included estimates of increased economic activity and tax collections that result from this credit. To be consistent with all other estimates in this document, this estimate is based on actual ITC claims of corporations from the most recent Corporate Excise Returns Report. The estimate assumes that ITC rate will remain at 3% in FY 2000.

2.604 Research Credit

Corporations are entitled to a credit against tax for research and development expenditures. The amount of the credit is equal to the sum of 10% of qualified research expenses each year in excess of a base amount, and 15% of basic research payments, in excess of a base amount. The credit is limited to the first $25,000 of excise plus 75% of any excise in excess of $25,000. Unused credits may be carried over to subsequent years. ESTIMATES

All estimates are in $ millions.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget: Sales and Use Tax

Massachusetts imposes a sales and use tax on retail sales. In addition to the sales and use tax, there are several separate excises, each limited to a particular type of commodity. These special excises have not been included in this tax expenditure budget.

The Massachusetts sales and use tax, first imposed in 1966, is levied at a rate of 5%. The sales tax applies to sales made within the state, and the use tax to property and services purchased outside of Massachusetts but intended for use within the state.

Revenues from the sales and use tax represented 21.2% of total tax revenues for Fiscal Year 1998.

Sales and Use Tax: Basic Structure

Tax Base: For the purposes of this tax expenditure budget, we have chosen not to make any assumptions about the base of the Massachusetts sales and use tax. Some people take a narrow view of what a retail sale is, limiting the term to sales to final consumers, i.e., individuals. Others would include sales to businesses, especially in instances where the purchase will not become an ingredient or component in a product to be sold. In an effort to acknowledge both theories, we will simply list the various exemptions under the sales tax. Some or many of these exemptions would be considered to be properly excluded from the tax base depending upon one's point of view.

Taxable Unit: The sales and use tax is an in rem tax; that is, it is levied on the property or service to be sold or used.

Rate Structure: The sales and use tax rate is 5% of the purchase price.

Taxable Period: The tax is imposed at the time of sale or use and remitted at specified intervals by the vendor.

Interstate and International Aspects: Massachusetts applies the destination principle to international and interstate sales. Accordingly, exports are exempt and imports are taxable under either the sales or the use tax. Similarly, taxable services performed in the Commonwealth but used outside of the Commonwealth are exempt from sales tax. Statutory exemptions for exports of property and for services used outside of the Commonwealth are therefore not listed as tax expenditures.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget: Sales and Use Tax

Computation of Massachusetts Sales and Use Tax by Vendor*

* A purchaser is also responsible for paying use tax directly to the Commonwealth on the sales price of taxable property or services purchased out-of-state and stored, used, or otherwise consumed in the Commonwealth, provided that a sales and use tax of 5% or more has not been paid separately to another state.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget: Sales and Use Tax

Types of Tax Expenditures under the Sales Tax

In the case of the sales tax, all tax expenditures are of a single type. They all result from the exclusion of certain transactions from the taxable base. The exclusion can be based on any of a number of characteristics of the transaction - who the buyer is, who the seller is, what the product or service is, what the product or service will be used for, etc. - but structurally all such tax expenditures operate in the same way. Hence, we have omitted the designation of tax expenditure types from the descriptions in this section.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget: Appendix A Recent Law Changes Affecting Tax Expenditures

In recent years the following tax expenditures were revised or created due to law changes:

The Personal Income Tax :

Deduction for Dependent Under 12 (budget item 1.406) Effective January 1, 1997, the deduction for taxpayers with a dependent under the age of 12 who does not claim the deduction for business-related dependent care expenses (budget item 1.409) increased from $600 to $1,200.

Earned Income Credit (budget item 1.605) Effective January 1, 1997, taxpayers are allowed a refundable credit against Massachusetts tax equal to 10% of the amount of the earned income credit claimed on their federal individual income tax return.

Septic System Repair Credit (budget item 1.606) Effective January 1, 1997, taxpayers required to repair or replace a failed cesspool or septic system pursuant to the provisions of Title V, as promulgated by the Department of Environmental Protection in 1995, are allowed a credit equal to 40% of the design and construction costs incurred (less any subsidy or grant from the Commonwealth), up to a maximum of $1,500 per tax year and $6,000 in total. Unused credits can be carried forward for up to three years.

Exemption for Retirement Pay of the Uniformed Services (budget item 1.029) Effective January 1, 1997, income received from the United States government as retirement pay and survivorship benefits for a retired member of the Uniformed Services of the United States is exempt from the personal income tax. The Uniformed Services of the United States are: the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, and the Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Doubling of Personal Exemptions. The allowance for Personal Exemptions will be doubled over the Tax Years 1998 and 1999. (Note that tax year 1999 spans the last half of FY99 and the first half of FY2000). Strictly speaking, this is not a tax expenditure, since it applies to all filers. The exemption for single filers increased from $2,200 to $3,815 for tax year 1998 and will be further increased to $4,400 for tax year 1999. For joint fillers, exemptions increase from $4,400 to $7,630 to $8,800 in tax year 1999. The Head of Household exemption increases from $3,400 to $5,895 to $6,800 over the same period.

Allow income exclusion for contributions to "403b" annuity plans. Effective January 1, 1998, contributions to so-called "403b" annuity plans, which are pension plans for employees of non-profit entities and public schools, are exempt from taxation.

Capital Gains Deduction (budget item 1.201). Effective January 1, 1996, only long-term capital gains realized from the sale of collectibles (as defined by sec. 408 (m) of the IRC) will be eligible for a 50% deduction from the 12% capital gains tax. Capital gains from the sale of assets other than collectibles will no longer be eligible for a 50% deduction from the 12% capital gains tax, but will be subject to the following tax rates depending upon how long the assets are held:

Holding Period	Tax Rate
up to one year	12%
more than one, but less than two years	5%
more than two, but less than three years	4%
more than three, but less than four years	3%
more than four, but less than five years	2%
more than five, but less than six years	1%
more than six years	0%

Assets acquired prior to January 1, 1996 are deemed to have been acquired on the later of January 1, 1995 or the actual date of acquisition.

Several tax changes have taken place to update Massachusetts tax laws to conform to the Federal code. These include exemption of earnings and distributions for Roth and Education IRA's, and the $250,000/$500,000 capital gains exclusion for the sale of principle residences.

The tax rate on interest and dividend income, also referred to as Part A or unearned income, has been cut from 12% to 5.95%, effective January 1, 1998. It will now be taxed at the same rate as Part B or regular earned income.

Sales and Use Tax:

Exemption for Internet Access and Related Services (budget item 3.504). Retroactive to January 1, 1990, internet access services, electronic mail services, electronic bulletin board services, web hosting services or similar on-line computer services are not subject to the sales and use tax.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget: Appendix A Recent Law Changes Affecting Tax Expenditures

Corporate Excise:

Unequal Weighting of Sales, Payroll, and Property in the Apportionment Formula (budget item 2.401). Prior to FY98, this item was referred to as Double Weighting of Sales. Effective January 1, 1996, eligible defense corporations may apportion income to Massachusetts based solely on their sales in the Commonwealth, creating a 100% sales weighted formula. Other qualified manufacturers will be required to apportion income using the following formulas:

Tax Year	Sales Weight	Property Weight	Payroll Weight
1996	60%	20%	20%
1997	70%	15%	15%
1998	80%	10%	10%
1999	90%	5%	5%
2000	100%	0%	0%

Non-manufacturers will continue to be required to apportion income to Massachusetts using a formula that weights sales 50%, property 25%, and payroll 25%.

Effective January 1, 1997 mutual fund corporations are allowed to attribute mutual fund sales to Massachusetts based on the domicile of shareholders in the mutual funds. Effective July 1, 1997, mutual fund corporations are allowed to apportion their income to Massachusetts based solely on the percentage of sales attributed to Massachusetts.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget: Appendix B Summary Table

The following table shows tax expenditure estimates for the three major taxes from Fiscal Year 1998 to Fiscal Year 2000. In general, the revenue estimate for a tax expenditure tends to follow the anticipated growth of tax collections. However, year-to-year changes in estimates may vary for four other principal reasons: we have new data sources; we have refined our methodology; we have relied on federal tax expenditure estimates which have changed; or we have revised estimates to account for changes in tax laws.

Where possible, we have recalculated past estimates based on revised data, improved methodologies, and changes in statute.

ENDNOTES:

1. Estimates have been revised because of new data or improved methodology, and reflect current tax law.
2. Subtotals and totals have been provided to give an idea of the revenue costs of tax expenditures by tax and in total. However, these sums should be used with extreme caution. The underlying estimates do not take into account such factors as the interaction of tax expenditures and taxpayer behavior. Also it should be noted that many estimates are not available due to a lack of data. These estimates are shown as N.A. and are not included in the subtotals and totals.

Fiscal Year 2000 Tax Expenditure Budget: Appendix C Glossary

Amortization: Annual deduction allowed for the gradual exhaustion or obsolescence of intangible assets having a limited useful life which are used in the production of income, such as patents and copyrights; analogous to depreciation of tangible assets.

Capital Expenditure: An expenditure made in acquiring, adding to or bettering a fixed asset. For accounting purposes, capital expenditures are not charged against current revenue. They are added to capital account or "capitalized" and then may be depreciated, amortized, or recovered when a business is sold. To be distinguished from an expense.

Credit: Amount by which a taxpayer is allowed to reduce a tax liability, as computed by applying the tax rates to the tax base; to be distinguished from a deduction from the tax base.

Deduction: Amount which a taxpayer is allowed to subtract from the gross tax base.

Depreciation: Annual deduction allowed for the gradual exhaustion or obsolescence of tangible property used in the production of income.

Exclusion: The legal elimination from the tax base of items recognized as falling within its definition. The federal term for what is sometimes called an exemption for Massachusetts. (See below.)

Exemption: The legal elimination from the tax base of items or transactions recognized as falling within its definition, or of taxable units which would normally be subject to tax.

Expense: A revenue expenditure or cost which, for accounting purposes, is charged against current revenue. To be distinguished from a capital expenditure.

Gross income: The total of all items included in the concept of income that a taxpayer receives during the taxable period.

Net income: Amount remaining after subtracting exempt income and deductions from gross income.

Personal exemption: A specific amount or percentage of net income on which the tax rate is zero. To be distinguished from an exemption as defined above, which applies to a class of income or taxpayers. Sometimes called an "allowance".

Taxable income: Amount to which the tax rates are applied in computing tax liability, after subtracting personal exemptions from net income.
